BOARD OF REVENUE,
N.-W. P. AND OUDH:
Allahabad, the May 1901.

H. F. HOUSE,
Secretary.

REPORT

ON THE

REVENUE ADMINISTRATION

FOR THE REVENUE YEAR 1899-1900.

No. $\frac{902}{XII-163}$ of 1901.

FROM

H. F. HOUSE, ESQ., I.C.S.,

SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF REVENUE,

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH,

To

THE SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH,

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Allahabad, the 15th March 1901.

Present:

HON'BLE MR. D. T. ROBERTS AND E. ROSE, ESQ., C. V. O.

SIR,

§§ 1—3.—Introductory.

I AM directed to submit the Board's report on the Revenue Administration of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh for the year ending on the 30th September 1900.

2. The office of Senior Member was held by the Hon'ble Mr. LaTouche up to 5th December 1899, when he went on furlough, making over charge to the Hon'ble Mr. Evans, who had returned from leave. The Hon'ble Mr. Evans made over charge of the office of Senior Member on the same day to the Hon'ble Mr. Roberts, the Junior Member, and proceeded to join the Governor-General's Council as Additional Member. Mr. Rose officiated as Junior Member in place of the Hon'ble Mr. Roberts. On the return of the Hon'ble Mr. Evans to the Board on the 3rd April 1900 the Hon'ble Mr. Roberts proceeded on furlough. Mr. Rose accordingly continued to officiate as Junior Member. These arrangements remained undisturbed up to the end of the year.

3. Of the Divisional reports only those of Rohilkhand and Kumaun were received by the date fixed (1st December). The others were received during December, except the Fyzabad report, which reached the Board on the 2nd January 1901. These reports led to considerable correspondence, and the last letter containing information required for this report did not reach the Board until the 8th March.

Chapter I.—AGRICULTURAL.

§§ 4—8.—Rainfall and Harvests.

4. The monsoon of 1899 was of an abnormal character. Setting in about the middle of June, it gave almost uninterruptedly a heavy and generally excessive rainfall until the end of the third week in July. Then followed a break which continued with slight interruptions until nearly the middle of August, when good rain fell everywhere except in parts of the Meerut and Agra Divisions. In the latter half of this month the rainfall was heavy in the eastern divisions and in Oudh, and light in the western and northern districts, the Jhánsi, Aligarh, Muttra, and Agra districts especially suffering from an inadequate rainfall. After a break in the first week of September rain again fell: Oudh, the eastern divisions, Allahabad, the eastern districts of Agra, and parts of the districts of Bareilly and Pilibhít receiving good falls; while in the rest of the Provinces the fall was on the whole insufficient. There was good rain again in the eastern divisions in the third week of September, and slight showers fell elsewhere; but in the Meerut and Rohilkhand Divisions there was practically no rain. On the 25th September, the rains ceased altogether and dry westerly winds set in. October, November, and December were exceptionally dry months. About the middle of January the winter rains came and fell at intervals until almost the end of the month, the fall in the Meerut and Agra Divisions being light, but ample elsewhere. Rain of some importance was also received in most districts in February. Showers were also registered in March and April. Taking the Provinces as a whole, the rainfall of the year averaged 41·5 inches as compared with 44·4 inches, the average of the preceding five years.*

5. With a monsoon such as has been described, it was inevitable that the crops should suffer. The excessive falls in June and July not merely retarded agricultural operations, but did serious damage to the sowings in the lowlands. The deficient or irregular rainfall which followed did not improve matters, and it is owing to the opportune rainfall in the second week of September that the result was less serious than might at one time have been anticipated. As it was, in the Meerut Division, and in parts of the Agra and Rohilkhand Divisions and in Jhánsi, the crop was only about half the normal, and in the rest of the Provinces it is put at about three-fourths of the normal. Early rice generally escaped destruction; but the late rice was practically a failure, and the average rice-yield was under 70 per cent. Bájra and til gave better returns; but for the rest the kharíf ran to only about 50 or 60 per cent. of the normal.

6. For the rabi sowings there was sufficient moisture in the ground in most places, except in double-cropped land; but the long holding off of the winter rains caused considerable anxiety, especially where artificial irrigation was not available; and when at length the rain fell in the middle of January, its benefits were in many places counteracted by the hail which accompanied it. In the dry lands of the Meerut Division, in Bijnor, Jhánsi, and Jalaun, and in the districts which suffered from hail, the outturn of wheat was poor; but elsewhere it was good, and the provincial average is about 85 per cent. Arhar, peas, and gram gave a yield of 80 per cent.; but the barley crop, which suffered a good deal from rust, shows only 70 per cent. The year was a bad one for sugarcane, the yield being only 62 per cent. The poppy return is given as 87 per cent.; but the Opium Agent is inclined to think that the figure has been put too low. Taking the rabi as a whole, in the tracts above mentioned the outturn was poor, but elsewhere it was satisfactory.

7. The monsoon of 1900 was much delayed. There were local falls in the first week in June, followed, in the eastern half of the Provinces, by moderate rain in the middle of that month; but the rainfall of June was almost everywhere in considerable defect. In the last week of June and the first week of July a period of very hot, dry weather was experienced. Then rain fell generally, and continued throughout the month; but the fall on the whole was below the average, especially in the Agra, Benares, and Allahabad Divisions. In August, particularly in the last week of the month, good rain fell everywhere; but in all the submontane districts and in the Benares Division the rainfall of the month was considerably below the average. This deficiency, however, was more than made up in September, in which month heavy rain was general. In October the eastern districts received heavy rain; but elsewhere the fall was small, notably in the Agra and Rohilkhand Divisions.

8. The kharíf sowings of 1900 were everywhere on a more extended scale than those of the previous year, the increase being particularly marked in Bundelkhand, where there was an advance of from 20 to 37 per cent. The rice crop, however, owing to the lateness and insufficiency of the rain to begin with, and the extraordinarily heavy rain later on, was not a success. This was especially the case in the eastern districts, which return only a two-thirds outturn, while the provincial average is three-fourths. Maize, juár, bájra, and til were full or almost full crops; but the small millets were poor, and cotton and indigo returns are given at 85 per cent. Taken as a whole, the kharíf harvest of 1900 was well up to the normal in every part of the Provinces except the Benares and Gorakhpur Divisions, for which it may be put at about 75 per cent.

§ 9.—Hailstorms, floods, and other calamities.

9. The Provinces were visited by several hailstorms during the year, the most widespread being that of the 23rd January 1900, which affected nearly the whole of the southern districts of the Provinces, doing considerable damage, notably in Gházipur and Ballia. From Hamírpur a heavy flood is reported, the headquarters of the district only being saved from being washed away by a bund constructed some years ago. Otherwise there were no floods of note. Locusts appeared in several districts, but they did little or no damage. Damage by caterpillars is reported from the Naini Tál and Dehra Dún districts.

§ 10.—Health.

10. In almost every district the deaths from fever were less numerous than in the preceding year, the total decrease being, so far as can be judged from the figures reported, the better part of 100,000. The deaths from cholera, on the other hand, show a decided increase—40,000 more than in the previous year. The disease was prevalent in every division of the Provinces, but was most severe in the Benares, Gorakhpur, and Fyzabad Divisions. Deaths from small-pox were comparatively few. Plague was discovered in the Allahabad district. There were also a few imported cases in the Cawnpore, Benares, and Mirzapur districts; but the Provinces happily remained free from any general visitation of the plague. On the whole, the year appears to have been a healthy one.

§ 11.—Cattle-disease.

11. Of the various forms of cattle-disease reported, rinderpest was the most prevalent, though no doubt it was not always correctly diagnosed. Thus, in Hamírpur, where 7,348 head of cattle are reported to have died from cow-pox, there is reason to suspect that a large proportion of the deaths were due to rinderpest. In the Jhánsi district, from which the most serious mortality among cattle is reported, only 5,388 deaths out of 53,016 are ascribed to disease; but, as the Commissioner has remarked, the figures can scarcely be accepted as correct, for both rinderpest and foot-and-mouth disease being prevalent in the district, it is only reasonable to infer that a very much larger number of the insufficiently-fed animals must have succumbed to disease. No instance was reported during the year of rinderpest being wilfully spread by Chamárs. Good work was done by Veterinary Assistants during the year, notably in the Bánda district; but various reports notice the reluctance of owners of cattle to forsake the native methods of treatment, or to have recourse to inoculation. Veterinary hospitals, however, were opened at Muzaffarnagar, Meerut, and Etáwah, and several District Boards have decided to send their assistants to the Bacteriological Laboratory at Mukhtesar to study inoculation. Cattle-poisoning appears to be upon the decline. Indeed, the Deputy Commissioner of Fyzabad reports that there has been going on a very interesting movement among the Chamárs in the east of that district against cattle-poisoning, large assemblies of Chamárs having been held at several centres, and those convicted of poisoning having been punished with fine or excommunication. In two meetings of this kind no less than 40 men were punished.

§ 12.—Prices.

12. The rapid rise of prices about the middle of 1899 was noted in last year's report. There was a slight fall by the end of the year, and a further fall took place during the first quarter of 1900. During the second quarter of the year there was again a rise; and though prices were easier before the end of October, they still ruled high: wheat averaging from 12 to 13 seers per rupee and rice from 11 to 12. Viewed as a whole, the year was distinctly a year of high prices.

Chapter II.—FINANCIAL.

§ 13.—Total demand and collections.

13. The total receipts from the several sources of income treated of in this report amounted to Rs. 8,42,06,822, out of a demand of Rs. 8,86,52,378, as compared with Rs. 8,53,75,740, out of a demand of Rs. 9,22,15,889 in the previous year. The component items will now be separately examined.

§§ 14—16.—Land Revenue on the roll. Collections on account of the current demand.

14. The current demand on account of land revenue borne on the roll was Rs. 6,18,82,443 or Rs. 66,731 less than in 1898-99.* The collections amounted to Rs. 6,06,11,143 or 97·9 per cent., the percentage in the North-Western Provinces being 97·4 and in Oudh 99·5. The balance, Rs. 12,71,300, is thus classified :—

	Rs.
(a) Doubtful	21,046
(b) Irrecoverable	95,818
(c) Nominal	2,36,536
(d) Recoverable	9,17,900
Total ...	12,71,300†

(a) The doubtful balance is almost entirely due from deteriorated villages in Unao, the collection of Rs. 20,933 having been suspended under the orders of Government pending the submission of proposals for reduction of revenue.

(b) The irrecoverable balance is due to remissions on account of failure of harvests as follows :—

	Rs.
In Aligarh	7,223
„ Muttra	80,990
„ Bareilly	300
„ Hamírpur	551
„ Gorakhpur	363
„ Azamgarh	257
„ Hardoi	5,815
„ Gonda	319
Total ...	95,818

(c) The nominal balance is on account of the following :—‡

	Rs.
Removal from the roll upon annulment of settlement, chiefly in the Allahabad Division	1,27,329
Reduction of revenue at settlement, chiefly in the Meerut district	18,214
Diluvion	48,580
Loyal services	13,225
Errors in assessment	14,085
Deterioration	10,477
Acquisition of land	4,531
Exemption of groves	95
Total	2,36,536

(d) The recoverable balance is made up of the following items :—

	Rs.
Realized after the close of the year	52,859
Suspended or postponed §	5,19,606
Due from Court of Wards and Government estates ...	12,203
Due from estates under attachment	87,761
Due from defaulters residing in other districts	11,723
Under recovery	2,33,748
Total ...	9,17,900

* As explained in paragraph 21 and Appendix E-VI of the Revenue Administration Report for 1898-99.

† For details by districts, see Appendix A-I.

‡ Vide paragraph 16 of the Board's Report for 1898-99.

§ In the following districts :—Saháranpur, Rs. 6,298 ; Aligarh, Rs. 58,805 ; Muttra, Rs. 1,28,722 ; Agra Rs 44,882 ; Etah, Rs. 10,298 ; Bareilly, Rs. 302 ; Bijnor, Rs. 47,736 ; Bánda, Rs. 7,998 ; Hamírpur, Rs. 5,898 ; Allahabad, Rs 50,424 ; Jhánsi, Rs. 1,23,403 ; Benares, Rs. 21 ; Gházipur, Rs. 20,927 ; Ballia, Rs. 8,281 ; Gorakhpur Rs 1,287 ; Naini Tál, Rs. 3,366 ; and Sítápur, Rs. 958.

Deducting remissions, the real balance is Rs. 9,17,900, and making a further deduction of the suspended arrears, the balance is shown as Rs. 3,98,294, or only ·6 per cent. of the gross demand.

15. Of the real balance of Rs. 9,17,900 considerable items are contributed only by the Meerut, Agra, Rohilkhand, Allahabad, and Benares Divisions.

In the Meerut Division the arrears are chiefly arrears of the Aligarh district, Rs. 62,211, of which Rs. 58,805 have been suspended or postponed in the distressed tracts of Háthras, Iglas, and Khair.

In the Agra Division the arrears are due mainly in the Muttra and Agra districts, the two districts most affected by the failure of the monsoon, the balance in the former being Rs. 1,28,840 and in the latter Rs. 45,123. In Muttra the injury to the kharíf necessitated the suspension of Rs. 91,400, and a further failure of the rabi was followed by the remission of Rs. 80,000 and suspension of Rs. 19,300. In the Agra district the balance was postponed by the Collector up to the kharíf of 1308 fasli; and a further postponement will probably be necessary.

In the Rohilkhand Division the chief items outstanding are Rs. 78,070 in Bijnor and Rs. 34,521 in Sháhjáhanpur. In the former district the Collector, taking too serious a view of the damage suffered by the kharíf, applied for the suspension of nearly three lakhs. Ultimately, Government sanctioned the suspension of three-fourths of a lakh; but about Rs. 40,000 of this even were paid within the year. In the Sháhjahánpur district nearly half the current balance is on account of the Powayan tahsíl, in which the assessments have become unduly oppressive. Proposals for remissions in this tahsíl are now under consideration. Of the large balance of Rs. 12,755 in the Sháhjahánpur tahsíl no adequate explanation has been given, and a further report has been called for from the Collector on the subject.

In the Benares Division the arrears are mainly in the Jaunpur and Gházipur districts. The Board had occasion last year to comment unfavourably upon the revenue collections in the Jaunpur district, and during the year now under report have been compelled on several occasions to notice the same state of things. The fact that out of a balance of Rs. 38,236, Rs. 23,598 were realized shortly after the close of the year is alone indicative of a want of vigour in the administration of this district. In Gházipur suspensions to the amount of Rs. 91,514 were sanctioned on account of injury caused to the crops by hail, but there was considerable delay in the submission of proposals. Only some Rs. 21,000 were in fact suspended on this account. Other arrears only amount to Rs. 10,000, and, all things considered, the district (which usually shows a clear balance-sheet at the end of the year) has not done badly.

16. It is the Allahabad Division which is responsible for the largest outstandings—Rs. 4,32,841, or nearly half the total balance in the Provinces. Cawnpore shows a clear balance-sheet. In the other districts the outstandings are—

	Rs.
Fátehpur	64,203
Bánda	40,880
Hamírpur	47,381
Allahabad	1,05,329
Jhánsi	1,27,864
Jalaun	47,184

or 5·95 per cent. of the demand. The Collector of Fatehpur offers no explanation with regard to the arrears in his district; but the Board consider that it is larger than it should have been, and they have already called for an explanation. There is now a prospect of there being more continuity in the administration of this district, and the outstandings will probably be found realizable within a reasonable time. Of the balance in Bánda about Rs. 8,000 have been postponed on account of drought; the rest is due mainly from estates under attachment. The major portion of the balance in Hamírpur is also due from estates under attachment. The district has suffered from a succession of bad seasons, and the cultivated area has contracted, notably in tahsíls Hamírpur, Maudha, and Kulpahár, and undoubtedly it will ultimately be found necessary to propose some remissions. Of the balance of Rs. 1,05,329 outstanding in Allahabad, Rs. 50,424 are suspensions on account of drought and hail. The realizable balance not recovered within the year was, therefore, Rs. 54,905. Collections have not come up to the Board's expectations, but the present year should show a great improvement. In Jhánsi the balance is higher than in Allahabad. In by far the greater number of cases the maháls which suffered in the kharíf suffered also in the rabi, and the Board fear that considerable remissions will be required. Owing to the deficiency of rain in 1899 suspensions to the amount of Rs. 84,651 on account of the kharíf kist were sanctioned, and shortly after the close of the year proposals were received for the suspension of a further sum of Rs. 40,013 out of the rabi demand. In Jalaun the demand was almost exactly the same as in Hamírpur, and the balances in the two districts are almost identical; but annulments of settlement having been more numerous in the former than in the latter, the actual collections in Hamírpur are shown as Rs. 20,000 more than in Jalaun. Both districts were fully assessed, though it is impossible to say that there was any general over-assessment at the time when the assessments were made; but famine followed by deterioration has made the assessments oppressive, and in Jalaun, as in Hamírpur, remissions will be necessary.

§§ 17—23.—Land revenue on the roll Collections on account of outstanding balances.

17. The balance outstanding on account of land revenue on the roll at the end of 1898-99 was Rs. 42,02,791.* From this sum has to be deducted Rs. 7,99,961, Rs. 5,45,226 of which were remissions on account of scarcity and deterioration, Rs. 1,36,550 sums removed owing to annulment of settlement, and Rs. 1,18,185 miscellaneous reductions. The actual amount for collection, therefore, was Rs. 34,02,830.† Of this sum the amount recoverable within the year (i.e. excluding suspensions) was Rs. 30,46,365, and out of this Rs. 24,12,621 (79·2 per cent.) were collected during the year, leaving a balance of Rs. 6,34,244, classified as: doubtful, Rs. 31,450; irrecoverable, Rs. 1,06,498,; nominal, Rs. 60,110; and under recovery Rs. 4,36,186. The suspended arrears amount to Rs. 3,55,965. The balance carried forward, therefore, is Rs. 9,90,209.

18. The Fyzabad Division is absolutely clear, and petty amounts only are outstanding in the Meerut, Gorakhpur, and Kumaun Divisions. In the Benares Division the balance is only about Rs. 11,000, for some Rs. 7,000 of which the Jaunpur district is responsible. In the Agra Division the outstandings are, in Agra Rs. 4,681 and in Muttra Rs. 36,980. The Agra balance is on account of a deteriorated village in the Bah tahsíl, and proposals for remission of a portion there of are under consideration. The Muttra balance (practically all under suspension) is on account of 1304 and 1306 fasli, and the Board agree with the Commissioner that, looking at the relief which has on various occasions been given to this district, a further attempt should be made to realize it. In the Lucknow Division the balance is Rs. 98,741, the greater portion of which is on account of the suspended arrears of the Unao district.

19. The two divisions which show the largest balance are Rohilkhand and Allahabad, the balance in the former being Rs. 2,12,380 and in the latter Rs. 6,22,768. The Rohilkhand balance is due mainly from the Sháhjahánpur district. After deducting Rs. 1,06,498 on account of remissions, the outstanding balance in this district still amounts to about one lakh. Revenue collections here have for some time past been in a condition little short of chaotic. In dealing with the remissions just referred to, the Board may at all events claim to have acted on some fixed principles, and to have taken the first step towards putting things on a more satisfactory footing. It rests with the Commissioner and the Collector to complete what the Board have begun.

* Being Rs. 41,97,807 as detailed in Appendices E-II and E-III of the report for 1898-99, together with a further sum of Rs. 4,984 added by subsequent adjustments.

† For details by districts and divisions, see Appendix A-II.

20. The balances of the Allahabad Division remain to be dealt with. The district balances are as follows :—

	Rs.
Cawnpore	334
Fatehpur	1,03,675
Bánda	28,127
Hamírpur	54,889
Allahabad	3,26,492
Jhánsi	18,432
Jalaun	90,819
Total ...	6,22,768

21. Of the Fatehpur balance Rs. 43,946 were not recoverable during the year under report, so that of the realizable demand Rs. 59,729 remained uncollected at the close of the year. The total amount for recovery on account of outstandings in this district during the year was Rs. 3,19,122, or an addition to the current demand of about 25 per cent. The balance is larger than the Board had hoped that it would be; but it must be allowed that fair progress has been made towards clearing off the arrears. In Bánda and Jhánsi also progress has been made and the balances are not large. Of the Hamírpur balance of Rs. 54,889, four-fifths are due from estates under attachment, many of which are in a deteriorated condition. The propriety of proceeding to severer processes or of granting remissions will be separately considered by the Board. Of the Jalaun balance of Rs. 90,819, Rs. 56,683 are nominal, being the amount to be removed from the roll on account of annulment of settlement.

22. In the Allahabad district the outstanding balance is shown as Rs. 3,26,492, including Rs. 2,07,460 on account of suspensions not due during the year, or without these suspended items Rs. 1,19,032. Of the two lakhs sanctioned for remission during the year Rs. 1,66,505 have been remitted, the Collector keeping in hand the remaining Rs. 33,495 for cases which required further detailed consideration. Allowing for the Rs. 33,495, the balance for collection may be put at Rs. 85,537. The percentage of collections of outstanding balances in this district has fallen from 39 in 1898-99 to 33 in the year under report—a condition of things which the Collector correctly describes as unsatisfactory. The character of the seasons must of course not be overlooked; nor should the fact be lost sight of that the total demand on account of land revenue, cesses, and taqávi has been unusually heavy, and that the collections under all heads have amounted to Rs. 29,62,739 or 1¼ times the average land revenue demand; but even when all this has been taken into account better results—considering the large amount of relief that has been given in this district—might have been expected; and it is not a little disappointing to find that the Commissioner contemplates that it will be necessary to make further remissions estimated at 2¼ lakhs of rupees. The kharíf of the present year has been a good one: the rabi promises to be an unusually good one; and in the opinion of the Board it is premature to consider any question of further remissions in this district at present, except possibly the small outstanding balance on account of 1303 fasli, which it is desirable to have cleared from the accounts.

23. Before leaving this subject it may be as well to show the years on account of which balances (suspended and unsuspended) are still outstanding, and the amounts due on account of each year. The figures are as follows :—

	Rs.
1302 fasli	404
1303 „	26,858
1304 „	5,39,948
1305 „	1,12,393
1306 „	3,10,606
Total ...	9,90,209

The arrears of 1302 fasli are a small sum due in the Hamírpur district, about which the Board have made inquiries. Of the arrears of 1303 fasli, Rs. 22,164 are due from the Allahabad district. The arrears of 1304, 1305, and 1306 fasli are, as will be gathered from what has already been said, principally the arrears of the Allahabad Division and the Sháhjahánpur and Unao districts.

§ 24.—Land-revenue not borne on the roll.

24. The demand on account of land revenue not borne on the roll stood at Rs. 3,94,429, Rs. 3,18,003 of which is due to enhancements declared at the revision of settlement, chiefly in the Meerut, Almora, Sítápur, and Kheri districts. The collections amounted to Rs. 3,82,234 or 96·9 per cent., leaving a balance of Rs. 12,195, of which all but Rs. 496 is in train of liquidation.*

§ 25.—Malikana.

25. The demand on account of malikána, exclusive of remissions, was Rs. 1,97,257, of which Rs. 1,93,282 were collected, leaving a balance of Rs. 3,975 at the close of the year. The total amount for disbursement, including the balance in hand from the previous year, was Rs. 2,15,514. The payments amounted to Rs. 1,85,672, leaving an undisbursed balance at the close of the year of Rs. 29,841, chiefly in the Gorakhpur district.

§§ 26—27.—Canal rates.

26. The insufficient rainfall of the year naturally led to an exceptional demand for canal water, which resulted in a rise in occupiers' rates from Rs. 67,62,926 last year to Rs. 79,70,414 in the year under report. The increase Rs. 12,07,488 is spread over all the canal-irrigated districts except Cawnpore, Jalaun, and Hamírpur. In Cawnpore, in which there is a fall of Rs. 64,558, the decrease is reported to be owing partly to the diminution of the area under sugarcane and rice, and partly to seasonable winter rains. In Jalaun, where there is a fall of Rs. 29,451, it is ascribed to the sudden cessation of the rains and the reduction in the store of water, and a similar explanation is given of the slight fall in Hamírpur. Of the districts which show an increase Bulandshahr comes first, with a rise of Rs. 2½ lakhs, while Meerut, Muzaffarnagar, Aligarh, and Saháranpur each show a rise of between one and two lakhs. The Allahabad district appears for the first time among the canal-irrigated districts, the Manjhanpur tahsíl being now irrigated from the Fatehpur branch of the Lower Ganges Canal. The collections amounted to Rs. 79,38,983 or 99·6 per cent. and Rs. 17,144 were remitted. The actual balance outstanding at the close of the year was only Rs. 14,287. The demand on account of arrears of occupiers' rate was Rs. 19,658, Rs. 18,373 of which were collected.†

27. The demand for owners' rate was Rs. 3,64,353 as against Rs. 3,44,154 in the preceding year. The collections were Rs. 3,60,834 or over 99 per cent. Of the balance, Rs. 2,738 were remitted, leaving Rs. 781 to be recovered after the close of the year. Of the demand on account of arrears of owners' rate (Rs. 777) all but Rs. 5 was realized.‡

§ 28.—Cesses.

28. The demand and collections on account of the various cesses§ were as follows, the first entry against each head being on account of the current demand, and the second on account of outstanding balances:—

			Demand.	Collections.
			Rs.	Rs.
12 per cent. cess	...	...	(1) 51,32,368	50,89,062

† For details, see Appendices A-XVI and A-XVII.
‡ For details, see Appendices A-XVIII and A-XIX.
§ For details, see Appendices A-V to A-XII-B. A-XXII, and A-XXIII.

Of the Rs. 88,719 outstanding on account of arrears of the 12 per cent. cess more than half is due from the Allahabad district alone, about Rs. 20,000 are due from the other districts of the Allahabad Division, and some Rs. 15,000 from the Sháhjahánpur district. The Board hope to see these arrears realized in the current year. The only other point calling for notice is the balance of Rs. 7,394 on account of the Rural Police Rate in Unao, tahsíl Safipur alone being responsible for Rs. 7,238. The explanation given is that in most cases the chaukidárs have hitherto held grants of land in lieu of pay. These grants have so far been neither surrendered nor resumed, and the proprietors considered that they were being required to pay twice over. A special report has been called for on the subject.

§§ 29—34.—Advances (taqavi).

29. Owing chiefly to the early cessation of the monsoon the applications for advances under both the Land Improvement Loans Act and the Agriculturists' Loans Act were very numerous.* Under the former Act 15,784 advances were sanctioned, for amounts aggregating Rs. 2,97,560, all of which was disbursed during the year with the exception of Rs. 7,230. With the addition of Rs. 4,265 on account of advances sanctioned, but undisbursed during the previous year, the total disbursements of the year amount to Rs. 2,94,595, or no less than Rs. 2,29,509 more than the disbursements of 1898-99. In all divisions except Benares, Gorakhpur, Fyzabad, and Kumaun the advances were large, the Agra, Lucknow, and Meerut Divisions receiving the most liberal treatment. Nearly two-thirds of the advances in the Agra Division were advances free of interest. Some Rs. 28,000 were advanced free of interest also in Lucknow: otherwise practically the whole of the advances bear interest. Advances in the Allahabad Division fell a little below Rs. 40,000, Rs. 25,000 of which went to Jhánsi.

30. Under the Agriculturists' Loans Act there was for similar reasons an enormous increase in the advances of the year over those of the preceding year: the figures being Rs. 4,10,764 as against Rs. 1,48,654. To the Allahabad division, Rs. 1,03,000 were allotted; to Agra, Rs. 95,000; to Rohilkhand, Rs. 85,000; and to Meerut, Rs. 57,000.

31. The outstanding balance of loans under Act XIX of 1883 at the close of last year was Rs. 8,69,666, which was increased by the advances of the year to Rs. 11,64,262. The amount falling due within the year was Rs. 4,22,298, and of this Rs. 3,19,025 were realized or remitted, leaving an outstanding balance of Rs. 1,03,273, of which Rs. 72,664 carry interest and Rs. 30,609 do not. The collections and remissions on account of interest amounted to Rs. 51,768 out of Rs. 87,777.

32. Of the special partly-recoverable advances of the famine period Rs. 52,982 were recovered, leaving a balance of Rs. 7,734.

33. The outstanding balance of loans under Act XII of 1884 at the close of 1898-99 was Rs. 8,84,882. With the advances of the year under report, therefore, the total outstandings amounted to Rs. 12,95,646, Rs. 10,26,025 of which fell due during the year. Of this Rs. 5,61,772 were collected or remitted, leaving an outstanding balance of Rs. 4,64,253 at the close of the year. Of Rs. 1,21,070 due on account of interest Rs. 55,936 only were realized during the year.

34. The outstanding balances under both the Land Improvement Act and the Agriculturists' Loans Act on account of the demand up to date, after excluding remissions, are contributed to by nearly every district in the Provinces; but they are nowhere remarkably large except in the Allahabad Division. Here the balances are as follows. The figures include the balances under both Acts, both principal and interest:—

	Rs.
Cawnpore	995
Fatehpur	82,510
Bánda	1,15,490
Hamírpur	35,847
Allahabad	48,279
Jhánsi	8,877

* For details see Appendices C-V to C-VIII.

or a total of Rs. 5,08,684 out of the entire balance of Rs. 16,88,988 of the Provinces. Proposals, more or less definite, have just been received for the remission of Rs. 1,27,000, Rs. 60,000 of which is on account of Jalaun, and for the suspension of a still larger sum, and the Board's recommendations will be submitted to Government in due course.

§ 35.—State properties.

35. Sixty-six estates, petty nazúl properties for the most part, were added to the estates under the Board's supervision in the year under report, bringing the total number of such estates up to 483. The only very extensive estates are the special State properties in the Kumaun Division and the Dúdhi estate in the south of Mirzapur. The total current rental demand amounted to Rs. 8,61,605 as compared with Rs. 8,39,191 in the previous year, being an increase of Rs. 22,414, due mainly to the rise in the forest and other receipts in Kumaun. Including arrears, the total demand was Rs. 9,40,670, of which Rs. 8,52,169 or 90 per cent. were collected. If, however, the Kumaun estates, in which the rental was collected practically in full, are excluded, 74 per cent. of the demand was realized as against 69 per cent. in the preceding year. In the Holagarh and Khargapur escheated estates 71 per cent. of the gross demand was realized. The outstanding balance of Rs. 88,501, is classed as doubtful Rs. 16,749, nominal Rs. 1,666, and irrecoverable Rs. 10,579. After credits to land revenue and rates, there remained Rs. 6,58,425, of which Rs. 3,86,859 were spent on establishment, contingencies, and improvements, leaving a net profit to Government of Rs. 2,71,566 as compared with Rs. 2,52,692 in the preceding year.*

§ 36.—Sale of waste lands, &c.

36. The total demand, inclusive of outstandings, for the price of confiscated, escheated, and waste lands recoverable within the year was Rs. 27,829, of which all but Rs. 84 was collected.†

§ 37.—Miscellaneous Land Revenue.

37. Including outstanding arrears, the total demand on account of miscellaneous land revenue was Rs. 1,24,988, of which all but Rs. 225 was collected. The chief item is receipts from the Mirzapur stone quarries, which amounted to Rs. 68,749 as against Rs. 57,378 in 1898-99, being an increase of Rs. 11,371.‡

§§ 38—39.—Coercive processes.

38. For the recovery of the land revenue and other sums recoverable as land revenue the processes employed were—writs,§ 32,557; arrests, 3,969; attachments of moveables, 11,323; attachments of estates, 1,640; transfers to co-sharers, 105; annulments of settlement, 211; and sales 9: or 49,814 processes in all as compared with 53,180 in the preceding year. Demand slips continued to be issued through patwáris as before; but opinion in general is not in favour of the system. The income from process-fees amounted to Rs. 25,032 out of a demand of Rs. 25,858. The service of writs through the post was again tried without noticeable success: in general processes were executed by the process-serving establishment, the charges on account of which amounted to Rs. 17,398, leaving a surplus income of Rs. 7,634.

39. Writs were used with discretion, and the number of arrests was certainly not excessive. Moveables were attached in over 2,000 cases less than in the previous year, and the number of cases in which it was necessary to proceed to sale was only 8 per cent. of the total number of attachments. Transfers to co-sharers were more freely employed; but the number of such transfers was not large. Sales numbered two more than in the preceding year. The processes which require more particular notice are those of attachment of immoveable property and annulment of settlement.

§ 40—Results of attachment.

40. The 1,640 attachments of immoveable property during the year show a large increase over the 1,202 attachments of the previous year—an increase which is mainly due to the more extended employment of the process in the Allahabad Division, in which there were 1,159 attachments as compared with 335 in the year before. There is an increase of 126 in the Fatehpur district; but the largest rise is in the Allahabad district, where there were 816 attachments in the year under report as against 21 in the preceding year. The number of attachments in this Division was not at all excessive: on the contrary in some of the districts a commoner recourse to it would not only have been justifiable, but would have been expected. Two thousand four hundred seventy two estates in all were under attachment during the year, 1,221 of which were released before the close of the year. The rental demand amounted to Rs. 27,91,618 and the collections to Rs. 11,73,503 (42 per cent.) of which Rs. 11,06,352 were credited against the demand on account of Land Revenue and Cesses.

§ 41.—Results of annulment of settlement.

41. The number of estates under direct management or farm during the year after annulment of settlement was 281, most of them being in the Bundelkhand districts. Collections aggregated Rs. 1,80,308 (44 per cent.) out of a demand of Rs. 4,01,857.* Collections in these estates, as in attached estates, are low owing to so many of them having come under management only a short time before the close of the year: but a considerable proportion of the balance is understood to be irrecoverable. The Board hope to be shortly in a position to address Government on the subject of the annulment policy in Bundelkhand, and therefore refrain from entering upon any discussion of the matter on the present occasion.

§ 42.—Use of revenue money-orders.

42. Remittances of Land Revenue by money-orders amounted to Rs.45,53,103, and remittances of miscellaneous revenue (including items not covered by this report) to Rs. 6,60,638. Land Revenue remittances are about two-thirds of a lakh below those of the previous year, but the number of money-orders issued shows a rise of upwards of 2,000. The rise in miscellaneous revenue money-orders is about one-third of a lakh.

§ 43.—Revenue deposits

43. Out of 27 items amounting to Rs. 2,807, 17 items amounting to Rs. 2,363† were adjusted during the year. Three items of the value of Rs. 2 lapsed to Government in Garhwál during the year.

§ 44.—Alterations in land revenue on the roll.

44. The demand for land revenue on the roll for the year 1900-1901 is Rs. 6,23,35,093.‡ The increase is due chiefly to initial enhancements upon revision of settlement in the Meerut, Bareilly, Sítápur, Kheri, Fyzabad, Bahraich, and Sultánpur districts. There is also an increase due to progressive assessments in Rae Bareli, Partábgarh, and Bara Banki. Altogether the enhancements amount to Rs. 7,23,395. The reductions aggregate Rs. 2,70,745. Rupees 43,089 of this is contributed by the revision of assessments in the Sháhjahánpur district. The only other items which call for notice are reductions of Rs. 74,503, Rs. 40,494, and Rs. 35,906, respectively, in the Jalaun, Hamírpur, and Partábgarh districts on account of removal of revenue from the roll upon annulment of settlement. The net increase, therefore, is Rs. 4,52,650 on the demand of the year under report.

Chapter III—RENT LAW.

§ 45.—Increase of Rent Court work in the North-Western Provinces.

45. In the matter of litigation§ the year has been a record year for the North-Western Provinces, the number of cases before the courts being greatly in excess of the number in any previous year. Suits under the Rent Act, which in the three years next after the passing of the Act averaged about 70,000, in 1898-99 reached in number 124,221, and in the year under report show a further advance of 10,255 to 134,476. Applications under section 95 of the Rent Act, which in 1881-82 numbered 86,092, numbered in the year under report 228,979—an increase of no less than 70,619 on the figures of the preceding year, and an increase of 52,152 on the figures of 1897-98, the highest hitherto reached. Miscellaneous proceedings under the Rent Act also show an increase on the returns of the previous year of 7,620, from 70,755 to 78,375. Adding on proceedings to avert sale, the number of cases instituted in courts of original jurisdiction during the year was 442,195 or 88,544 more than in the preceding year. The increase is mainly under the two heads of suits for arrears of rent and proceedings relating to ejectment.

* For district details see Appendix E-XI.

‡ See Appendix A-XXI.
§ District details are given in Appendices B-I and B-II.

§ 46.—Increase in rent suits.

46. 122,857 suits for arrears of rent were instituted as against 113,200 in the previous year, being a rise of 9,657 or 8·53 per cent. This rise was general throughout the Provinces. In Muzaffarnagar, Pilibhít, and Azamgarh there are slight falls of 24, 11, and 25 respectively, but practically speaking the only districts in the Provinces which show any fall are those districts in the Allahabad and Benares Divisions which returned an unusually large number of rent suits last year, and the only division which shows a fall is the Allahabad Division, where the number has dropped to 2,171. The increase is most marked in the Meerut, Agra, and Rohilkhand Divisions, which show a rise of 3,002, 3,981, and 2,980, respectively. In particular districts special reasons may have contributed to this rise, in Meerut, for instance where the return of the patwáris from settlement work is said to have afforded proprietors the opportunity of getting the details required for their plaints, which it was difficult for them to obtain before; but in Meerut, as elsewhere, the main reason for the increase was the necessity for instituting suits for the arrears of 1896-97, which otherwise would have been barred by the law of limitation—suits which there was every reason to believe would be effective owing to the high prices which tenants were realizing from the sale of their produce. The opportunity was a good one for the employment of pressure by the landlords, and they were not slow to avail themselves of it.

§ 47.—Other proceedings similarly affected.

47. The same causes would produce an increase in the number of distraints, landlords taking these proceedings to realize whatever the law allowed them to realize while the crops were on the ground. This increase in distraints is evidenced in the increased number of applications for the sale of distrained produce, which numbered 45,901* against 41,882 in the preceding year. In the same way co-sharers would be pressed for arrears of revenue, and lambardárs for arrears of profits. Hence suits by lambardárs for arrears of revenue rose 13·75 per cent., suits by co-sharers for revenue paid for other co-sharers 9·55 per cent., and suits for profits 12·36 per cent. Another class of proceedings likely to be affected would be applications for the ejectment of tenants for non-payment of arrears. These cases show a rise from 26,168 to 26,491;† but the increase in these proceedings would be more likely to be shown in the returns for the year following the year in which the arrears were decreed, and a greater increase in these proceedings is probable in 1900-1901.

§§ 48—53.—The increase in ejectment proceedings.

48. For the increase in ejectment proceedings there is practically only one reason. Locally other causes may also have been operative: in Dehra Dún for instance, where the increased value of land owing to the opening of the Dehra-Hardwár Railway is said to have led landlords to take more ejectment proceedings than usual. In the Bundelkhand portion of the Allahabad Division the ejectments are largely due to the desire of landlords to get rid of tenants who will not pay as they should pay after the prevailing rise in prices, or to enhance their rents, or to induce payment of arrears. In other places, again, the approach of settlement may have been a not unimportant factor. Broadly speaking, however, the explanation of the increase in ejectment proceedings is the general unrest caused by the impending tenancy legislation. Aware of the improvement in the position of tenants which it is the object of the Tenancy Bill now before the Provincial Legislative Council to secure, and entertaining hazy and generally exaggerated notions of the changes which the passing of that Bill into law would effect, the landlords have availed themselves of the time which remains to them for a larger exercise of the powers for ejectment which the present Rent Act confers upon them. An increase in ejectment proceedings is probably a necessary concomitant of any scheme of tenancy reform, inasmuch as such proceedings form one of the modes in which the question of the status of a tenant is brought to issue; and the effect of the action of the landlords has to a great extent been merely to do in one year what would otherwise have taken several years for its performance; but none the less this action has afforded an exhibition of anti-tenant feeling which cannot be regarded with complacency.

* For details see Appendix B-IIA.
† For details see Appendix B-II.

49. The extent to which notices of ejectment have been issued in the various districts is within certain limits a pretty clear index of the character of the relations between landlords and tenants in those districts, and serves to accentuate the remarks which the Board have recorded, in previous reports, on this subject, and on the necessity for strengthening the tenants' hands against powerful and oppressive landlords. The total number of notices of ejectment issued under section 36 of the Rent Act was 94,283 as against 59,081 in 1898-99—an increase of close upon 60 per cent*.

50. To this increase every division contributes, and every district within every division with the exception of the four districts of Muttra, Bijnor, Pilibhít, and Ballia, which show decreases of 291, 610, 82, and 240 respectively. Agricultural depression would account for the exception in Muttra, and an unusual number of notices last year and poor harvests in Bijnor is given as the explanation in that district. The drop in Pilibhít scarcely calls for notice; and the Ballia decrease, though not commented on by either the Commissioner or the Collector, is probably due to the action, or rather inaction, of the Dumraon estate. The greatest increase is in the Meerut Division, where the number rose from 14,847 to 35,609—an advance of nearly 140 per cent., spread over the districts in the following manner :—

Dehra Dún	189	438	131·75 per cent.
Saháranpur	1,891	3,742	97·88 „
Muzaffarnagar	3,259	6,406	96·56 „
Meerut	3,680	12,849	249·16 „
Bulandshahr	3,325	8,247	148·03 „
Aligarh	2,503	3,927	56·89 „

51. The number of notices issued in this division is more than the number in the Agra and Rohilkhand Divisions taken together, the former showing 17,147, or an increase of 35·56 per cent., and the latter showing 18,406, or an increase of 24·50 per cent.; while in the other divisions the figures are, Allahabad, 9,104 notices—a rise of 60·09 per cent.; Benares, 6,104, a rise of 11·75 per cent.; and Gorakhpur, 7,913, a rise of 40·00 per cent. The number of notices in the two divisions last mentioned is still comparatively small. In the Allahabad Division, as already noticed, there was another motive for increased ejectments besides the anticipated changes in the Tenancy Law; but this motive was the least operative in the districts which show the largest number of notices issued, viz. in Cawnpore and Allahabad each with a rise of about 59 per cent. This is not the highest percentage of increase in the division; but in the districts in which the highest percentages are shown, the number of notices is still very small, being in Jalaun only 656 and in Hamírpur 415.

52. In by far the greater number of instances the notices were notices which landlords were strictly within their rights in issuing. In only 20,383 out of the 94,283 cases was the notice contested, or in 5,096 cases (33⅓ per cent.) more than in the previous year; but the percentage of notices contested to the number of notices issued was actually 4 per cent. lower than it was in 1898-99. In 9,248 cases or in 46 per cent. only as against 49 per cent. in the previous year were tenants either wholly or partially successful. The number of these cases disposed of within the year was 20,132 and the number pending was 251. Taking, then, the number of notices exclusive of those in respect of which proceedings under section 39 were pending, it is found that in 84,784 out of 94,032 cases either no action was taken to contest the notice, or there was no valid ground for the action taken.

53. Proceedings to enforce ejectment were taken in 68,969 cases*† as against 42,203 cases in 1898-99, and in a year like that under report it may be assumed that landlords almost universally took the precaution to proceed under section 40. No return is prepared of the area from which ejectments take place; but the average area covered by a notice of ejectment (which has been fairly constant for some years) is 5·29 acres—an average which agrees fairly closely with the average areas in respect of which notices were either successfully or unsuccessfully contested—and it may be taken that the average area from which a tenant was ejected was 5·29 acres. The notices of ejectment issued in the year under report, therefore, led or will lead to ejectments from 364,846 acres. The total area in respect of which such notices might be issued is according to the latest returns 10,867,654 acres. The proportion of tenancies, therefore, in this area, dislocated by the action of landlords under the ejectment provisions during the year, was 3·36 per cent. The total tenant area of the Provinces is returned at 21,097,535 acres and the percentage of this area affected was 1·25 per cent.

§§ 54—56.—Increase in notices of relinquishment.

54. It is at first sight astonishing to find that in a year in which landlords have had such an unusual recourse to the issue of notices for the termination of tenancies, there should have been likewise an unusual increase in the number of the corresponding proceedings taken by tenants for the termination of tenancies, namely, notices of relinquishment. The explanation lies in the fact that this is in many instances but another method taken by landlords to secure a break in the continuity of tenants' holdings. Landlords have brought pressure to bear upon tenants to induce them to file these notices in order to avoid the trouble and expense of ejectment proceedings. This was particularly the case in the Meerut Division, where the number of such notices rose from 2,651 in 1898-99 to 7,248 in the year under review. The component district figures being for—

Meerut	797	3,134
Bulandshahr	532	1,960
Aligarh	938	811

These figures are instructive and afford another indication of the methods practised by powerful landlords in this division. In no other division was there anything like such an increase though the rise has been considerable in the Agra, the Rohilkhand, and the Gorakhpur Divisions in which the figures rose respectively from 3,656, 4,025, and 702 to 4,823, 5,783, and 1,113. In the Agra district the rise (from 556 to 1,031) is said by the Commissioner to reflect the unfavourable character of the year. If this be so, it is remarkable that in a district which suffered so much as Muttra the rise should be almost nominal (from 1,360 to 1,411). In Mainpuri, where the number of notices was nearly doubled, the increase is stated not to be the outcome of poor agricultural conditions. It seems not improbable that in the other districts of this division, as the Collector reports to have been the case in Etáwah, the notices were merely nominal transactions; in other words, notices of the same type as those of the Meerut Division. Of the rise in the Rohilkhand Division no general explanation is given; but the same procedure has probably been had recourse to here, and is actually noted to have been followed in the Moradabad district, where the number of notices rose from 2,059 to 3,001. The percentage of increase in the Gorakhpur Division is high; but the total number of notices (1,113, to which Azamgarh contributes only 81) is still surprisingly small. The rise in the Benares Division is too small to call for notice.

55. The only division which shows a marked fall in the number of notices of relinquishment is the Allahabad Division (from 15,933 to 11,621), to which every district in the division has contributed. Even after this fall, however, the number is still about equal to the combined figures of the Agra, Rohilkhand, and Gorakhpur Divisions. Now, that prices are continuing so high as to afford a higher rate of profit than has been known before (to use the Commissioner's words), the tenants are not so willing to throw up land which they hope to be able to cultivate, paying no rent for fallow land meanwhile. In fact, as is evidenced by the ejectment figures for this division, the tenant no longer has it all his own way, and it is the landlord who is taking the initiative towards the termination of tenancies.

* For district details see Appendix B-III.
† For district details see Appendix B-IIA.

56. The fall in the number of notices of relinquishment is accompanied by a fall in the same division in the number of applications to declare such notices invalid from 578 to 285; but even with this fall, the number of such cases in this division is two and-a-half times as many as in all the other divisions in the Provinces put together.

57. In the number of applications for enhancement of rent* there has also been a marked rise, the number filed during the year being 9,719 as compared with 6,854 in 1898-99—an increase of 2,865. There has been a considerable increase in the Benares Division, and the figures for the Rohilkhand Division are high owing to the large number of applications which the Budaun district continues to return (nearly one-third of the provincial total); but the largest increase is in Meerut Division, the Bulandshahr district alone being responsible for 1,983 out of the 3,276 cases in the division, or 1,186 more than in the preceding year. No explanation is given of this marked increase; but it is presumably another phase of the anti-tenant campaign in that district.

§ 58.—Increase in Rent Court work in Oudh.

58. In Oudh also there has been an increase in the number of cases instituted under the Rent Act,† the number of suits having risen from 37,061 in 1898-99 to 39,912 in 1899-1900—an advance of 2,851, while the increased activity in ejectment proceedings is shown by the return of 19,626 applications for the service of notices as against 17,943 in the preceding year. Including all miscellaneous proceedings corresponding to those registered under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, the total number of cases instituted was 81,427 as against 79,394 in 1898-99.

§ 59.—Increase in suits for arrears of rent.

59. Of the 39,912 suits instituted 28,738 are suits for arrears of rent, an increase of 451 on the number returned in 1898-99. The increase is not so general as in the North-Western Provinces, there being a rise of 1,328 in the Lucknow Division and a fall of 877 in the Fyzabad Division. This fall, however, is mainly due to a drop of 656 in the Gonda district in which there was an unusually large number of institutions last year. The desire to save the arrears which would otherwise have been time-barred is the reason generally assigned in the districts which show a rise for the increase in the number of suits. This is particularly noticeable in the Hardoi district, where 915 more suits were instituted than in 1898-99.

§ 60.—Other proceedings similarly affected.

60. The rise in the number of applications for ejectment on account of arrears from 4,747 to 5,615 is also similarly explained. The rise in the number of cases connected with distraint from 435 to 518 points in the same direction; and the same reason no doubt is to be assigned for the rise in suits by co-sharers for profits from 785 to 1,030, and in suits by lambardárs for arrears of revenue from 1,314 to 1,598.

§§ 61—62.—Increase in ejectment proceedings.

61. Though the same disturbing forces were not at work in Oudh as in the North-Western Provinces, it is noticeable that the rise in rent suits has been accompanied in Oudh also by a distinct rise in the number of ejectment proceedings.‡ The number of suits for ejectment rose from 879 to 1,146. The number of notices of ejectment served without fee on tenants' holding under registered leases shows a fall from 1,005 to 700; but otherwise there has been an increase in the number of notices under every head: the notices served on payment of fee on statutory tenants rising from 5,568 to 5,959; those served on the heirs of statutory tenants from 1,946 to 2,170, and other notices served without fee from 4,677 to 5,182. The total number of notices served was 14,011 as against 13,196 in the previous year. Various reasons are assigned for the increase; but it seems not improbable that these notices were largely used to bring pressure upon tenants to pay up arrears. Ejectment actually took place in only 131,623 acres out of the 468,036 acres affected by the notices. The number of applications for assistance to eject rose from 7,381 to 8,563. The rise in the number of applications for ejectment on account of arrears of rent has already been noticed.

* For district details see Appendix B-II

62. Suits to contest notices of ejectment numbered 3,699 as against 3,428 in the previous year; suits for compensation for illegal ejectment from 95 to 113; and suits for the recovery of occupancy from 1,351 to 2,307. The rise in this last description of suits is most marked and is fairly general. It is to be ascribed, as the Commissioner of Lucknow remarks, to the return of prosperity and to a keen desire on the part of tenants to recover their holdings. This is borne out by the drop in the number of notices of relinquishment during the year from 9,244 to 7,153.

§ 63.—Enhancement of rent.

63. The number of suits for enhancement of rent rose from 42 to 71; but the number of notices of enhancement shows a fall, there being only 221 as against 272 in the previous year.* Only 24 suits to contest notices of enhancement were instituted, in 13 of which the tenants were successful. The average rate of enhancement was about 6 per cent. For lands from which tenants were ejected under notice an average enhancement of about 21 per cent. was obtained.

§ 64.—Proceedings for the recovery of under-proprietary rent.

64. Proceedings for the recovery of arrears of rent under the special provisions of the Oudh Land Revenue Act may be appropriately considered here, as forming a portion of the tenancy litigation of the year. Last year 1,204 applications were made under section 158. This year 2,110 were filed. There were special reasons for this increase which need not be noticed here. In all there were 2,625 cases for disposal. 2,494 cases were disposed of, leaving 131 in which proceedings for recovery of arrears were pending at the end of the year. The actual sum recovered during the year was about Rs. 3,54,000 and the balance for recovery was Rs. 70,000.†

§ 65.—Suits in Kumaun.

65. The number of suits under the Kumaun rules shows a slight rise from 730 to 757.‡ The suits were mainly suits for the recovery of arrears of revenue or rent, and the figures call for no particular remark.

§ 66—Action taken to avert sale of land in execution of decrees of Revenue Courts.

66. The results of action taken by Collectors to avert the sale of lands in execution of decrees of Revenue Courts may be briefly noticed.§ In the North-Western Provinces, including cases pending from the previous year, there were 536 applications for sale of land under decrees of Revenue Courts, of which 365 were filed during the year as against 315 in 1898-99, the largest number as usual belonging to the Agra Division. Three hundred and seventy-eight cases were disposed of, in 94 of which sale was averted and 284 were reported for sanction to sale. Out of the 239 cases in which sanction to sale was accorded sale actually took place in 102 cases. In Oudh decrees were taken out in 887 cases as against 967 in the preceding year. Sale was averted in 200 cases and sanctioned in 407 out of 412 reported for sanction. In 246 of these sale actually took place, and the remaining 161 cases were otherwise disposed of.

§ 67.—Work of Settlement courts

67. In dealing with the litigation in connection with agricultural tenancies, it is apt to be overlooked how largely this litigation is supplemented by proceedings in the Settlement Courts.|| In the year under report there were 26,792 cases dealing with questions of tenant status before the Settlement Courts, 20,294 of which were disposed of. There were also 9,514 cases of enhancement, abatement or determination of rent, 3,605 of which were disposed of. Altogether Settlement Courts had to deal with 36,306 cases within the cognizance of Rent Courts, all in the North-Western Provinces.*

§ 68–70.—Disposal of cases.

68. Including the cases pending from the preceding year, the total number of cases for disposal by the ordinary District Courts of original jurisdiction in the North-Western Provinces (excluding Kumaun) was 462,758 as compared with 377,844 in 1898-99, leaving out of consideration altogether applications for execution of decrees, no returns of which are furnished. The corresponding figures for Oudh are 86,620 as compared with 83,408 in 1898-99. The Kumaun figures are, in 1898-99, 856 and in 1899-1900, 879. The pending file at the end of the year in the North-Western Provinces (excluding Kumaun) contained 29,671 items, that in Oudh 2,904 items, and that in Kumaun 118 items, as compared with 20,563, 3,083, and 122, respectively, in the previous year. The percentage of cases remaining undisposed of to the total number for disposal was 6·41, 3·35, and 13·42, respectively.

69. Proceedings in the North-Western Provinces and in Oudh are not uniformly tabulated: thus in the North-Western Provinces applications for service of ejectment notices are shown as applications, and the period of their duration is calculated, whereas in Oudh such applications are merely shown as notices of ejectment and no period is calculated. In the North-Western Provinces the duration of miscellaneous proceedings is given; in Oudh it is not. In the North-Western Provinces the miscellaneous cases disposed of with and without contest are separately shown; in Oudh there is no such distinction. It is not possible, therefore, to show accurately either the number of cases disposed of ex-parte, or the duration of the two classes of cases. An approximately correct return can, however, be arrived at, and this shows that in the North-Western Provinces 379,654 cases, in Oudh 63,985 cases, and in Kumaun 462 cases were disposed of without contest: equivalent to 87·66, 76·43, and 60·71 per cent. of the total number of cases disposed of, and leaving as the percentages disposed of with contest 12·34, 23·57, and 39·29, respectively.

70. Notwithstanding the increased amount of work for disposal in the North-Western Provinces, the average duration of cases is on the whole slightly less than the duration of last year. Contested suits this year averaged one month and 20 days as against one month and 18 days last year, and uncontested suits show the same duration (27 days), but contested applications show an improvement from two months 13 days to two months 11 days and uncontested applications from one month 12 days to one month 11 days. In miscellaneous contested proceedings there has been a rise from one month 27 days to two months one day; but a fall in miscellaneous uncontested proceedings from 23 to 22 days. In Oudh contested suits show a duration of one month 18 days in lieu of one month 13 days given last year, and uncontested suits a duration of 29 in lieu of 27 days. Work has been generally disposed of with commendable despatch. †

§ 71-74.—Work of Appellate Courts.

71. The number of appeals to Collectors or Deputy Commissioners filed during the year was 4,647 as against 4,523 in the previous year. The total number of appeals for disposal was 5,000, of which 4,598 were decided during the year. The average duration of appeals was one month and six days. The percentage of the decrease or orders confirmed is 60 per cent., or about 4 per cent. better than it was in the previous year.‡

72. Appeals to Judges numbered 2,152, the number filed in 1898-99 being 2,085. Including 1,648 cases pending from the previous year there were 3,800 appeals for disposal, of which 2,654 were decided, the average duration being 10 months and 23 days in the North-Western Provinces and four months and six days in Oudh. The decrees of the Lower Courts were upheld in 57 per cent. of the appeals disposed of.§

73. Appeals to Commissioners show a slight fall from 5,841 to 5,744. The total number for disposal during the year was 7,566. Commissioners disposed of 5,106 appeals, the average duration being three months and 12 days and transferred 497 appeals to Collectors. The number of appeals received in transfer for disposal by Collectors was in all 651—553 in the Meerut Division and 98 in the Benares Division. The latter were all disposed of, and 84 cases were left pending in the Meerut Division. There has been a general fall in the number of appeals summarily rejected, the number having dropped from 259 to 118 in the Meerut Division and from 109 to 53 in the Rohilkhand Division. The percentage of cases in which the orders of the Lower Courts were upheld was 73 per cent.—an improvement of 5 per cent. upon the results of 1898-99. The worst results are those in the Allahabad Division, where under 62 per cent. of orders were upheld and in the Lucknow Division, where 65 per cent. were upheld. The percentage of orders reversed (24) in the former division is more than double what it is in three of the other divisions, half as much again as it is in the remaining two divisions, and more than 6 per cent. higher than it was in the preceding year. The percentage of remands is low; but the percentage of cases in which orders were modified is about three times the average of the other divisions. Remands are abnormally high in the Meerut (13 per cent.) and Rohilkhand (12 per cent.) Divisions, the average for other divisions being about 8 per cent.*

74. In appeal the Board had to deal with 486 cases under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act and 255 cases under the Oudh Rent Act; 407 of the former and 173 of the latter were disposed of, the average duration of the North-Western Provinces appeals being 2 months and 20 days and the average duration of the Oudh appeals 4 months and 15 days. In revision under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act they had to deal with 1,558 cases, 1,290 of which were disposed of, the average duration being 2 months and 14 days. The percentage of cases in which the orders of the Lower Courts were disturbed was, in appeal 11 per cent. and in revision 10 per cent. There were 31 appeals for disposal under the Kumaun Rules, 20 of which were disposed of, the average duration being 2 months and 22 days. In one case the order of the Lower Court was disturbed.

§ 75.—Deposits of rent.

75. Three matters remain to be noticed before this chapter can be closed, viz. the deposit of rents in Court, the employment of money-orders for the remittance of rent, and the use of printed rent-receipts. As to the first of these matters, the number of deposits was 903 as against 787 in the previous year, and the amount deposited Rs. 68,121 as against Rs. 45,830. The greater part of the increase is due to deposits in Oudh, which, again, is explained mainly by four large deposits on account of one estate in the Sitápur district. There has been a considerable drop in Bulandshahr, and a general rise throughout the Allahabad Division; but, generally speaking, there is nothing that calls for comment in detail. Including the unadjusted items standing over from the previous year Rs. 81,443 had to be dealt with, of which Rs. 64,247 were adjusted during the year.†

§ 76.—Rent money-orders.

76. Secondly, as to the use of money-orders for the remittance of rent. The amounts so remitted during the year are returned at Rs. 9,88,902 as against Rs. 9,31,190 in 1898-99. The only remarkable drop is in Bijnor, where these remittances amounted to Rs. 87,430 or Rs. 40,556 less than in 1898-99. This is explained by the character of the harvests, less money being remitted as the tenants had less money to remit. In some districts though the amounts remitted are less, the number of orders issued are more. The explanation given of the general increase is the greater friction which exists between landlords and tenants, and it is a noticeable fact that money-order payments are used more in the Bulandshahr district (Rs. 1,15,859) than in any other district in the Provinces, about one-eighth of the total rental money-order remittances passing through the Bulandshahr Post Offices; the increase during the year being Rs. 21,411, while in the Meerut district (the next highest after Bijnor) the remittances are Rs. 61,630—25 per cent. higher than in 1898-99. The only other large rise is in the Farrukhabad district, where there is an increase of Rs. 12,242. The increase here, however, is said to be due to settlement operations being in progress. The tenants have to look after their interests in the Settlement Courts, and use money-orders to save time, and to make sure of receipts which, at a time when the patwáris are unable to give much attention to their annual papers, they might otherwise have to go without.

§ 77.—Printed receipts for rent.

77. Lastly, as to the giving of printed receipts for rent. It is generally reported that these receipts are gaining in popularity, and that numerous private presses are engaged in printing the skeleton forms. It is the larger zamíndárs, however, who generally make use of these receipts, petty landlords preferring scraps of paper or giving no written receipts whatever.

Chapter IV.—SURVEY, SETTLEMENT, AND LAND RECORDS.

§ 78—80.—Surveys.

78. The Provincial surveys have continued under the supervision of Mr. G. B. Scott. Traverse surveys were carried on in Etáwah, Etah, Mainpuri, Gonda, and Jalaun and in certain villages in Aligarh and Kheri, the total area traversed being 2,753 square miles, and the expenditure Rs. 69,376 or Rs. 25·2 per square mile.

79. In the cadastral section the revision of maps and records was completed in Pilibhít, continued in Farrukhabad, Gonda, and Azamgarh and commenced in Etah, Etáwah, and Mainpuri: 152 villages in Aligarh and 27 in Kheri were also surveyed. The total area surveyed was 3,882 square miles and the expenditure Rs. 2,61,903, or Rs. 67·46 per square mile exclusive of Rs. 50,092 on account of headquarters establishments.

80. In the cartographical section, the maps of Sháhjahánpur have been completed, and good progress made with the maps of Bareilly, Bahraich, Kheri, and Meerut. The cost has been Rs. 15,108.

§ 81.—Oudh settlements.

81. In the past year, on the receipt of the final report, the settlement of the Fyzabad district has been confirmed by Government. The Sandíla revisions in the Hardoi district have been completed, but the report was not received until after the close of the year. In Kheri the inspection and assessment of the seven remaining paganas of the district have been completed, and the assessments of two parganas, Kukra Mailani and Bhur, sanctioned. The revised assessments of the remaining five parganas were reported for sanction after the close of the year. In Gonda Mr. H. R. C. Hailey has, since his appointment as Settlement Officer in December 1899, inspected and assessed parganas Paharapur and Gonda; but the reports were not received until after the close of the year.

§ 82.—N.-W. P. settlements.

82. The final settlement report of the Budaun district is still awaited. The fairing of records in Bijnor has been completed. In Meerut, parganas Meerut and Bághpat were inspected and assessed, and the settlement work of the district practically completed. In Sháhjahánpur the work of inspection and assessment has been completed. Attestation work has also been practically finished; but a great deal of fairing and other work still remains to be done. In Bareilly, tahsíls Bareilly and Mírganj were inspected and assessed, and attestation work completed for the whole district. The fairing work is also well advanced. The Settlement Officer has also been placed in charge of the settlement of tahsíl Bisalpur in the Pilibhít district, in which the attestation work has made some advance. In Farrukhabad Mr. H. J. Hoare, since assuming charge as Settlement Officer in November 1899, has inspected and assessed the Kaimganj tahsíl. Aligarh was brought under settlement in October 1899, and Mr. W. J. D. Burkitt appointed Settlement Officer. Attestation work has been nearly completed in tahsíl Aligarh, and is in progress in tahsíls Atrauli, Khair, and Iglas. Aligarh tahsíl was inspected, and the rent-rates reported. In Almora, the survey and attestation work of Káli Kumaun (so far as undertaken) was completed and the pargana inspected and assessed. Mr. Goudge has also been placed in charge of the settlement of the hill pattis of the Naini Tal district, and attestation work there has made some progress. *

§ 83.—Extension of settlement.

83. The settlements of the Etáwah and Fatehpur districts have been extended for 10 years.

§ 84.—Forecasts.

84. The prospects of a revision of settlement in the Cawnpore and Allahabad districts have been considered, and the Board have submitted their recommendations to Government.

§ 85.—Work of Settlement Courts.

85. Part of the case work of Settlement Courts has already been referred to. In all, Settlement Courts in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh had to dispose of 70,929 original cases, and disposed of 52,098 within the year, those remaining for decision being principally enhancement cases. Appeals to Settlement Officers numbered 1,314, of which 872 were disposed of. Commissioners disposed of 332 out of the 389 appeals filed before them.†

§ 86.—Cost of settlement operations.

86. The aggregate cost of settlement operations during the year amounted to Rs. 4,08,894.‡

§ 87.—Patwaris.

87. The work of patwáris§ has received careful supervision during the year, and the inspection of circles by District Officers and their assistants has generally been carried out in a methodical manner. The examination of village papers has shown that accuracy has generally been attained, and the instances in which concealment of rents has been detected have not been numerous. Judging the qualifications of patwáris from the examination returns, there would appear to have been a great improvement in recent years, there being now under 4 per cent. of the patwáris in the Provinces who have not passed the prescribed examination or been exempted from passing it. In the matter of securing residence within circles there has also been progress: 10 per cent. only being non-resident in the North-Western Provinces and 20 per cent. in Oudh. There will no doubt be a further improvement in Oudh when the reallocation of patwári circles, now under consideration, has been carried out.

§ 88.—Kanungos.

88. The work done by kanúngos has been satisfactory. Twenty four kanúngos have officiated in higher posts during the year, but for two years past no permanent promotions have been given to kanúngos. There has been some difficulty in providing for the suitable recognition of good work by supervisor kanúngos; but this has now been obviated by the grant of special allowances to men of long and approved service.

§ 89.—Patwari Funds.

89. The Patwári Funds show during the year a falling off of Rs. 1,40,295 in receipts and an increase of Rs. 63,401 in charges, resulting in a deficit of Rs. 80,575 as compared with a surplus of Rs. 1,23,121 in the previous year. On the 31st March 1900, the North-Western Provinces fund showed a surplus of Rs. 3,92,926, and the Oudh fund a deficit of Rs. 1,16,089.

Chapter V.—GENERAL.

§§ 90—91.—Mutations in the Revenue Registers.

90. Of the work of Revenue Courts of original jurisdiction under the Land Revenue Acts no returns are furnished except in connection with mutation proceedings and with partitions. The total number of mutations made in proprietary registers was 150,801, 6,086 being in pursuance of decrees of Court and 144,715 resulting from private transfers, the number in either case not being very different from the number returned in 1898-99. Sales by order of Court numbered 3,922, and by private contract 26,368; mortgages 19,718, and redemptions of mortgages 6,768. Succession cases are returned at 83,648. ||

91. The penalties levied under section 97, Act XIX of 1873, and section 64, Act XVII of 1876, amounted to Rs. 57,512 against Rs 63,112 in 1898-99.

* The exact position of the work in each district under Settlement is shown in Appendix D-I. The assessments declared during the year are shown in Appendix D-II.

† Appendices D-III and D-IV give the details.

‡ Details are given in Appendix D-V.

§ The Director's Report is in accordance with precedent appended to this Report.

|| District details are given in Appendix C-III.

§ 92.—Partitions of mahals.

92. In 1898-99 a fall in the number of partition cases in the North-Western Provinces and a rise in the number in Oudh were noted: and in the year under report there has been a further fall in the North-Western Provinces and a further rise in Oudh. Altogether there were 4,008 cases for disposal, of which 2,108 were disposed of during the year, the number of partitions actually carried out being 1,290. The heaviest files of perfect partition cases were those of the Sultánpur, Budaun, and Moradabad districts, with 275, 251, and 191 cases respectively. In Budaun no less than 193 cases were instituted during the year. Applications for imperfect partitions were most numerous in Almora and Garhwál, the former district showing 254 cases for disposal and the latter 118. The pending files at the close of the year were heaviest in Budaun and Almora. The two oldest cases are those noted in the last year's report. The effect of the partitions carried out during the year has been to increase the number of mahâls by 3,059, and the number of pattis by 648.*

§§ 93—95.—Work of appellate Courts under the Land Revenue Acts.

93. Appeals to Collectors and Deputy Commissioners under the Land Revenue Acts numbered 3,086, and the total number for decision including those pending from the previous year was 4,151, of which 3,822 were disposed of within the year. The largest number of such appeals was in Gorakhpur (275), Aligarh following with 244 and Moradabad with 203. †

94. Appeals to Commissioners were most numerous in Meerut (491), Fyzabad (397), and Agra (373). The total number for disposal (excluding settlement cases) was 2,670, and 433 were pending when the year closed—121 in the court of the Commissioner of Meerut.†

95. Appeals to the Board under the North-Western Provinces Revenue Act numbered 226; 191 cases were disposed of, in 17 of which the orders of Lower Courts were disturbed. Appeals under the Oudh Land Revenue Act numbered 157; 154 of which were disposed of, in 12 of which the orders of the Lower Courts were disturbed. The average duration of the appeals decided for the North-Western Provinces was 2 months 6 days and for Oudh, 1 month 16 days. 395 cases came before the Board in revision from the North-Western Provinces, 358 of which were disposed of: the orders of the Lower Courts being disturbed in 17 cases. Oudh Revision cases numbered 72; 69 of which were disposed of, orders of Lower Courts being disturbed in 1 case. The average duration was respectively one month 18 days and one month two days. Appeals from the Family Domains of the Mahárája of Benares numbered 31, all of which were disposed of, the average duration being two months six days. Orders of Lower Courts were disturbed in 5 cases.

§ 96.—Acquisition of land.

96. Of the 2,342 acres of land acquired for public purposes in the year under review, 2,036 acres were taken up permanently and the rest temporarily: an average of Rs. 203-14-2 per acre being paid for the former and an average of Rs. 13-3-2 per acre for the latter. The total amount of compensation was Rs. 4,19,150: and the reduction in the land revenue demand amounted to Rs. 3,141. In only 7 cases decided prior to 1st October 1899, did the compensation remain unpaid. In three cases land was acquired without recourse being had to the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act.‡

§ 97.—Management of estates attached by order of Civil or Rent Courts

97. The number of estates at the commencement of the year, of which District Officers actually held charge under orders of court, was 103. Fifty-nine were taken charge of during the year and 32 released, leaving 130 under management at the close of the year. The rental demand including arrears was Rs. 4,06,760, of which Rs. 2,19,752 or 54 per cent. were collected. One estate, however, that of Saifabad in the Partábgarh district, was released about a month after the opening of the year. Leaving this estate out of consideration, 82 per cent. of the demand was realized as compared with 83 per cent. in the preceding year. The total sum available for expenditure, including the opening cash balance and miscellaneous receipts, was Rs. 2,94,794. Out of this amount Rs. 1,67,802 were disbursed for charges inclusive of revenue and proprietors' allowances, and Rs. 40,349 were paid into court towards the liquidation of debts. The debts on the estates held at the close of the year amount to Rs. 6,34,404. The cost of management of the several estates falls at an average at 8 per cent. on the collections as against 7 per cent. in the previous year.*

§ 98.—Jhansi Encumbered Estates.

98. No advance was made during the year. Nine accounts were closed by regular payment of instalments, and one by the amount due being paid up in a lump sum. The number of accounts opened was 57; 9 relating to estates under attachment for arrears of loans. Sale has in one case been sanctioned by the Board. The collections during the year were satisfactory.

§ 99.—Applications for the guardianship of minors.

99. With the exception of a small sum advanced by the Collector of Etah, no expenditure was incurred during the year by District Officers in respect of applications under section 8, Act VIII of 1890, for the guardianship of minors succeeding to landed estates.

§ 100.—Hamírpur forests.

100. Some shooting by persons without passes in the Hamírpur forests is reported; but otherwise there is nothing to report regarding these areas. They were duly inspected during the year.

§ 101.—Territorial changes.

101. The only changes that took place during the year were the transfer of two villages from the Bijnor to the Muzaffarnagar district, and two from the Moradabad to the Bulandshahr district under the deep stream rules.

§ 102.—Boundary pillars.

102. Boundary pillars and survey stations were duly inspected during the year and steps taken to carry out the necessary repairs.

§ 103.—Maps.

103. The Board have again to notice the small progress made by the Roorkee College Press in the reproduction of the revised tahsíli and district maps. During the year under report the maps of the Garautha and Mau tahsíls, and of the Garhwál, Gorakhpur, and Mirzapur districts were published, and when the year closed the College Press had on hand for reproduction 29 tahsíli and 13 district maps, of which 12 of the former and 5 of the latter, were forwarded by this office during 1899-1900. It was reported last year that proposals for the increase of his establishment were under consideration by the Principal; but presumably no increase has taken place during the year under report.

§ 104.—Arrangement, inspection, and weeding of revenue records.

104. Of the 1,433,838 files that should have been sent into record-rooms during the year under report, all but 65,732 were actually deposited, the number of undeposited files being nowhere very large except in Gorakhpur (where the number is somewhat higher than usual) and in Sháhjahánpur (where the files are for the most part settlement files). Of the files deposited, 1,360,254 were registered and arranged; and of the 203,755 bundles to be inspected and weeded, all were dealt with except 11,679, there being any considerable arrears of work only in the Agra and Gorakhpur record-rooms.†

§ 105.—Total work of district offices.

105. The work of English Offices,‡ as shown by the registered receipts and issues, is less than it was in 1896-97, being 402,316 items as compared with 438,302 in that year, but otherwise it is heavier than it has ever been, and shows an increase of 100,000 items on the work of 1894-95. The other work done in district offices is 55,000 items higher than it was in 1896-97, the total being 1,672,012 as compared with 1,617,056 in the earlier year. The work of the year is in fact heaviest on record, and is 118,000 items heavier than it was five years ago.

§ 106.—Increase of work in Commissioners' offices.

106. No returns are furnished of the work in Commissioners' offices, but work has increased enormously of late years, and Commissioners' establishments are now insufficient to cope with it properly. Returns have been called for with the object of putting these establishments upon a more adequate footing.

* For details, see Appendix E-XII.
† District details are given in Appendix C-IX.
‡ For details see Appendix C-IX.

§ 107.—Increase of work in the Board's office.

107. Work in the Board's office has also increased. The receipts and issues of the year number 52,412 or 3½ times what they were fifty years ago, and about twice what they were five-and-twenty years ago; but there has been nothing like a proportionate increase in the office staff. The question of revising the establishment is being dealt with.

§ 108.—The Board's Report.

108. The Board have had under consideration for some time the advisability of reducing the number of tabulated statements which are appended to their Annual Administration Report, and were prepared to effect a considerable reduction in the present report. As, however, Government is about to deal with the curtailment of reports generally, they considered that on the present occasion it would be preferable to submit the usual statements, and they have contented themselves therefore in this report with merely compressing the tabulated matter as far as was found practicable.

§§ 109—113.—Economic section.

109. In the Economic section of the district and divisional reports the principal topics dealt with are the character of the monsoon, the prevalence of high prices, and the volume of the year's litigation. Each of these points has in its turn been referred to in this report; but it will not be out of place to supplement what has already been said by a few general remarks upon the features of the year.

110. Things at the beginning of the year wore so unfavourable an appearance, owing to the early cessation of the monsoon, that it became necessary to make preparations on a considerable scale to meet the possible demand for relief measures. Test works were opened in the Agra and Muttra districts; but they failed to attract labourers on famine wages, and were soon closed after their purpose had been served. "Labour," says the Commissioner, Mr. Impey, "in some form or other, whether in the towns, in more prosperous tracts in the neighbourhood, or in new industries, such as the wholesale export of dry grass to native states for fodder, was available for those who wanted it, and the only persons for whom special measures were found to be required were the immigrants from native states. These poor people passed through the districts in swarms, ever pressing onwards towards the East. Poorhouses were opened for them at Agra and Muttra, and in places the municipality or a local zamíndár provided work for those who wished to stay. Many, however, of the immigrants were fairly well-to-do, and after spending some nine months in British territory returned with their property to their homes. In the districts of Agra and Muttra, though the people have during the last year had a hard time, there has been no acute distress. The people were assisted to bear the strain by liberal remissions, suspensions, and postponements of revenue, and by the grant of advances with a lavish hand for wells, seed, and cattle." In the Rohilkhand Division, in the south of Mirzapur, and in the Bánda and Allahabad districts there was also cause for anxiety; but the only district in which relief works were ultimately found to be necessary was the Jhánsi district. Even these relief works were not needed for any long period, and the number of labourers upon them at no time reached 4,000.

111. The great export trade in grain which began before the beginning of the year and the sharp rise in prices, which accompanied it, were noticed in last year's report. These conditions continued into this year, and the high price of food grains must have proved particularly hard upon urban populations with small fixed incomes; but the labouring classes were not, as a rule, injuriously affected. "Enormous sums of money," as Mr. Hardy, the Commissioner of Lucknow, has remarked, "have flowed into the Provinces in return for the grain exported, and though merchants and middlemen have made large profits, the influx of capital cannot have failed to benefit the labouring classes as well." Labourers in the towns or in the neighbourhood of towns undoubtedly earned unusually high wages during the year, and, with regard to field labourers, it must be remembered that they are largely paid in grain, and are therefore less affected by variations in prices than they would be if their wages were entirely paid in cash. Indirectly they received higher wages, and it is only where the contraction of the cultivated area seriously diminished the demand for labour, that they can have suffered. In such places no doubt the pinch must have been severe, but taking the provinces as a whole the year was a good one for the labourer.

112. The agriculturist, too, except in a few districts, has done sometimes fairly well, sometimes very well. His crops may have been poorer than in an average year; but on the other hand he has received unusually good prices for his produce. This has placed him in a position in which he was able to pay his arrears of rent, and has been one of the causes, as already noticed, for the increase in the litigation of the year. Of the other cause of the increase in litigation sufficient has already been said. After all, considering the immense number of existing tenancies, it has been relatively rather than absolutely large. It has been accompanied, it is of interest to note, by a recourse to the execution of registered leases to an extent hitherto unknown. It is to be regretted that in many of these leases clauses of an oppressive character have found a place.

§ 113.—Conclusion.

113. To conclude. The year has been from a Revenue Officer's point of view, both an anxious and a laborious one. The strain on officers of all grades and on their office establishments must have been great, and the Board desire to acknowledge the generally careful and capable manner in which the work of the year has been done.

I have the honor to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

H. F. HOUSE,

Secretary.

The changes in the staff during the year under report are few. The sanctioned number of apprentice kanúngos has been reduced by seven, the saving effected being utilized in providing special allowances for deserving sadar kanúngos. Two teachers were added to the patwári school establishments in Lalitpur and Bahraich. The increase in the number of patwáris and assistants is due to the revision of patwáris' circles in certain districts.

2. Prospects of the kanúngo staff.—Four kanúngos were selected as approved candidates for naib tahsíldárships, while twenty-four kanúngos received temporary promotion to that post or to higher appointments during the year as compared with 30 in the preceding year. For the second year in succession not a single kanúngo has received permanent promotion in the executive line.

3. During the past year my attention was drawn to the difficulties in providing suitable recognition of good work by sadar kanúngos. Few, if any, of the older officials have the examinational qualifications indispensable for promotion in the executive line, and if they are given readerships or similar clerical appointments they are lost to the Land Records Department. Proposals were therefore submitted, and received sanction, for the grant of special allowances to senior men whose work and conduct continued satisfactory. These allowances will be granted on the Collector's recommendation by the Director after inspection of the sadar kanúngo's work: so far I have granted one to the sadar kanúngo of Cawnpore, and others will be allotted after the present touring season if I find men who come up to the somewhat high standard which I desire to maintain.

4. Revision of patwáris' circles and salary.—During the year under report detailed proposals for the revision of patwáris' circles in the Lucknow, Unao, Rae Bareli, Sítapur, Hardoi, Sultánpur, and Bara Banki districts were submitted to the Board of Revenue, but no orders have as yet been received. In these districts it is proposed to reduce the number of patwáris from 4,792 to 4,297 ; the pay of the remainder has been raised, but there is a net saving of Rs. 1,458 per annum to be utilized in improving the position of patwáris in other districts of Oudh where the pay is very low and where it will be necessary to increase the number employed. Proposals for the Fyzabad and Partábgarh districts have been returned to the local authorities for further revision. The revision of patwáris' circles in Kheri, Bahraich and Gonda has been deferred until settlement operations are over. In the North-Western Provinces there have been no material changes in the strength or pay of the patwári staff. Forty patwáris received promotion to higher posts as compared with 26 in the preceding year.

5. Patwári schools.—The number of schools continues to fluctuate according to local requirements. The school in the Lalitpur sub-division which had been closed was re-opened during the year, and a proposal to continue it for another year is under consideration. The schools at Dehra Dún, Mainpuri and Partábgarh were closed owing in some cases to want of candidates and in others to the deputation of teachers and pupils for practical training in survey.

The total number of patwáris and assistants in the United Provinces (exclusive of Almora, Garhwál, Muzaffarnagar and Sháhjahánpur) was 28,360, of whom 24,914 or 87·86 per cent. have now passed through the school course against 86·51 per cent. in the preceding year. The number of patwáris exempted from examination fell from 2,718 to 2,437, and the number of those who had still to pass from 1,106 to 1,009. The annexed statement shows for each district the number of patwáris passed, exempted and neither passed nor exempted :—

District.	Total number of patwáris including assistants.	Number who have completely passed.	Number exempted.	Number who have neither passed nor been exempted.	Percentage passed.	Percentage exempted.	Percentage unpassed and not exempted.

During the year under report the number of exempted patwáris remained stationary in 11 districts, fell in 28, and rose very slightly in five where one or two fresh exemptions were granted to old patwáris with good service. On the whole the progress during the year has been satisfactory : exemptions, when once given, are not withdrawn, provided efficiency is maintained, so that the reduction of nearly 300 in the number is as much as can be expected in a single year.

The number of unpassed men also shows a decrease, though not perhaps to so great an extent as might have been expected. Satisfactory progress has been made in Jhánsi and in Basti ; in Allahabad there is a slight reduction, but in Kheri the number has increased : in the case of Kheri the Commissioner has invited the Deputy Commissioner's attention to the matter.

Of the 44 districts from which returns have been received, the percentage of qualified patwáris exceeds 95 in 7, is between 90 and 95 in 10, and falls below 80 only in Allahabad, Saháranpur and Naini Tal. In each of these three districts the percentage has increased substantially since last year.

Five hundred and thirty-one patwáris and assistants attended the schools during the year, of whom 246 or 46·32 per cent. passed as against 41·35 per cent. in the previous year. In addition to patwáris and assistants 3,070 candidates were instructed at the schools : of these 1,109 passed the examination. One thousand six hundred and twenty-three patwáris also received practical training with survey parties. The following table shows by divisions the number of pupils who attended the schools, the number passed and the financial results :—

The system of simultaneous examinations has worked on the whole satisfactorily. Two examinations were, as usual, held during the year under report with the following result :—

	Total number examined.	Total number passed.	Percentage. 1898-99.	Percentage. 1899-1900.
Rules and duties of patwáris ...	2,932	1,475	46·61	50·31
Arithmetic	2,648	1,500	65·94	56·65
Mensuration	2,669	1,610	55·04	60·32

Some of the papers which appeared to have been examined with undue leniency were called for and the attention of the District Officers was drawn to defects in the system of marking and to certain other irregularities.

6. Annual examination of kanúngos and amíns.—Kanúngo candidates were, as usual, examined during July and August, but having regard to the alteration in the system of recruitment no new candidates were admitted, the examination being confined to men who had appeared in some previous year, but had not passed in all subjects. Thus only 148 candidates appeared for the examination as compared with 234 in the preceding year. Seventy-five passed in all subjects, 72 passed in part, and one failed entirely. The high proportion of passes (one-half as against one-sixth in the previous year) is due to the special circumstances of the examination : many candidates had to pass in only one or two subjects, and as they knew that it was their last chance they had prepared themselves with greater care. All but six of the 75 successful candidates have received practical training in surveying. One hundred and sixty-five candidates who were sent by District Officers for training in survey qualified and received certificates from Survey Officers during the year.

Forty-nine amíns or candidates were examined, of whom six passed in all subjects, and 43 in part. Five of the successful candidates have not yet received practical training in surveying and will be required to join a survey party under the new rule introduced at my instance by the Board, requiring candidates for amínships to receive practical training in the field.

7. Residence of patwáris.—The instructions issued last year as to the principles to be followed in securing residence are receiving due attention. The percentage of residents has risen fractionally and there is a corresponding decrease in the percentage of those exempted from residence. The following table gives for each district in the United Provinces details as to the residence or non-residence of patwáris :—

The first striking feature of this table, the difference between the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, is explained by the fact that until the re-allocation of circles has been sanctioned in the latter province, attempts to enforce residence are in abeyance: the Oudh figures may therefore be neglected. In the North-Western Provinces the number of exemptions has increased in nine districts, but the increase is trifling in seven, being due to the grant of one or two exemptions in each. There is a large apparent increase in Bijnor owing to the record under this head of patwáris, who in the previous year were employed in settlement work at headquarters. The only other large increase is in Naini Tal, where formerly no exemptions had been given: the climate and local conditions in the Tarái justify the exemptions that have now been granted. Leaving the Bijnor figures out of account, the number of exemptions in the North-Western Provinces has fallen by about 4½ per cent., which is as much as can be expected when it is remembered that existing exemptions are to be maintained so long as work is satisfactory.

The high numbers of absentees without permission are due for the most part to patwáris who are absent from their circles on survey or settlement work: the figures are therefore unsatisfactory, and in future reports an attempt will be made to show this class separately. This explanation covers, it is believed, the cases of Bareilly, Bijnor and Azamgarh. In Gorakhpur and Allahabad, where this explanation does not apply, the cases of the absentees are reported to be pending before the Subdivisional Officers.

8. Filing of patwáris' papers.—Appendix I shows in district detail the dates on which the patwáris filed the more important papers. The districts of Sháhjahánpur, Pilibhít, and Gonda and certain parganas of districts Meerut, Etah, Etáwah, Mainpuri, Farrukhabad, Bareilly, and Azamgarh have been excluded from the statement as the patwáris were employed on settlement or survey work. Out of 51,948 papers which were filed after the prescribed date 14,786 belonged to districts under settlement, 16,215 to Bijnor, Budaun and Moradabad and the remaining 20,947 to all the other districts. Great want of punctuality is noticeable in the three Rohilkhand districts: the Collector of Bijnor reports that he has taken up the matter and that all cases of neglect are being suitably dealt with. The reports received from Moradabad and Budaun do not explain the delay, and the Commissioner's attention is being drawn to it. Apart from these three districts the high standard of punctuality reached in the preceding year has been fully maintained, and in several districts it was found possible to get all or practically all the papers filed in time: the kanúngo staff in the marginally noted districts are entitled to credit for their efforts in this respect.

Of 6,547 papers, which remained unfiled at the close of the year under report, 6,227 were delayed by settlement or survey operations, and 234 by the revision of khewats in Hardoi. The small balance is accounted for by the usual accidents, such as the loss of papers or the flight of a patwári.

9. Result of testing papers.—The testing done during the year under report is shown in appendix II. The statement, from which the districts of Farukhabad, Sháhjahánpur, Pilibhít, and Gonda and certain parganas of Meerut, Etah, Etáwah, Mainpuri, Bareilly and Azamgarh under settlement or survey have been excluded, deals with 90,745 villages comprising 72,743,788 fields. Kanúngos tested 5,787,886 fields, or 7·97 per cent. against 7·85 per cent. in 1898-99. Superior officers tested in all 663,955 fields, of which 188,232 had been previously tested by kanúngos. The corresponding numbers last year were 690,732 and 184,111 respectively. The most important figures relating to khasra testing are reproduced below:—

Kanúngos' work.—The amount of testing done by kanúngos was sufficient in all districts except Mainpuri, Etáwah, Azamgarh and Kheri, where survey and settlement work interfered, and Hardoi where the kanúngos were engaged in other important duties. As to the quality of the kanúngo's work, it will be seen that in the following districts, where sufficient retesting was done, the kanúngos or some of them had not worked with sufficient care :—

Naini Tál	7·6
Etah	6·1
Jalaun	5·9
Gorakhpur	5·3
Lucknow	3·6
Unao	3·5

On the other hand in several districts, where much of their work has been retested, the staff show a very good record.

Testing by superior officers.—I am glad to be able to report that superior officers have generally given more attention to retesting kanúngo's work ; and that the persistent efforts that have been made for the past few years to secure this object are producing excellent results : there is no way of securing proper work from kanúngos except by letting them see that their work comes under close examination. The improvement is not however quite universal, and (leaving out of consideration districts where work was interrupted by survey and settlement) very little was done in Dehra Dún, Sítapur, Saháranpur, Bánda, Mirzapur, Gorakhpur or Sultánpur. In Dehra Dún and Sitapur officers are reported to have been occupied in other important work : elsewhere no sufficient explanation has been offered.

Patwáris' work.—On the whole it must be said that, considering the class of men employed; the patwáris work with wonderful accuracy : for the whole provinces the percentage of error is just about three, and in very few districts was it so high as to indicate general bad work.

Testing of rent-rolls.—A further advance is also noticeable in the checking of rent-rolls, more work having been accomplished by superior officers in the majority of districts. Continued attention is however necessary to these records which are the basis of our knowledge of the revenue-paying capacity of a village or a district. Judging by the small number of errors (less than 2 per cent.) found in a lakh and three-quarters of entries which come under examination, the rent-rolls ordinarily reach a very high standard of accuracy ; it must however be remembered that it is more difficult to detect fraudulent errors here than in the khasra. Judging by the figures the rent-rolls were most incorrect in Etah, Bánda, Benares and Unao.

10. Concealment of rents.—No cases of concealment of rent were discovered in the Meerut Division. The Collector of Aligarh, however, writes that concealment appears from the Settlement Officer's enquiries to have been general throughout the district, but that no final judgment can be passed in the matter until these enquiries are complete. In the Agra Division two cases of concealment were reported in Etah and none in any other district. Two cases also came to light in the Budaun district, the concealment amounting to Rs. 541. Concealments amounting to Rs. 484 were discovered and admitted by zamíndárs in nineteen villages of Allahabad. In Cawnpore district, whereas in Allahabad the settlement is expiring, cases have come to light in which landowners show their relatives or friends as tenants at low rates, and actually collect considerably larger sums from the actual cultivators who are shown as sub-tenants. This practice is not confined to Cawnpore and is one which should be watched for. In Basti 58 rent-rolls were corrected during the year resulting in an increase of Rs. 5,000 in the recorded rent. In Gorakhpur also a case of concealment came to light in the course of certain execution proceedings in the Civil Court. Concealments to the extent of Rs. 1,335 in 17 villages of the Sultánpur district and of Rs. 1,835 in three villages of Hardoi were also discovered during the year. On the whole it would appear from the number of cases enumerated that more attention is being given to this important subject, and there is no reason to suppose that the practice of concealment is increasing.

11. Settlement or survey operations interfered with the sadar kanúngo's tours in Meerut, Farukhabad, Bareilly, Etah, Sháhjahánpur, Pilibhít, Kheri and Gonda. In other districts the amount of work done has generally been sufficient; in a few cases where the quarterly returns showed that sadar kanúngos were not doing enough or were overlooking important records, the facts were brought to the notice of the District Officer.

12. Methodical inspection of patwáris' records.—The system of inspection of all circles in a cycle of three years has been as a rule satisfactorily carried out in all districts except those where the patwáris were engaged in settlement or survey. Accidental circumstances however interfered with the work to some extent in Jaunpur, Ballia, Fyzabad, Sultánpur and Bara Banki. The district report of Sítapur is again silent on the subject; this omission has been noticeable for some years in succession, and the Commissioner has drawn the Deputy Commissioner's attention to it.

13. Map correction in Oudh.—The work of map correction was last year reported to have been completed in the districts of Lucknow, Sultánpur, Rae Bareli and the temporarily settled villages of Bara Banki, and annual corrections are now made. On new maps being supplied by the Survey Department, tracings for annual corrections have also been completed in Bahraich and in two parganas of Kheri; tracings for the rest of the Kheri district will be taken up as soon as the cloth, which has been indented for, is received. The maps of all but 23 villages have been corrected in Fyzabad, while 204 remain in Unao. Little progress was made in Hardoi owing to the difficulty noticed in the last year's report and to the patwáris being engaged in the revision of khewats. The work is in progress in Partábgarh, while in Gonda new maps are under preparation by the Survey Department. The scheme for special map correction in Sítapur was stopped by the orders of the Board of Revenue, and nothing further has been done during the year. The Deputy Commissioner promises to take up the matter during the present camping season.

*14. Tahsíl registers. Preparation of registers in the revised form.—Revised village registers were last year complete and in use in the marginally noted districts; while all the pargana hand-books had been published for the districts marked with an asterisk. During the year under report revised village registers of Meerut Kheri, Bahraich and the Gursarai estate of Jhánsi were completed, and the pargana hand-books of Bijnor, Budaun, Jhánsi (including Gursarai estate), Sítapur, Sultánpur and Bara Banki published. Most of the pargana hand-books of Gorakhpur, Basti, Fyzabad, Partábgarh and Bahraich are also out, the few that remain being in press. All the hand-books have been prepared for the Meerut and Hardoi districts, and will shortly be sent to press. Compilation of revised village registers is proceeding in the settlement offices of Sháhjahánpur and Bareilly, while the necessary instructions have been issued to the Settlement Officers of Farukhabad, Aligarh and Gonda. The special office under my control is employed in preparing the new registers in Hamírpur and Bánda where settlement operations will not commence for some time.

Maintenance of the registers.—The district reports show that the registers are generally up to date, but the information supplied as to the correctness of the entries is again somewhat meagre. Some extraordinary mistakes detected in Naini Tal have been corrected as far as possible. A number of errors and defects was also found in Fatehpur as the result of my inspection, and the Commissioner of Allahabad notes with satisfaction that due attention is being given to accuracy of the statistics in this district. No other defects have been reported by District Officers, but in accordance with the orders of Government on last year's report, I give here the results of my own inspections: more work would have been accomplished, but for my deputation on special duty; I was, however, able to inspect twenty tahsíls. In twelve of these the statistical work was, on the whole, correct, while in the remaining eight it was inferior; of these five were in Allahabad, two in Fatehpur, and one in Saháranpur. In each case the defects have been brought to the Collector's notice; and as regards Allahabad, where the work was very bad and the sadar kanúngo very inefficient, this official has now retired and arrangements have been made to replace him by a competent man.

Use of the registers.—The instructions issued last year and the attention given by Commissioners have produced an excellent effect in promoting the use of these records and the entry of valuable notes in matters of economic importance. At the same time the reports show that much remains to be done in the note on agricultural depression; I have indicated the districts where the reports show that the rules have not been fully complied with, and I need say nothing further here beyond acknowledging in particular the assistance received from the Commissioners of Agra and Allahabad.

15. Maintenance of survey and boundary marks.—The annual lists of survey and boundary marks prescribed in the rules were prepared in all districts except a few under settlement or survey. The instructions for the inspection of the marks in the cold weather have also been generally observed and necessary steps taken for their repair or re-erection. Satisfactory progress in this direction is noticeable in Moradabad, Jhánsi and Allahabad, where most of the existing marks were mentioned in the last year's report as requiring repair; while the Deputy Commissioner's attention has been drawn to the need of more energetic action in Bara Banki. The Collector of Jhánsi reports that 7,882 internal survey marks, mostly situated in Gursarai estate, require renewal. The cost of this work must, under standing orders, be borne by Government, and I am endeavouring to provide the necessary funds.

16. Inspection of districts.—During the year the Director made inspections connected with survey or settlement work (including under the latter head the preparation of village registers) in Bareilly, Meerut, Aligarh, Sháhjahánpur and Etáwah. General land record work was inspected in Saháranpur, Cawnpore, Fatehpur, Allahabad, Gorakhpur, Partábgarh, Bara Banki and Bijnor. The kanúngo inspectors attached to the Department were employed in inspecting the work of patwáris and kanúngos in 11 districts with a view to correcting errors of procedure and bringing defects to the notice of the district authorities. Their inspection reports were forwarded to the District Officers for information and necessary action.

17. Preparation of districts for settlement.—The districts of Allahabad, Fatehpur and Cawnpore were examined and reported on during the year by me. The Superintendent of Provincial Surveys reported on the condition of the maps in Moradabad.

18. Mr. G. B. Scott, the Superintendent of Provincial Surveys, submits the following report on the work of the year:—

"1. In accordance with a recommendation of the Surveyor-General of India, and Resolution of the Government of India, Nos. 2 and 8, parties of the Survey of India Department, which had been employed on traverse operations in these Provinces, were placed under the Local Government from 1st October 1899, and amalgamated with the several Cadastral parties employed on the revision of village maps and records, the whole being now styled "Provincial Surveys" and divided into the Traverse section, Drawing or cartographical section and Cadastral section, the whole being under the charge of Mr. G. B. Scott as Superintendent, Provincial Surveys, under the control of the Local Government, Land Records and Agricultural Department.

"2. Traverse Survey operations were continued in portions of districts Etáwah, Etah, Mainpuri and Gonda, and commenced in Jalaun. In addition several scattered villages in district Aligarh were traversed, and some in Kheri in connection with a transfer of villages between the Forest Department and the Khairagarh Estates.

"The total area traversed was 2,753 square miles, the number of village boundaries traversed in this area was 2,165 and there were 2,758 sub-traverse lines run within the village circuits to facilitate the detail field surveys.

"The total length of chaining was 9,244 linear miles and the total number of theodolite stations was 32,473. The angular work was checked by 283 azimuth observations, and at each of these points the magnetic variation was observed to obtain mean variation for each district for the year. The chaining was checked by connection with nine Great Trigonometrical Survey stations.

"3. The number of survey stations fixed varied from 11 to 19 per square mile according to the nature of the country. Of these an average of 2 per square mile were masonry platforms or stones, previously placed by the local authorities to mark triple junction points of villages; 4 per square mile were marked by stones placed by the surveyors, and the remainder by baked clay cylinders enclosing a little charcoal.

"With reference to the marking of stations by cylinders, Mr. Freeman reports from Azamgarh that many cylinders had been destroyed and time was lost in searching for others that had been buried flush with the ground, as the small earthen mounds originally placed over them to mark the sites had been washed away. This loss was inevitable, and is not, I think, a serious objection. The survey offices working in other districts on the other hand report that most of the embedded cylinders were found uninjured and without much difficulty.

"4. The question of using more stones in place of cylinders for permanently marking survey stations has been under discussion for some time. When the traverse survey of a district is followed within a year or two by the cadastral survey, I see no necessity for increasing the number of stones as now used, especially as the state of the survey marks has to be reported on yearly by the patwáris. When traverse operations begin, no doubt children remove a few cylinders here and there, but with an average of six well marked stations, and some eight or nine marked with cylinders in every square mile, no patwári once trained should find any difficulty in refixing the true site of a few lost marks in his villages, especially as having made the detailed survey himself as a rule, he should know the exact position of every station, especially with a correct map of the fields to guide him. Stones cost when placed on average of about 6 annas per stone, or Rs. 37-8-0 per 100 cylinders are purchased locally at Rs. 2-8-0 per 100. The cost of replacing cylinders by stones would therefore, in my opinion, needlessly increase the cost of traverse operations, except when several years are likely to elapse between the traverse and cadastral operations, in which cases, I think, it would be advisable to add say two or three more stones per square mile.

"5. The boundaries in all districts where traverse operations were carried on were carefully demarcated in the usual way by the several district authorities before work commenced.

"6. In the ravinous country in Etáwah and Jálaun the subtense bar was used for obtaining correct distances between the survey stations in place of the chain. Village plots have been prepared of all the areas surveyed and made over to the Cadastral sections.

"7. The total expenditure on the Traverse sections was Rs. 69,375-14-2, giving an average cost per square mile traversed of Rs. 25-3-2. The averages for the three previous years being Rs. 26-4-0, Rs. 26-8-4, and Rs. 29-0-3 respectively. The maximum cost per square mile allowed is Rs. 30 when an area of 2,500 square mile is the limit for the year. But owing to the addition to the original programme of over 200 square miles of traverse in the Aligarh district, the average cost per square mile has been kept well under that figure, as it costs no more to supervise a somewhat larger area, and in addition the Deputy Superintendent, Captain Coldstream, only joined on 1st February 1900, which reduced expenditure by about Rs. 5,000; therefore if the area to be traversed during coming year is confined to 2,500 square miles, it is probable the maximum of Rs. 30 per square mile will be expended.

"8. All the officers in this section worked with their usual zeal and ability.

"9. A full report on all technical details with the usual tabulated statement has been drawn up by Captain Coldstream for submission to the Survey of India Department.

Drawing or Cartographical Section.

"10. The transfer of the Drawing section to the Provincial Surveys has not altered the nature of the work for which it was originally organized, namely, the preparation of cartographical and district maps on standard scales from the revised village maps.

"11. As before these are being prepared on a scale of 2″ to 1 mile for reduction to the 1″ scale for publication. The method adopted is to calculate the co-ordinate distances of all triple junctions of villages and plot them on what are known as quarter sheets, that is, sheets containing 15′ of latitude, and 7½′ longitude. Four of these when reduced make one standard sheet of the Survey of India Department on the scale of 1″ to 1 mile. The sheets of each district are prepared separately. The details of each village map are then pentagraphed down from the 16″ to the 2″ scale, traced separately on transfer paper, and then entered on the sheets.

"Cadastral 16″ survey intended for settlement purposes cannot well meet all requirements of topographical maps; contours showing rises and falls in undulating country, intricate details of ravines, &c., cannot be entered without interfering with the lines indicating field limits, and omitting the numbers of the fields. There is some difficulty also in selecting the main lines of traffic other than Government roads, and entering these only on the maps. But every care is being taken to do this in consultation with the district authorities.

"Where large tracts of hilly or ravinous country or forests intervene between cultivation the details are specially surveyed on the 2″ scale.

"12. During the past season blue prints of the Lalitpur sub-division were received from the Calcutta office for remarks and suggestions by District Officers, and were returned for publication.

"13. The maps of Sháhjahánpur district were completed, but the Settlement Officer revised a large number of the spelling of names of villages which had already been printed according to lists which had been supplied by the Collectorate and which proved to be incorrect. This is now nearing completion, and the maps will be despatched to Calcutta for publication this month.

"The district maps of Bareilly, Bahraich, Kheri and Meerut are well advanced.

"14. The total cost of the Drawing section for the year, including one-fourth pay and allowances of the Deputy Superintendent from 1st February 1900, was Rs. 15,107-14-9 as against Rs. 19,769-7-2 (including Rs. 6,322-7-0 for topographical work) in 1898-99..

"15. Mr. Kennedy in immediate charge of this section deserves great credit for his methodical work and careful attention to every detail.

Cadastral Section.

"16. During the year under report the revision of maps and records was completed in the Pilibhít district, including Bisalpur tahsíl, continued in Farukhabad, Gonda and Azamgarh, and commenced in Etah, Etáwah and Mainpuri.

In addition 152 villages scattered in the Aligarh district, covering an area of 384 square miles, were surveyed as the maps of previous settlement survey showed serious discrepancies when compared with the theodolite survey traverse plots of 1882-84; also 27 villages, covering an area of 54 square miles, were surveyed in the Kheri district, in connection with an interchange of lands between the Forest Department and the Khairagarh Estate.

"17. The total area surveyed was 3,882 square miles in 4,422 villages containing 4,296,603 fields and other items. The khasras were written up in the field of 3,106 square miles, 4,261 villages with 3,785,320, fields, &c. The area surveyed is in excess because the records of several large villages of which the survey was only completed very late in the season or not completed, were not written to allow of the entries being for the same year in each village. This is one of the drawbacks of the two years system of survey. It has been decided that in future all maps and records of patwáris' circles that have been completed during the first year of survey, are to be revised and corrected where necessary as soon as the field work in the remaining villages has been completed, thus ensuring that all entries required for settlement purposes shall be for one year.

"18. The average size of fields and other items surveyed ranged from 0·28 acres in Gonda and Azamgarh to 1·24 acres in Aligarh, but if cultivated land only is taken the average in parts of Gonda and Azamgarh was less than 0·1 of an acre. In these two districts 54 villages were surveyed on the scale of 32″ to a mile instead of the ordinary 16″ scale, and several blocks of small fields were shown on 64″ scale on margins of maps to allow of the field numbers being distinguishable.

"19. The work in Aligarh was of a peculiar nature. When the Superintendent examined the previous village maps of the district he found that in all villages of which the area did not much exceed a square mile, and the plans of which were not larger than the size of an ordinary plane table, the boundaries and fields had, as a rule, been accurately surveyed and there seemed no occasion for a re-survey. But in many large villages the survey had, as it extended, accumulated error or the boundaries had become seriously distorted. He recommended that the district should be retraversed and plotted, and a comparison made between the settlement maps and plots to discover serious errors. He also recommended a re-survey of the alluvial tracts along the Ganges and Jumna rivers.

The district had been traversed in 1883-84 for a Topographical survey on the 2″ scale, and it was decided by the Board of Revenue that before a complete re-traverse was ordered it would be advisable to utilize plots made from this traverse data for checking the present village maps. Plots on the same scale as the village maps, that is, two local bigha chains of 52½ yards to an inch or 16·761 inches to a mile, of all the large villages were made and compared with village maps, with the result that village maps covering an area of over 400 square miles in addition to the alluvial tracts, were found seriously incorrect and needing re-survey.

"Traverse work necessary for a small scale survey, however, is not at all sufficient as a basis for accurate surveying on the 16″ scale. For the Topographical survey series of lines were run straight across country, adopting the triple junction points of villages as theodolite stations and in many cases, the stations were placed not on the platforms but short distances away from them, near enough for topographical purposes, but misleading when used for a 16″ survey. The larger villages covered several plane table sheets, and most of these had but 2 or 3 survey stations on them where the boundaries fell, and generally none at all on the interior sheets. Maps made on such insufficient data would not in all probability be much if at all better than the present settlement maps, except with extreme care and much loss of time. The Superintendent met the Junior Member of the Board of Revenue and the Settlement Officer in Bareilly in February 1900, and on his representation it was decided to traverse all villages to be re-surveyed. Previous to this the alluvial tracts had been traversed. Sub-surveyors squads were therefore drawn from other districts and the traverse survey pushed on. But the field season was now well advanced, the maps of tahsíls Koil, Utrauli, Khair and Iglas were urgently needed by the Settlement Officer, and the patwáris were needed for settlement work in other villages of their circles. In consequence amíns were placed on survey work, the number being increased as plots were prepared and the field season was prolonged till July, by which time an area of 384 square miles in 152 villages was surveyed. Of these 133 were based on the new traverse plots. As no funds had been specially provided for this survey, the detachment under Mr. O. C. Ollenbach was attached to the Etah district survey, and transfer made from the budget allotments of all the parties to meet the cost. It was impossible to write up the records of such larger villages, many four to five square miles in area, this will be done by patwáris during the ensuing field season.

"There still remain about 150 square miles to be traversed and surveyed, chiefly in tahsils Hathras and Sikandra Rao. Mr. Ollenbach deserves great credit for the manner in which he has worked these difficult operations.

"20. The total number of patwáris in the tracts under survey was 1,805 of whom 1,331 surveyed their own villages and 292 nominated their heirs to be trained and do the survey. The remainder failed either to qualify as surveyors or nominate heirs, and the survey of their villages was done by 91 umedwar kanúngos sent for training from there and other districts by the District Officers. About a dozen candidates only failed to qualify.

"In the several districts 86 kanúngos were trained in surveying, and most of them afterwards assisted in checking work, especially khasra entries.

"All khasra writing was done by the patwáris or by their heirs with the old patwáris in attendance.

"21. In Aligarh 59 patwáris were trained, but as they were needed for settlement work in villages not being re-surveyed, the bulk of the survey work was done by amíns paid by contract. Fifty amíns were also employed in the Utraula pargana of Gonda which it was necessary to complete in one year. The jungle villages in the Kheri district were also surveyed by amíns as there were no patwáris yet in the lately constituted mauzas. In Etah the patwári school teacher and most of his pupils were trained and assisted in survey. Fifteen scholars from the Agricultural School in Cawnpore were also put through a course of training.

"22. The average daily outturn by patwáris ranged from 6 acres of very small fields in Azamgarh and Gonda to 20 acres in Mainpuri; and in khasra writing from 10 to 53 numbers.

"23. As usual no village maps were passed till they had been checked either by the European Officers personally or by independent check lines recorded in field books and tested by the Survey Officer, then plotted. European officers ran 789 linear miles of check lines, 6,170 linear miles were recorded in field-books, and 11,044 were run by Inspectors while work was in progress. The average of check is therefore about 4 linear miles to every square mile of survey. In Azamgarh the average was nearly 8 miles. About 12,000 acres of survey were rejected and re-surveyed.

"Of the entries in khasra from 13 to 24 per cent. were checked before submission to office.

"24. Three hundred and ten boundary disputes were reported, most of them however being merely disagreements caused by errors in previous settlement maps, and decided amicably on the ground. Those not so adjusted were reported to record officers for disposal.

"25. In Gonda Rs. 214 were paid as rewards to patwáris for good work, and some of the Azamgarh patwáris will be rewarded when their circles are completed. In the other districts their salaries range from Rs. 7 to Rs. 12, and they seldom work up to areas in excess of what is fairly earned by these amounts.

"26. Work is, of course, much retarded, and the cost of operations increased by the absence of patwáris for unavoidable causes such as reports on crops, canals, the coming census operations, &c.; also by their frequent absences without leave. In Azamgarh every patwári was absent on an average 51 days; in Gonda 42 days; in Mainpuri and Etah 70 days; and in Etáwah 90 days; thus we lose the patwári's services for from two to three months in the year, which causes delays in the preparation of papers, or necessitates the employment of muharrirs.

The non-attendance of zamíndárs and tenants during khasra writing also causes considerable delay, especially where as in Azamgarh there are numerous partitions so minute that it is impossible to mark them on the ground, and where previous khewats and other records are grossly incorrect.

"27. In Azamgarh the maps and records of tahsíls Deogaon, Nizamabad, and Ahrauli are now ready for the Settlement Officers, and the survey of the Sagri tahsíl will be commenced. In Gonda the records of pargana Utraula, in addition to those of tahsíls previously surveyed, have been made over to the Settlement Officer. The whole of the maps and records of Pilibhít have been completed. In Farukhabad the records of Chibramau have been completed this season, and those of Kanauj well advanced. The survey of this district and of Gonda will, it is expected, be completed during the ensuing year.

"28. The total expenditure under all headings in the several districts was Rs. 2,61,902-11-5, giving an average cost of Rs. 67-5-0 per square mile, varying from Rs. 50 per square mile in Azamgarh, where the cost is spread over a large area, to Rs. 70 in Mainpuri.

To this must be added an expenditure of Rs. 50,092 on the headquarter establishment which includes cost of tents, instruments, stationery and forms, &c., in addition to the salary of the Superintendent and his establishment.

"29. The orders issued shortly after the commencement of the revision surveys with reference to the mapping of Government roads and buildings and their comparison with the maps of the Public Works Department, brought to light many discrepancies between the maps of that Department and the old village maps and records. Encroachments were numerous, and in many instances of too long standing to allow of rectification now, especially as often no proper demarcation had been made originally or not maintained. Arrangements have now been made for a theodolite traverse of all Government roads in districts under survey, and the correct record of all demarcations, and also for a careful record of all Government buildings and the boundaries of their estates on the village plans.

"30. Superintendence.—The Superintendent visited all the districts under survey during November and December 1899. In January 1900 he personally attended to the training of a class of Junior Civilians, who, after the preliminary course, assisted mutually for a month in checking the work and reporting on the capabilities of the patwáris in portions of Farukhabad, Etah, Etáwah and Mainpuri. After closing the class the Superintendent made a tour through Mainpuri, Etah and Aligarh, inspecting the patwáris in the field. He then, at the request of the Collector, Bulandshahr, re-demarcated a lost boundary on the Ganges, where there was a considerable dispute between the contiguous villages of Bulandshahr and Budaun. He then continued his tour through the Moradabad district examining the village maps. This district had been cadastrally surveyed by the Survey of India Department previous to the last settlement, and the patwáris were provided with printed maps. These showed few changes in fields except in fluctuating cultivation in large bhur tracts and where the Ganges on the west, and the Kosi on the east of the district, had altered their courses considerably. He next replaced a lost pillar on the Nepal-Almora boundary on the Sardha river, and during April and May again visited all the districts under survey before close of field season.

All the offices were again visited by him in July and August 1900.

"31. Captain Coldstream, R.E., Deputy Superintendent, joined the Provincial Surveys on 1st February 1900, and till close of field season examined the system of work in progress in Farukhabad, Mainpuri and Aligarh. He held charge of the Traverse and Drawing sections during the recess season. In July 1900 he visited the offices in Gonda, Azamgarh, Etáwah and Aligarh to obtain a knowledge of the office procedure in record writing. He has been of great assistance while in charge of the Traverse and Drawing sections, and has devoted much spare time to gaining an insight into the several details of record work.

32. The several survey officers in charge of districts and sections all worked well.

"Mr. Freeman, Deputy Collector, on survey duty, as usual brought his experience and untiring energy to meet the special difficulties of the work in Azamgarh.

"Messrs. L. F. Berkeley, P. C. H. Smart, O. D. Smart, N. Bedford, W. Skilling and F. B. Powell in charge of districts, and Messrs. C. H. G. Johnson and Ollenbach in charge of sections; as well as Messrs. Murphy and Littlewood, Assistant Survey Officers, all worked well and successfully in spite of constant hindrance caused by the long absence of patwáris on other works.

"Mr. Bedford's arrangements in field and office in particular are a model.

"Messrs. Stotesbury and Norman have tried hard to gain a knowledge of record work.

"33. I would again call attention to the steady work of my camp clerk (Syed Ahmad Husain) who has been with me since 1894, has mastered details of all office work, as well as qualified himself in inspection of village maps and records. His work has been much enhanced owing to the amalgamation of the Traverse and Drawing sections.

"The Head Inspectors and heads of sections in the various field parties have now done good work for years. The reduction of establishment likely to take place at the close of ensuing year will throw many good experienced men out of employment, and the Superintendent would strongly recommend their claims to employment in the several Settlement offices about to be organized, where no doubt their past experience will render them of great assistance to newly organized establishments."

19. The Superintendent's report is very full and I have nothing to add to it, except to say that I cordially agree with the commendations bestowed by him on the staff under his control. This is the last report which will be submitted by Mr. Scott as his extended tenure of office expires in July next. Mr. Scott took up his present appointment in December 1894, and the whole organization and control of the Survey Department have been in his hands since his assumption of charge. His unremitting energy and devotion to duty are well known, and the success of the system he has created is largely due to his personal efforts. He is a colleague whose co-operation I shall lose with the greatest regret.

In accordance with the orders of Government I have obtained the opinions of the Settlement Officers as to the accuracy of the new maps and records made over to them. The Settlement Officer of Farukhabad writes that "the mapping section is invaluable, but the record section contains, probably unavoidably, a large number of errors." I have asked for details as to the nature of these errors, so that steps may be taken to avoid them in future: they are probably due, in part at least, to the fact that the survey in this district was started too late, and that all operations have had to be hurried in order to get the papers ready in time. The Settlement Officer of Gonda says, that the field work appears to have been correctly and carefully carried out, and there have been so far few objections from the proprietors. The re-numbering however has proved very incorrect. As regards this last point, the Superintendent of Provincial Surveys informs me that in Gonda the old maps were "one mass of alterations," and it was often impossible to distinguish the numbers at all; the re-numbering was done by the patwáris who were most likely to be acquainted with the old numbers. No other criticisms on the work have been received.

20. Amendment to rules.—Some important changes in the rules were sanctioned during the year:—(1) Chapter III of the Kanúngo Rules was revised in order to incorporate the changes approved in the method of recruiting kanúngos. Under the new rules the land records clerical staff is brought into line with the rest of the ministerial revenue establishment in matters of recruitment and discipline. The staff of supervisors continues to be under special rules, subject to certain existing claims, future appointments are to be made from the list of diplomates of the agricultural school, whose training is prescribed in a new appendix to the rules. (2). The Chapter in the Kanúngo Rules dealing with the registers of Government property has been re-written to bring it into accordance with the recent orders of Government.

(3) Sanction has been accorded to considerable alterations in the work of patwáris and kanúngos, and the new system will be introduced from July 1901. The principal objects of these alterations are to reduce the work of the patwáris, to minimise the amount of their attendance at the tahsíl, to accelerate the preparation of agricultural statistics, and to secure more efficient field-testing by the supervisors, some of whose clerical duty is at the same time made over to the registrars.

These changes will necessitate a revision of the Patwári and Kanúngo Rules, pending which they will be brought into force by a circular.

A revised draft of the rules for patwáris in the Government estates of Kamaun has recently reached me and is now under examination.

21. Supply of Patwári and Kanúngo forms.—The grant under this head was Rs. 70,000, out of which Rs. 64,525 were spent in the year under report against Rs. 65,655 in 1898-99. The expenditure was therefore less than in the preceding year. The difference was due mainly to changes in the dates of payment.

22. Patwári Funds.—The following figures show the revenue and expenditure of these funds for the year under report:—

	North-Western Provinces.	Oudh.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Proceeds of the Patwári rate	20,12,204	5,38,074	25,50,278
Contribution from Provincial revenues ...	6,52,808	3,47,192	10,00,000
Total ...	26,65,012	8,85,266	35,50,278
Expenditure ...	27,17,612	9,13,241	36,30,853
Net deficit ...	52,600	27,975	80,575

The net deficit for the year is Rs. 80,575 against the surplus of Rs. 1,23,121 of the previous year. This is due to the falling off of Rs. 1,40,295 in receipts and to the increase of Rs. 63,401 in charges. The closing balances of the funds on 31st March 1900 are as shown below:—

	N.-W. P. Fund.	Oudh Fund.
	Rs.	Rs.
Opening balance on 1st April 1899—Surplus ...	4,45,526	88,114 deficit.
Deficit for 1899-1900—Deficit	52,600	27,975 „
Closing balance on 31st March 1900—Surplus ...	3,92,926	1,16,089 „

PART II.—AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS.

23. Crop and area returns.—Owing to patwáris having been engaged in operations connected with Survey or Settlement, the crop and area returns for 1899-1900 have not been received from the districts of Meerut, Farukhabad, Sháhjahánpur, Pilibhít and Gonda and from portions of Aligarh, Mainpuri, Etáwah, Etah, Bareilly, Bijnor and Azamgarh. Figures for these tracts have been taken as usual from previous years' returns to complete the provincial statement.

24. The total cultivated area of the province is compared below since 1895-96 from which year the cycle of deficient rainfall began :—.

	Acres.
1895-96	32,403,691
1896-97	30,263,707
1897-98	32,332,621
1898-99	33,073,917
1899-00	32,462,360

During the two years which followed the famine year (1896-97), the cultivated area of the province progressed satisfactorily, but during the year of report there has again been a decline of 611,557 acres or about two per cent. The cultivated area of 1899-1900, however, exceeds by 58,669 acres the area of 1895-96, which was also a dry year and in Bundelkhand a year of severe scarcity. As compared with the preceding year's figures a decrease of 10 per cent. took place in Bulandshahr; of 18 per cent. in Muttra, of 13 per cent. in Agra and of 7 per cent. in Jhánsi and Naini Tal. Mainpuri and Jalaun show decreases of over 4 per cent. each. On the other hand an increase of 7 per cent. occurred in Kheri. The other districts exhibit slight variations since last year. If figures by divisions are taken it will be observed that an increase of one per cent. took place in Lucknow; in the other divisions there was a decline, which in Agra amounted to 7·5 per cent., in Meerut to 3 per cent., and to less than 2 per cent. in the rest.

25. The total crop area of the province fell from 41,014,764 in 1898-99 to 3,93,23,448 acres in the year of report, showing a decrease of 16,91,316 acres or 4 per cent. The decrease is shared by all the divisions of the province, though it is greatest in Agra where a drop of 4,30,975 acres or about ten per cent. took place. In Gorakhpur it was less than one per cent., and in Fyzabad 2·5 per cent. In the other divisions it was about 4 per cent. The kharíf area declined by 558,207 acres and the rabí area by 1,169,683, but the zaid area advanced by 36,574 acres owing no doubt to high prices of food-grains ruling at the time. The decrease in the kharíf area amounted to 3 per cent. and was due to the heavy and continuous rains of June and July which hampered sowings and in low lands destroyed the seed altogether. This decrease occurred in the area sown ; the area harvested being still less in consequence of the utter destruction of crops in places from drought at the end of the season. A drop of 6 per cent. occurred in the rabí area owing to insufficiency of moisture at the time of sowing specially in double-cropped lands, the area of which fell off by 1,079,759 acres. The figures for the different harvests are shown below for the past two years :—

Kharíf	21,872,583	21,314,376
Rabí	18,921,316	17,751,633
Zaid	220,865	257,439
Total cropped area ...	41,014,764	39,323,448

26. The area of the principal autumn and spring crops is compared in the following table for the past two years :—

Crops.	1898-99.	1899-1900.	Difference.
	Acres.	Acres.	Acres.
Wheat	6,348,688	6,202,826	—145,862

Peas	1,445,812	1,439,848	—5,964
Masur	281,521	247,849	—33,672
Other pulses	1,113,909	1,255,562	+141,653
Linseed...	438,728	357,880	—80,848
Til	155,178	203,604	+48,426
Rapeseed	92,679	76,180	—16,499
Sugar-cane	1,227,881	1,259,070	+31,189
Cotton	933,395	996,673	+63,278
Indigo	240,418	231,400	—9,018
Opium	364,594	404,102	+39,508
Other crops	1,449,586	1,540,759	+91,173
Total crop area ...	41,014,764	39,323,448	—16,91,316

The decrease in the area sown with maize, juar, arhar, and the small millets was caused by the heavy and incessant rains, which fell at the time of sowing these crops. A portion of the land which was not thus cultivated was devoted to rice and to bajra which it was possible to sow in the last week of July, when rain ceased. The area under these two crops therefore shows some increase since last year. The increase in the area under cotton which took place mainly in the Meerut and Agra divisions was owing to the early commencement of the rain, and that of til to the substitution of this crop for juar in Bundelkhand districts. The increase in autumn pulses is due mainly to land having been sown with these crops after an earlier crop had failed.

Among the rabí staples the only crop which shows an increase since last year is poppy, the area of which is the largest on record. The cultivation of other rabí crops was more or less restricted owing to the dryness of the soil at seed time. Irrigation had commonly to be employed before sowing, hence the greater part of the irrigated land was devoted to the more paying crop, wheat, the area of which dropped by only 2·3 per cent. as compared with the fall of 6 per cent. in the total rabí area. The cultivation of inferior crops declined largely owing mainly to the impossibility of re-sowing the rice lands for the rabí.

27. The deficiency of rain in August and September and its total absence in October, November and December rendered extensive irrigation necessary. The total irrigated area of the province rose from 9,599,508 acres in 1898-99 to 10,872,491 acres in the year of report, showing an increase of 1,272,983 acres or 13 per cent. The increase in the Rohilkhand Division was as high as 67 per cent.: in Lucknow 26, in Meerut 16, in Agra 11, and in the other divisions at about 5 per cent.

The following table compares the percentage of the irrigated to the total cropped area in the year of report with the same ratio in the dry years of 1895-96 and 1896-97:—

	1895-96.	1896-97.	1899-1900.
Kharíf	9	15	13
Rabí	38	50	52
Total ...	22	30	31

The area irrigated from wells rose by 18 per cent.; from canals by 11; from other sources by 14, and from tanks by 3 per cent. only. The variations which took place in the different sources of irrigation are given below:—

	1898-99.	1899-1900.	Difference.
	Acres	Acres.	Acres.
Irrigated from wells	5,182,887	6,121,685	+938,798
Ditto canals	1,735,082	1,924,681	+189,599
Ditto tanks	2,127,426	2,192,077	+64,651
Ditto other sources	554,113	634,048	+79,935
Total irrigated area ...	9,599,508	10,872,491	+1,272,983

The total number of masonry wells returned for 1898-99 was 309,608 of which 1,338 fell in during the year of report, while 4,600 new wells were constructed: thus there has been a net increase of 3,262 wells in the present year. If the area irrigable from wells is estimated at the rates adopted in previous years, the increased number of masonry wells raises the area protected by well irrigation from 2,831,737 acres to 2,859,743 acres.

28. Classification of holdings and rental demand and collections.—This return is as usual a year behind the area and crop returns commented on above. It has been received from all districts except Meerut, Farukhabad, Bareilly, Shâhjahânpur, Pilibhît and Kheri, and certain parganas of Aligarh, Bijnor, Etah, Azamgarh and Gonda, which were under Survey or Settlement operations. The following table compares the areas under each class of holdings in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh separately during the year 1898-99 with those of 1897-98:—

Nature of tenure.	N.-W. Provinces.			Oudh.
	1897-98.	1898-99.	Difference.	1897-98.	1898-99.	Difference.

Total holdings area ...	26,952,555	27,124,458	+171,903	9,110,368	9,179,154	+68,786

29. The total holdings area of the North-Western Provinces in 1898-99 increased by 1,71,903 acres as compared with the preceding year's area. The Benares Division shows a small decrease of 7,064 acres; in the other divisions there have been substantial increases. The increase in Jhánsi is as high as 71,117 acres and is due to the inclusion of the figures of Gur Sarai estates for which patwáris papers were prepared for the first time during the year of report. As in the preceding year, the area under sír declined by 19,139 acres. The decrease is shared by all divisions except Rohilkhand, where an increase of 10,418 acres occurred in Bijnor owing to correction of records in connection with settlement operations. The area under khudkasht again rose this year by 49,854 acres. The Rohilkhand Division shows a decrease of 8,232 acres, and Benares of 1,118 acres. In the other divisions there were increases, the largest being in Allahabad Division chiefly in Jhánsi for reasons just stated. The area held with exproprietary or privileged rights, which in the preceding year dropped by 2,643 acres, rose by 7,152 acres during 1898-99. The Agra Division exhibits a decrease of a few acres; elsewhere there was an increase. The area of land recorded as held with occupancy rights continued to decline in all districts except in Bijnor, where the new record prepared by the Settlement Officer gave an increase of 60,055 acres, with a corresponding reduction under other heads; and in Jhánsi which shows an increase of 11,839 acres. The net decrease for the province amounts to only 820 acres. The area held by tenants without declared rights continued to recover and is in excess of the preceding year's area by 1,21,341 acres. The district of Bijnor shows a decrease of 55,695 acres owing to new record of occupancy tenants, and Mirzapur of 3,067 acres; in the remaining districts there was an increase. Land held without rent, which in the preceding year dropped by 21,165 acres, increased by 13,515 acres during 1898-99 owing mainly to a transfer to this head of the rent-free area in Jhánsi, which was formerly attached to rented holdings and shown under them.

30. The total holdings area of Oudh also increased by 68,786 acres since 1897-98. The area under khudkasht fell off by 26,114 acres; the remaining heads show an increase which, in the case of land held by tenants without declared rights, amounts to 59,018 acres. The only districts, the figures of which call for notice, are Sítapur, Hardoi and Bahraich. The area held by tenants without declared rights in Sítapur rose by 27,263 acres owing, it is reported, to actual extension of cultivation: in Hardoi and Bahraich the fluctuations are due mainly to settlement operations.

31. The rent-paying area of the United Provinces in 1897-98 had risen by two lakhs of acres; during 1898-99 a similar increase, viz. from 28,079,390 to 28,278,325 acres took place. The Benares Division shows a drop of 787 acres; in the other divisions there has been an increase, which in Fyzabad amounts to 48,804 acres, in Meerut, Rohilkhand and Allahabad between 30,000 and 35,000 acres; in Agra 17,159, in Gorakhpur 11,292 and in Lucknow 22,458 acres. The total rental demand was Rs. 12,36,18,792 as compared with Rs. 12,34,51,843. The cash rental rose by Rs. 11,23,163 and "siwai" by Rs. 55,778; but the cash value of crop rental declined by Rs. 10,11,992 owing to easy prices having ruled during the year to which the figures relate. The net increase amounted to only Rs. 1,66,949. In the Meerut, Agra, Benares, Gorakhpur and Fyzabad Divisions the rental demand of the year was more than in the preceding year; in the other divisions it was less. The total collections made in the year were Rs. 11,23,99,982, of which Rs. 9,31,80,191 were on account of current year's demand and Rs. 1,92,19,791 on account of arrears of previous years. The percentage of total recorded collections on total demand of the North-Western Provinces fell from 90 to 89, but in Oudh it was the same as in the preceding year. The highest percentage of collections was in Lucknow, Unao, Rae Bareli and Partábgarh, where it was above 100, and in Dehra Dún, Saháranpur, Basti, Azamgarh, Naini Tal, Sítapur, Hardoi, Sultánpur and Bara Banki, where it varied from 95 to 99. It was lowest in Farukhabad (79); Benares (68); Gházipur (76), and Ballia (66). Elsewhere the percentage of collections ranged between 80 and 95. The low figures in the Benares Division are probably due partly to inaccurate returns, as it seems particularly difficult to ascertain actual collections in those districts. The following figures show the percentage of total recorded collections on the total demand in each division of the province for the past two years :—

Meerut	94	92
Agra	89	88
Rohilkhand	88	88
Allahabad	90	88
Benares	76	76
Gorakhpur	99	96
Naini Tal	99	99
Lucknow	97	98
Fyzabad	96	94

PART III.—NOTE ON AGRICULTURAL DEPRESSION.

32. In the note which I contributed to the report for 1898-99, I mentioned the issue of instructions intended to secure that the district reports should reach me earlier, and should contain fuller and more detailed information than had hitherto been supplied. The first reports under the new system reached me during the year under report, and I am glad to be able to say that on the whole the instructions have been carefully followed and that the information received is much fuller and more detailed than has been the case in any year since these reports were introduced. I give below a brief note on each district showing first the cases in which the rules were not carried out, and secondly, any matters of general interest that the reports contain. It will however be understood that these brief notes do not contain all the information that has reached me; it is in many cases very detailed, and though all the details will find a place in my office registers it would serve no useful purpose to include them in this report.

Dehra Dún.—No deterioration was observed.

Saháranpur.—Sudden and frequent transfers of the staff prevented any systematic enquiries except in Roorkee, where Mr. C. F. Balfour, Assistant Collector, used the pargana books with much care and judgment. There has been very little injury from drought in this locality, while the low lands along the Ganges are steadily recovering from the disasters of 1894.

Muzaffarnagar.—The deteriorated part of the Ganges khadir has not come under examination during the year, having been inspected in the previous seasons. In the Jumna khadir the greater part of pargana Bidauli has been injured by the formation of a new river channel. No immediate action is proposed as recent seasons have been so abnormal, but the Collector is watching the tract.

Meerut.—Owing to settlement operations pargana books were not available for systematic enquiries, but a good deal of information has been collected by the district staff. Pargana Loni has been found to suffer from drought; a proposal has been made to extend irrigation from the Eastern Jumna Canal. The small tracts which were mentioned in previous reports as requiring drainage have been examined by the Executive Engineer, who is considering the best remedy.

Bulandshahr.—The Collector went on leave without drawing up any note of his enquiries; and too much reliance appears to have been placed on kanúngos' reports, the Sub-Divisional Officers of three tahsíls having apparently done little in the way of personal enquiry.

The drought reduced the 1307 rabí area by more than one quarter in 529 villages. Many of these lie in sandy and broken land where the Collector thinks no remedial action is possible. A proposal is on foot to construct a branch of the canal through the centre of the district between the Kali Nadi and the Nim Nadi; this would permanently protect this portion of the district, but would involve considerable expenditure on drainage.

The Collector again brings to notice the want of a line of railway to put the cotton-growing tract north and north-east of Bulandshahr in communication with Khurja or some other town where cotton-pressing is carried on. A project to effect this improvement was brought before Government in 1896.

Aligarh.—No improvement has been visible in the deteriorated tracts on the Muttra border regarding which a full report was submitted last year. The drought has in that tract further intensified the loss caused by the gradual fall in the water level and the rabí area has again fallen. On the Collector's recommendation a special enquiry is being made as to the possibility of introducing canal irrigation, and as the two tahsíls in which it is comprised are soon coming under settlement, the inequalities of assessment which are thought to prevail will be remedied. Nothing new is reported as to the Jumna khadir, the other depressed tract of this district.

Muttra.—The whole district suffered from the scanty rainfall. A marked fall in the water level of wells has been noticed in that part of the district which adjoins Aligarh; a similar phenomenon in Aligarh was noticed in last year's report.

The weed known as "baisurai" is said to be spreading in parts of Mat, Sadabad and Mahaban; this weed does not occupy the land to the exclusion of crops, but it affects the produce.

Agra.—The pargana books were examined in detail but no special depression came to light.

Farukhabad.—The rules were complied with so far as was possible, survey and settlement preventing the compilation of statistics. No serious depression came to light.

Mainpuri.—Altogether 19 villages were found to have suffered seriously from drought in the kharíf. Eight of these lie near the Jumna in pargana Shikohabad, where water is found only at a great depth below the surface. Of the rest, four villages are in Shikohabad and seven in Barnahal. The total population affected was 9,656. Takavi was given for the construction of wells to secure as large a rabí as possible.

Etáwah.—The rules were complied with and no deterioration was observed.

Etah.—Twenty-six villages in Jalesar with a population of over Rs. 22,000 suffered from drought. An extension of canal irrigation is recommended if it is possible. Meanwhile collection of the revenue has been postponed.

The heavy rain early in the season damaged the sugarcane crop along the Burhganga, but this generally happens, the crop being rather speculative in this locality.

Bareilly.—Systematic enquiries were hindered by the want of statistics, the district being under settlement. Owing to the early cessation of the monsoon rains the early rice was a partial and the late rice a total failure in the important rice tracts of Baheri, Nawabganj and northern Bareilly tahsíls. What rice there was, was also considerably damaged by the ravages of a caterpillar known as "suri."

Bijnor.—The early cessation of the rains injured the kharíf all over the district and particularly injured the cane crop which is relied on for payment of rent. The rabí area was contracted owing to the same cause and the crops were not good, the loss being greatest in tahsíl Bijnor, where irrigation is not available.

Caterpillars did a great deal of harm to the rice in some localities and white ants attacked the cane and the rabí all over the district.

Cattle disease was also severe in many villages; and the Collector, writing in May, remarked that on the whole the district must be classed as depressed; but that a good kharíf would set matters right.

Budaun.—The rules were not fully complied with by the Sub-divisional officers: the Collector promises to ensure compliance this year. In the early part of the year floods caused some damage in a few villages on the Mohawa, as they do almost every year. The rest of the district suffered much less than was anticipated from the short rainfall in the autumn, and the present run of dry seasons is gradually restoring prosperity to the deteriorated bhur tracts.

Moradabad.—The rules were not fully complied with. There was a partial failure of the kharíf, especially in the rice-growing tracts of which pargana Thakurdwara suffered most. The rabí was however good.

Sháhjahánpur.—Systematic enquiries were hindered by the want of statistics, the district being under settlement. The early cessation of the rains injured the crops in 127 villages of Jamaur, and 98 of Jallalabad, where rice is largely grown. The rabí area also was restricted, but the yield was good. The Nigohi matiar tract (56 villages) suffered more; the late rice failed entirely and the rice land could not be resown: the rest of the rabí was however good.

Pilibhít.—The rules could not be carried out fully as the patwáris were engaged in surveying, and annual figures were not on record.

Seven villages in Puranpur are reported to suffer from the ravages of wild animals: and in seven other villages of the pargana mismanagement or oppression by the landlords has, as usual in such tracts, resulted in the reduction of the cultivated area.

Cawnpore.—The depressed tracts have been carefully watched for several years past, and reductions of revenue granted wherever necessary. They are improving: kans is gradually disappearing from the land along the Jumna, and in the dry raviny villages along the rivers the effects of the drought of 1304 fasli are passing away.

Fatehpur.—The Collector and his assistants have carefully examined the district and have supplied me with much detailed information, from which the following may be abstracted.

The drainage of two small tracts was found to be obstructed by the new canal, and the Irrigation Department has been consulted. The Commissioner remarks that when a series of wet years recur complaints of flooding are likely to be numerous, and suggests that the Irrigation Department should pay special attention to the matter.

Kans is found in 29 villages, but is decreasing. There are some isolated tracts where the crops are injured by pigs and deer, and the Collector is arranging to give arms licenses in these parts where trustworthy men can be found.

The Collector notes that Pandit Ram Prasada and M. Rafi-ud-din Ahmad, Deputy Collectors, have shown much interest in the collection of information, and I am glad to bring their names before the Board of Revenue.

Bánda.—The greater portion of this district has been in a deteriorated condition for the last six years, and special measures of relief by wholesale reductions of revenue have had in consequence to be adopted. At present kans is reported to be fast disappearing everywhere, and there is no doubt that, but for the peculiar weather conditions of the past year, the cultivated area which had contracted seriously owing to the famine and the bad times preceding it, would have recovered itself to a considerable extent. The early cessation of the rains however injured all the kharíf crops except til to some extent, while in some villages where rainfall was specially insufficient, the rabí crops failed to germinate. These cases were met by liberal grants of takavi. Portions of certain villages in tahsíl Kamasin are liable to water-logging and are under the observation of the Collector. On the whole the district is in an improving state, and the excellent crops of the present season should initiate a new period of prosperity.

Hamírpur.—The district has been carefully examined with the aid of the pargana books, and the Collector reports that deterioration is most marked in parganas Sumerpur, Mandaha, Muskara and in a few villages in Rath and Hamírpur. From the detailed accounts of these tracts furnished by the Collector it appears that the most usual causes of depression are (1) the spread of kans, (2) the injury caused by deer and pig, (3) the careless or harsh management of certain landlords. In the last class however the Commissioner is not satisfied that mismanagement explains everything, and that natural causes have not contributed to the depression. The Collector also mentions that the people living about Jalalpur have been injuriously affected by the construction of railways, and consequent decay of the carrying trade.

Allahabad.—The Collector has sent me a full and interesting report, but he mentions that the pargana officers, although given full instructions, did not make enquiries very intelligently or thoroughly.

The south of the district, always peculiarly sensitive to defects in the rainfall, was saved from distress by the rain of January. The rabí area was however restricted, and suspension of revenue became necessary in parts of three tahsíls. The recovery which had set in was thus checked; but the Collector hopes that with normal rainfall there may be good progress in the current year.

Fifty villages in the tahsíls north of the Ganges have been noted as liable to injury from flood in wet years; drainage is possible in at least some cases but is prevented by the objections of neighbouring proprietors.

Kans—Is much on the decrease south of the Jumna, and elsewhere it is found only to a limited extent and in a few villages.

Jhánsi.—The deteriorated tracts in this district were inspected by Mr. Hoare in the season of 1898-99, and proposals for reduction submitted. Further enquiries were made in 1899-1900 into the cases of the following number of villages and their circumstances reported to the Board of Revenue :—

Pargana.	No. of villages.
Jhánsi	8
Moth	9
Mau	7
Garotha	23

In some cases reductions were proposed and in others remissions.

With the exception of a tract in Jhánsi tahsíl where there is a considerable area of well irrigation and of a belt of superior mar land in tahsíl, Moth, the whole of Jhánsi (with Lalitpur) may be regarded as precarious the black soil tracts owing to kans, and the red soil tracts owing to their peculiar liability to suffer from drought. Among the former the Garotha pargana and the east of Mau, and among the latter pargana Talbehat, the portion of Jhánsi adjoining the Betwa river and a part of Balabehat are said to be in the worst condition. During the present year drought has been severe throughout the district and has affected both soils to some extent, the red soil in the kharíf and the black soil in the rabí. The red soil tracts have however suffered less than was expected, and kans, which is at once the cause and the indication of agricultural depression in the mar and kabar soils, is said to be on the decrease. The fall in value of the Gajashahi rupee is a most serious cause of revenue difficulties in this district. Some reductions of revenue have been allowed in the villages most affected, but I am unaware whether anything has been done to settle the general question.

Jalaun.—The mar and kabar tract referred to in last year's report suffered first from excess of rain and then from drought. The Commissioner remarks that some system of fluctuating assessments seems to be required for it.

Benares.—The Collector reports that the pargana books were duly scrutinized, but that no depression came to light.

Mirzapur.—The rules did not receive sufficient attention: only one subdivisional officer sent in a note and the Collector left the district in March without leaving any record of his views. No depression is reported.

Jaunpur.—Eighteen villages on the borders of Allahabad and Partábgarh have suffered from excessive accumulation of water in the Korila Tal. Bunds have been tried, but merely shift the evil, and the Collector thinks that a drainage cut six miles long is the only remedy likely to prove effective.

A weed which has been identified as Pluchea lanceolata, does a great deal of damage in pargana Zafarabad. It is a very hardy and deep-rooted weed, and the people consider that it cannot be exterminated. The Director of the Botanical Department of Northern India tells me that he knows of no successful means to eradicate it.

Gházipur.—Enquiries showed that no depression existed during the year. There was serious injury to the rabí, caused by the cyclone and hailstorm of January, but the Collector considers its results will only be temporary. The enquiries to be made next cold weather will doubtless show whether the effects of the storm have passed away, or whether any depression has resulted.

Ballia.—There were floods during the autumn in parganas Sikandarpur west, Bhadaon and Kharid in tracts which suffer in most years from the same cause. The Collector mentions that a project for constructing embankments to restrain the flood water of the Sarju is under enquiry. The rabí over a great part of the district was very severely injured during January by a cyclonic storm accompanied by hail: proposals for suspension of rent and revenue have been drawn up, and it is hoped that the serious losses will not lead to more than temporary depression.

Gorakhpur.—There was no depression during the year. The floods which are of annual occurrence in parts of the district were comparatively unimportant.

Basti.—The rules have been carefully complied with under the close supervision of the Collector and much detailed information has been recorded in the pargana books. Altogether deterioration has been noticed in 149 villages scattered over the district, and it has not in any case been sufficiently serious to cause any difficulties in paying the revenue. The injury is in most cases due to floods in the villages along the Rapti. Some villages in tahsíl Harraya adjoining the Government forests in Gonda suffer from the depredations of wild animals; similar complaints have been received from Gonda in previous years.

Azamgrah.—Systematic enquiries have been hindered by the want of statistics, the district being under survey. The heavy rainfall of June and July injured the kharíf and cane crops; the cane and paddy were also attacked by various insect pests. Some villages in Deogaon suffered very severely from an outbreak of rinderpest.

Almora.—There are no village records in this district, but the sub-divisional officers while on tour paid due attention to the subject of agricultural depression. No depression was discovered.

Garhwál.—Parts of the Lansdowne sub-division have suffered from depression, resulting from insufficiency of the autumn and lateness of the winter rains. The Deputy Commissioner writes that the depression will leave its mark for a couple of seasons in the southern parganas: the condition of these has been described in a careful report by Pandit Dharmanand Joshi, Deputy Collector.

Naini Tal.—The report gives a full description of two deteriorated tracts in Kashipur tahsíl. One of these was described in last year's report; the other lies between the town of Kashipur and the Kosi river, and includes 34 villages. In both tracts cultivation and population have decreased, and the jungle has extended, threatening the cultivation that remains. The causes of deterioration are numerous, but want of irrigation appears to be the chief. The Commissioner remarks that these tracts have been somewhat neglected in the past, but that attention is now being given to their needs.

Lucknow.—Enquiries were duly made and no deterioration came to light.

Unao.—Proposals for reduction of revenue have been made in most of the villages comprised in the tracts specified last year. They are said however to be slowly improving. Besides these, the condition of the bhur tract running from Asiwan to Hasanganj and of certain rice villages in parganas Jhalotar-Ajgain and Gorinda-Pasandan, and of some scattered villages in other parts of the district, requires watching. Many villages have been inspected and proposals made for reduction of revenue.

Rae Bareli.—Careful enquiries were made but no deterioration was discovered. Most of the villages classed as precarious are liable to floods, and these benefited by the dry autumn.

Sítápur.—The pargana books were utilized so far as available, but no deterioration was observed.

Hardoi.—Insufficient rainfall considerably affected the kharíf in tahsíl Shahabad, and parts of Bilgram and Pali. The rabí area in the two former tahsíls was also much restricted owing to lack of moisture.

Kheri.—No depression was detected.

Fyzabad.—The district was carefully inspected and no depression noticed.

Gonda.—No deterioration was brought to light.

Bahraich.—The tracts liable to depression are the north of pargana Bhinga, pargana Tulshipur (especially the eastern portion), and (to a less extent) pargana Dharmanpur. These suffer from want of water and from depredations of wild animals; while the land is unpopular with cultivators owing to the bad climate and to the forest rules. The Deputy Commissioner is not sanguine as to the possibility of improving these tracts.

Sultánpur.—Ten villages were seriously affected by a hailstorm during the year, but there was no other depression.

Partábgarh.—The district was carefully examined during the year with the aid of the pargana books and hand-books. No widespread depr ssion came to light, such injury as was noticed being confined as a rule to portions of villages. The advisability of protective works, was where necessary, brought to the notice of the zamíndárs.

Bara Banki.—The rules were practically ignored; and I have requested the Commissioner's assistance to secure that more attention is paid to the matter in future. No information of a general character was obtained.

33. The foregoing abstracts when compared with those submitted last year, furnish materials for some remarks of general interest. The fluctuations in the rainfall, and their effects on the prosperity of the different parts of the provinces have been discussed in a former chapter of this report, and need not be recapitulated. In almost every case where reference is made to the effects of drought the damage is expected to be only temporary; but in parts of Muttra and Aligarh the fact of a serious fall in the water level appears to be fairly established, and the effects of this must be recurring and cumulative.

34. It is satisfactory to notice that kans is on the decrease in almost all the districts where it has recently been prevalent; and that the plague of field rats which caused some alarm in Hardoi and some adjoining districts in 1899, has altogether disappeared. The rice crop of 1899 was attacked by caterpillars which appeared and multiplied with extraordinary rapidity during August, but they disappeared almost as rapidly as they came, and left no permanent injury behind. Of other enemies to agriculture, rinderpest continues to be the most serious, and the losses of stock from this cause have been particularly heavy in some parts of Bundelkhand and in Azamgarh. Proposals were submitted for the employment of a special officer to take charge of matters connected with cattle disease and cattle breeding, but difficulties of recruitment prevent anything being done at present.

35. The heavy storms which affected the rabí crop in the Eastern districts did a good deal of direct damage, and they were followed by an unusually severe attack of some form or forms of rust, which affected barley more than wheat; it is not however anticipated that the loss was sufficient to cause permanent depression.

36. In last year's report I mentioned the steps that had been taken to improve the system of bringing agricultural information on record in my office. The statistical entries in my office registers are now complete and up to date; and I find the registers even more useful than I had anticipated. In addition to statistics these registers are intended to contain an abstract of all information that can be collected from my records as regards the liability of any tract to depression. The collection of this information requires a good deal of time: but before proceeding on deputation I was able to complete five districts of the Meerut Division and to make some progress with Agra. Notes for two of the Bundelkhand districts were also compiled by Mr. Fremantle when acting for me. The rest of the work will be pressed on as fast as possible, and meanwhile every care is being taken to bring all new information on record as it is received.

ORDERS OF GOVERNMENT.

No. $\frac{1570}{\text{I—417E}}$ OF 1901.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Naini Tal, the 23rd May 1901.

READ—

Letter from the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. $\frac{902}{\text{XII—163}}$, dated 15th March 1901 (received on 11th April 1901), being the Board's Report on the Revenue Administration of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh for the year ending 30th September 1900.

OBSERVATIONS—The year ending 30th September 1900 was, on the whole, a more prosperous one for the agricultural community than its predecessor. The outturn of the harvest varied greatly in different parts of the Provinces, and was below the average of an ordinary year. But, owing to the scarcity prevailing in Rájputána, the Central Provinces, and the Bombay Presidency, prices ruled high, and the money value of the crops was greatly enhanced.

Rainfall and harvests. (Paragraphs 4 to 8.)

2. Over the Provinces the rainfall averaged 41½ inches, only 3 inches below the average of the previous five years. But its distribution was extraordinarily irregular, varying from 16·6 inches in Muttra to 72·4 inches in Gorakhpur. The monsoon of 1899 broke with unusual strength: but it closed early, and, except in the eastern divisions, the September rainfall was inadequate. Dry westerly winds set in during October and a period of some anxiety followed, until relieved by the winter rains. These were ample, except in the Meerut and Agra Divisions, where the monsoon rains had also proved inadequate.

3. The crops necessarily suffered under these adverse conditions. The autumn outturn was only half the average in the Meerut Division, and less than half in the western districts of the Agra Division, and in Jhánsi. Elsewhere it is estimated at three-fourths of a normal crop. Nor was the short outturn of the autumn recompensed by an abundant spring harvest. The winter rains failed in the districts where the autumn crops had been poorest, and the unirrigated lands of the western districts, and of Jhánsi and Jalaun, gave a scanty outturn. Elsewhere the crops, excepting sugarcane, were fair, though hailstorms in January and March did considerable harm; the January storm being of peculiar extent and intensity, causing injury to most of the southern districts of the Provinces. The year closed with favourable prospects, and the recent autumn harvests, with the exception of rice, have been, generally speaking, good.

Public health and cattle disease. (Paragraphs 10 and 11.)

4. The public health continued fairly good. Deaths from fever were far less numerous than in 1898-99, and the mortality from small-pox was low. Cholera, however, was prevalent in every division of the Provinces, and the eastern districts suffered severely. Plague made its appearance in a large village (Mau Aima) of the Allahabad district and in a few adjacent hamlets, but was stamped out after four months of sustained effort, 121 deaths being recorded. Other districts showed some imported cases of plague. With these exceptions, the Provinces escaped the scourge. Cattle disease was prevalent during the year, but except in a few districts did not appear in an epidemic form. The apathy and prejudices of the people continue to prevent the enforcement of segregation, and inoculation is making slow progress. But veterinary hospitals have been opened in three districts, and several District Boards are arranging to send their veterinary assistants to study inoculation at the Muktesar Laboratory. It is satisfactory to note that cattle poisoning by Chamárs is decreasing, and that in the Fyzabad district large panchâyats of the caste have excommunicated men who have been convicted of the offence.

Prices. (Paragraph 12.)

5. Prices ruled high throughout the year. There was a slight fall after the autumn crops were brought into the market, but the continuous drain of export to the regions afflicted by scarcity or famine, which had begun before the year under review opened, continued without intermission, and maintained prices at rates little lower than those prevailing in the famine year 1896-97. There were none of the marked oscillations that characterized the previous year. The variations between the rates of the finer and of the coarser grains were small: and but for the enormous influx of capital in return for the grain exported, and the continuous demand for labour, the pressure on the poorer classes would have been severe.

Total demand and collections. (Paragraph 13.)

6. The high prices which ruled made the year a fairly prosperous one for the agriculturist, and, except in certain depressed tracts, the collection of revenue has been, generally speaking, satisfactory. The total demand from the various heads of revenue detailed in chapter II of the Board's report was 886 lakhs, the receipts being 842 lakhs. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 922 and 853 lakhs. The smaller demand for the year is due to the smaller amounts of suspended revenue remaining to be collected. An improvement in the percentage of collections accompanies the reduced demand.

Current demand. Land revenue on the roll. (Paragraphs 14 to 16.)

7. The amount of land revenue due for the year under review is 6,18,82,443 [redacted], two-thirds of a lakh less than in 1898-99. There is an increase of over 3 lakhs on account of recent revisions of settlement, chiefly in the Oudh districts: but against this must be set a decrease of $3\frac{3}{4}$ lakhs, of which close on 3 lakhs is due to reductions or annulment of assessments in the deteriorated trans-Jumna tracts of the Allahabad Division and in Cawnpore. The collections were over 606 lakhs, leaving less than 13 lakhs outstanding at the close of the year. The recoverable balance is only Rs. 9,17,000, a result which is satisfactory. Over 5 lakhs of this sum represent suspended revenue.

8. The arrears are due from the North-Western Provinces, Oudh having practically paid its revenue in full. The effects of famine have been practically obliterated in Oudh and it has now regained its former state of prosperity. The balance in the Meerut (excepting the Aligarh district) and Gorakhpur Divisions are small, but the Allahabad

Division is over 4 lakhs in default, and the Aligarh, Muttra, Bijnor, Sháhjahánpur, Jaunpur, Gházipur, and Naini Tal districts show considerable arrears. In the Bundelkhand and trans-Jumna tracts of the Allahabad Division the year under review has not been a favourable one. In parts of the Jhánsi district there was substantial crop failure, which caused a limited degree of distress calling for measures of relief. Generally in Bundelkhand there has not been the same degree of recovery from the effect of the famines of 1896 and 1897 as the rest of the Provinces present. The tract is largely black soil in which the káns weed has taken hold, and the landholders have been impoverished by a succession of bad seasons. Special measures for the improvement of this region have been sanctioned, and further measures are under consideration; a scheme of light railways, to be carried out by the Indian Midland Railway, in the Jalaun, Hamírpur and Bánda districts, has been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor; and a programme of roads, some metalled, to cost over 2½ lakhs of rupees, has been sanctioned. Estimates for additional roads, which will cost nearly two lakhs, have been called for. An important scheme of irrigation in connexion with the Ken River, estimated to cost about 45 lakhs, is nearly ready; this will go a long way to protect agriculture in the Bánda district. A similar scheme in connexion with the Dassán River, estimated to cost 40 lakhs, will be undertaken next cold weather; this will afford considerable protection to the Hamírpur district. The improvement of the Paricha Weir on the Betwa, which has been effected, has given a much larger measure of protection to the Jalaun district than it has hitherto enjoyed. Besides these projects several minor works are under the consideration of the Irrigation Department; when completed they will, in conjunction with the Ken and Dassán schemes, give Bundelkhand a degree of protection from drought it has not hitherto enjoyed. Finally the question of the indebtedness of the proprietors is now under the consideration of Government, temporary relief having been given by remission of arrears of revenue.

The arrears in Aligarh, Muttra, and Bijnor are due to the short rainfall and the consequent failure of the corps. No adequate explanation has been given of the arrears in Sháhjahánpur. There has been a want of energy shown in the revenue administration of Jaunpur; and the Lieutenant-Governor regrets that for two years in succession the administration of this district has called for unfavourable comment. The Gházipur arrears are mainly due to suspensions on account of a destructive hailstorm. The arrears in Naini Tal, which are relatively large, amounting to nearly 7 per cent. of the revenue, are not referred to by the Board. The Commissioner states that they are due to deterioration in the Káshipur pargana and a report is promised. In Azamgarh, where the collections of the previous year denoted imperfect control, good results have been obtained, the arrears which stood at over a lakh of rupees being reduced to a nominal sum.

Arrears of previous years. (Paragraphs 17 to 23.)

9. Progress continues to be made in clearing off the arrears that accumulated as a result of the famine. At the beginning of 1897-98 these stood at 163 lakhs, a year later at 86 lakhs, and at the beginning of the year under review at 42 lakhs. Of this sum eight lakhs has been written off on account of remissions of revenue and annulments of settlement. Thirty-four lakhs remained for collection: 30½ lakhs being recoverable within the year. Nearly 80 per cent. of this demand has been collected, a satisfactory result in view of the unfavourable conditions of the year. The outstanding uncollected arrears amount to 22½ lakhs: nearly ten lakhs representing the balance of former years, the remainder being due on account of the current demand. The outstanding demand is chiefly due from the Sháhjahánpur district and the Allahabad Division. In Sháhjahánpur the arrears amount to a lakh, and the result is probably due to imperfect control: the administration of the district has since improved under a more experienced Collector. The outstanding balance from the Allahabad Division reaches the sum of 3¼ lakhs, and is due to the slow recovery of the Bundelkhand districts from famine and the effects of subsequent poor harvests. It is gratifying to learn from the Director that the present year's harvests in Bundelkhand are good, and that káns shows a tendency to decrease.

Canal rates. (Paragraphs 26-27.)

10. The inadequate rainfall of the year in the western parts of the Provinces led to keen competition for canal water, and the demand for occupier's rates reached nearly 80 lakhs, or only two lakhs less than in the famine year. The extension of the Lower Ganges Canal has brought canal water into the Allahabad district for the first time. The demand was collected practically in full, the newly irrigated districts Allahabad and Fatehpur showing the only appreciable arrears.

Advances (taqávi). (Paragraphs 29 to 34.)

11. With less favourable seasons the demands for taqávi revived. Nearly 3 lakhs were advanced under the Land Improvement Loans Act and over 4 lakhs under the Agriculturists Loans Act. More than a half of the amounts advanced under the former Act were made to tenants, but it is not understood why in the Allahabad Division no advances were sanctioned free of interest. Collections show some slight improvement as compared with the previous year, the percentages having increased from 72 and 50 last year to 75 and 55 under the respective Acts. Large sums are outstanding, especially in the Allahabad Division, where the collections were poor: ¾ lakhs remaining in arrear at the close of the year due under Act XII of 1884. But the circumstances of the season justify leniency in enforcing recoveries.

State properties. (Paragraph 35.)

12. The income from Government estates continues to increase, and now stands at over 8½ lakhs. The rental of the extensive Government properties in the Kumaun Division amounts to over 6 lakhs and is practically collected in full. Elsewhere the collections, though better than in the previous year, are poor, nearly a quarter of the demand remaining in arrears. The principal remaining properties are situated in the districts of Bánda and Allahabad, where agricultural conditions are depressed, and in Mirzapur. In all these districts large arrears have accrued. The Lieutenant-Governor notes that a larger sum has been devoted to improvements than in the previous year: but, except in Kumaun, where improvements costing Rs. 2,15,000 were carried out, only Rs. 18,000 has been spent, and he trusts that the Board will see that their orders directing a more liberal expenditure are carried out.

Collection of revenue. Coercive processes. (Paragraphs 38 to 41.)

13. Notwithstanding the adverse conditions which have been mentioned as prevailing in certain parts of the Provinces, there has not been a large resort to coercive processes in the collection of the revenue. Fewer writs were issued than in the previous year, 32,557, against 33,755, and the Board are of opinion that they were used with discretion. The remark appears, generally speaking, correct. But in some districts there would appear to be room for further discrimination by District Officers. The total number of writs issued in the Gorakhpur Division (9,715) appears excessive. There have been rather fewer arrests during the year, but the excessive use of this process in Azamgarh (1,173), and in Meerut (320), needs justification. The large decrease in the number of cases of attachment of movables is satisfactory, and, considering the very inadequate results obtained, as a rule, from this process, a further decrease may be hoped for in the future. The statistics for the severer forms of process bring into prominence the unfavourable conditions of the year. The number of estates attached for arrears has risen from 1,202 to 1,640. Nearly three-fourths of these estates are in the Allahabad Division: 816 in the Allahabad district. The Board are of opinion that the number of estates attached is not excessive. But, if this view is correct, it is not understood why this district alone should show more than twice as many mahâls under attachment as the remaining six districts of the division combined. The results do not appear to justify the action taken: for less than half the rental demand was collected. There were 50 cases of transfer to solvent sharers in the Allahabad district. The entire Provinces show only 105 cases; and it is a matter for surprise that more use is not made of this highly efficient process. Annulments of settlement have increased from 123 to 211, and are practically confined to the Allahabad Division (193), the greatest number of cases arising in the Jalaun and Hamírpur districts. It is obvious from the figures given above that the revenue difficulties of the Provinces practically centre in Bundelkhand and the three trans-Jumna tahsíls of the Allahabad district. In paragraph 8 above some of the executive measures taken and under consideration to improve the condition of this region have been enumerated: the further discussion of the subject will be conducted in a different connexion.

It is a matter for satisfaction that the revenue in Oudh is being borne with comparative ease. In Hardoi a revision of assessment is proceeding, and proposals for temporary reduction of revenue in certain mahâls in Unao on account of deterioration are under discussion. But the revenue of the Province has been collected on the whole without difficulty, and with little resort to the severer processes. Only 90 estates were under temporary attachment; there were 13 transfers, and in 7 cases only was annulment of settlement proposed. There were 9 cases of sale of mahâls, 7 in the North-Western Provinces and 2 in Oudh.

Rent law litigation. (Paragraphs 45 to 70.)

14. Litigation reached high water mark in the North-Western Provinces in the year under review. In 1898-99 the number of suits filed (124,221) was the highest on record, and the present year shows a further increase of 10,255 : 134,476 suits having been instituted. But the rise in applications is more extraordinary : they number 228,979, an increase of 70,619 on the figures of the preceding year.

Increase in rent suits. (Paragraph 46.)

15. The increase in rental litigation is due mainly to the larger number (9,657) of arrears of rent suits instituted, and is not a matter for surprise. The increase is common to every division in the Provinces except Allahabad, which in the preceding year had shown an abnormally large number of institutions. The Northern Divisions—Meerut, Agra, and Rohilkhand—account for the greater number of suits ; but isolated cases of exceptional litigation occur, e.g. in Jaunpur, where the increase in institutions is greater than in any other district in the Provinces, the number of cases having risen from 8,647 to 11,235. Various reasons are assigned for the general increase, but the dominating cause is beyond doubt the desire of the landlords to secure by decree the arrears of the famine year 1896-97, which would otherwise have been time-barred. It must be remembered that during the past three years the landlords of the Provinces have had to meet the demands for large arrears of suspended revenue and taqávi, in addition to paying the current revenue. A year of high prices has given them the opportunity of recouping themselves from their tenants, and it is not surprising that they took advantage of it. Local reasons are assigned for the increase in litigation in certain districts. In Jaunpur the exceptionally large number of suits instituted is attributed to greater activity by the Court of Wards, a statement which requires to be explained. The greater activity in rental litigation was accompanied with an increase in suits for profits and for arrears of revenue.

Increase in ejectment proceedings. (Paragraphs 48 to 53.)

16. The salient feature, however, in the litigation of the year is the extraordinary increase in the issue of notices of ejectment (section 36). They number 94,283 against 59,081 in the preceding year. An examination of the returns shows that every division has contributed to the increase—the Meerut Division taking the lead, with an advance of 140 per cent. on the figures of the preceding year—the percentage of increase in the Meerut district being 250 per cent. The figures of the other divisions are of a less startling nature. In the Allahabad, Benares and Gorakhpur Divisions the issue of notices, though showing a marked increase, does not appear to point to any special tension between landlords and tenants ; but in the Meerut, and in a lesser degree in the Agra and Rohilkhand Divisions, the determination of the landlords to forestall impending legislation, and to deprive the cultivators of the security which the proposed Tenancy Act will confer upon them, is clearly indicated. The statistics collated by the Board show that in nine cases out of ten the landlords were within their legal rights in issuing the notices, and, as a matter of fact, the proportion of cases successfully contested by the tenants was lower than in the previous year. Even in the Meerut district, where the enormous number of 12,849 notices were issued, less than 5 per cent. were successfully contested by the tenants : the average for the Provinces of such cases being close on 10 per cent. But although the landlords have acted within their legal rights, it may be doubted whether they have acted considerately by their tenants.

If the landlords were within the letter of the law in the issue of notices under section 36, the increase of the notices of relinquishment by tenants indicates that action of a questionable character is being taken by landlords to secure the ejectment of the tenants. In the Meerut Division the number of these notices has nearly trebled, and in the Meerut and Bulandshahr districts, where the proprietary bodies are exceptionally powerful, has nearly quadrupled. The Agra and Rohilkhand Divisions also contribute large increases. It is in these three divisions that the issue of notices of ejectment has been greatest, and, though local causes may account for occasional variations in the figures, their general trend leads irresistibly to the conclusion that the landlords are exercising unfair pressure to induce the tenants to resign their holdings, and avoid the expense and uncertainty of legal proceedings. It is more satisfactory to note that there is no appreciable increase in the number of notices (section 35) to eject right-of-occupancy tenants, the provincial figures being 26,386 against 26,111 in 1898-99. But here, again, the three northern divisions show a considerably enhanced number of notices, counterbalanced by the smaller numbers issued in the Allahabad and Benares Divisions. Applications for enhancement show an increase from 6,854 to 9,719. Except in a few districts these applications have not been numerous: Budaun heads the list with 3,011 cases, Bulandshahr shows 1,983, Muzaffarnagar 782. The reasons for the increase are not given. In Budaun it is no doubt due to the desire of the landlords to level up the rentals which they refrained from enhancing until settlement proceedings were completed. The litigation in Bulandshahr is represented by the Board as being due to the strong anti-tenant feeling existing in that district: but it is to be noted that the neighbouring district of Meerut contributes only 35 cases. The above cases were decided in the District Courts. There were, besides these, 9,514 cases of enhancement, abatement or determination of rent before the Settlement Courts, 3,605 being decided in the year.

Oudh Rent Law litigation. (Paragraphs 58 to 64.)

17. In Oudh rent litigation has been of a more normal character. There has been an increase in suits from 37,061 to 39,912. This is partly due to the larger number of suits for arrears of rent, but the most marked rise is under the head "Recovery of occupancy." The year on the whole was a good one for the Province, and the tenants showed a keen desire to recover the holdings which had been abandoned in previous years of distress. There has also been an increase in the number of applications, but it is not of a particularly noticeable character. The main reason for the increase is probably the attempt to put pressure on tenants to secure arrears: but in some of the districts bordering on the North-Western Provinces the more ignorant landlords believed that the proposals of the North-Western Provinces Tenancy Act were to be extended to Oudh, and proceeded to issue notices of ejectment as a precautionary measure.

Disposal of cases. (Paragraphs 68 to 70.)

18. In paragraph 68 of their report the Board have prepared some interesting statistics, showing the relative amount of cases for disposal in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh respectively. Owing to the different method of tabulation in Oudh a detailed comparison is not practicable. But, excluding execution of decree cases for which returns are not forthcoming, there were in the North-Western Provinces 462,758 cases for disposal against 86,620 in Oudh. In other words, the volume of litigation in the North-Western Provinces is more than five times as great as in Oudh, though the population is less than three times as numerous. This striking difference is mainly due to the freedom of the smaller province from litigation regarding occupancy right, and it indicates the necessity of placing that question on a satisfactory basis. An exact comparison of the proportion of contested cases in the two provinces cannot be given; but the Board's estimate is that in Oudh the percentage is 23·57 per cent., nearly twice as high as in the North-Western Provinces. In other words, the machinery of the North-Western Provinces Courts is put into motion to a great extent for purposes other than the settlement of disputes. In Kumaun the proportion of contested cases is still higher than in Oudh. But there is little rent litigation in this division, though it deserves remark that no less than 118 cases remained for decision at the close of the year out of 757 suits instituted.

19. It is satisfactory to learn that in spite of the enormous increase, work was disposed of by the Courts with commendable despatch. In the North-Western Provinces the average duration of contested suits rose only two days from 1 month 18 days to 1 month and 20 days, while uncontested suits show the same duration, 27 days, as in the previous year. Applications both contested and uncontested show improvement. In Oudh the duration of contested suits is 1 month 18 days, of uncontested suits 29 days. The number of suits pending for more than three months at the close of the year was 249 in the North-Western Provinces : 387 in Oudh, the Rae Bareli and Gonda districts being chiefly responsible for the comparatively large total in Oudh. The returns, however, show on the whole improvement on the previous year, and the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to endorse the commendation of the Board and acknowledge the energy of the Courts in dealing with a largely enhanced tale of work. The statistics given in the previous paragraphs do not include cases dealt with in the Settlement Courts in the North-Western Provinces. These numbered 36,306, more than a fourth of them suits for enhancement.

Proceedings for the recovery of under-proprietary rent in Oudh. (Paragraph 64.)

20. The action taken by the Collectors in Oudh for the recovery of under-proprietary rent under the provisions of section 158, Oudh Rent Act, claims brief notice. Applications by the superior proprietors increased from 1,204 to 2,110, and collections were Rs. 3,54,000, leaving a balance of Rs. 70,000 for recovery. The figures indicate an improvement on those of the previous year, when arrears amounted to a lakh and collections to $2\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs. The arrears are heaviest in the Gonda and Sultánpur districts, which account for more than three-fourths of the provincial arrears. The necessity for the prompt collection of these arrears has been brought to the notice of the Local Government during the year, and the Lieutenant-Governor again desires to call the attention of District Officers to the responsibility which the law places upon them to collect the rent as though it were land revenue, and to see that their subordinate officials exercise necessary firmness in dealing with these cases.

Work of appellate Courts under the Rent Act. (Paragraphs 71 to 74.)

21. Appellate work does not show an increase commensurate with the enhanced number of original institutions. Appeals to Collectors under the Rent Act were 3,650 in the North-Western Provinces against 3,603 in the previous year, and in Oudh the corresponding figures are 946 and 871. The total figures, including Kumaun, are 4,647 against 4,523 in the previous year. Including arrears 5,000 appeals came up for decision : 8 per cent. remained pending at the close of the year. The appellate work of the Rohilkhand and Benares divisions was especially heavy. The proportion of decisions reversed was largest in the Meerut and Gorakhpur Divisions, but speaking generally the decisions stood the test of appeal better than in the previous year, the percentage of unmodified decisions having risen from 56 to 60. The average duration of appeals was 1 month and 6 days. The number of appeals to Judges shows a slight increase from 2,085 to 2,152. It is satisfactory to note that the pending file has decreased from 1,648 to 1,146, but the duration of these appeals in the North-Western Provinces is still extremely high—10 months and 23 days. In Oudh it is a little over 4 months. The Meerut and Rohilkhand Divisions show 694 cases pending, and of these 579 had been pending more than three months at the close of the year. The percentage of orders confirmed was 57, reversals being most numerous in the Benares Division, where the case work is of a complicated character.

There has been a slight decrease in appeals to Commissioners, 5,744 being instituted; 5,106 were decided by Commissioners and 497 transferred to Collectors. There is an appreciable decrease from 516 to 368 in the number of appeals summarily rejected. The decisions of the lower Courts were upheld in 73 per cent. of the cases—a satisfactory result. The pending file is, however, a heavy one and has risen from 1,834 to 1,951 cases. In both Meerut and Agra Divisions over 600 cases are pending : in the latter division 95 over three months.

Work of appellate Courts under the Land Revenue Acts. (Paragraphs 93 to 95.)

22. The above figures do not, however, represent the full work of the Revenue Appellate Courts. In addition to Rent Act appeals, 6,000 appeals were instituted during the year under the Land Revenue Act : 3,806 (not 3,086 as stated in paragraph 93 of the Board's report) in Collectors' Courts, 2,158 in Commissioners' Courts. These figures show a slight decrease on those of the preceding year. The pending file was reduced from 857 to 762 cases. A large number of the appeals decided under the Land Revenue Act are of a comparatively simple nature : but the partition and mutation suits are frequently of considerable complexity and add appreciably to the appellate work of the Courts.

Judicial work of the Board of Revenue. (Paragraphs 74 and 95.)

23. Under the Rent Act and Kumaun rules the Board of Revenue had 2,330 cases for disposal and decided 1,890. Of these cases 1,558 were cases of revision under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 486 were appeals under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 255 under the Oudh Rent Act; 31 were Kumaun appeals. The Oudh Rent Act, it will be noted, contains no provisions allowing cases to be dealt with in revision by the Board. The results of appeals are better than in the preceding year, the orders of the Lower Courts being altered in 10 per cent. of the revision and in 11 per cent. of the appeal cases. Under the Revenue Acts and Family Domains Law there were 881 cases: of these 803 were disposed of. The Lower Courts' orders were disturbed in 6½ per cent. of the cases. In all the Board decided 2,693 cases out of 3,211 for hearing, the pending file at the close of the year showing 518 cases against 429 in the previous year.

24. The system of payment of rent by means of money-orders continues to increase in popularity. The figures for the last four years show:—

			Rs.
1896-1897	...	...	... 7,13,501	remitted.
1897-1898	...	...	... 9,13,858	„
1898-1899	...	...	... 9,31,190	„
1899-1900	...	...	... 9,88,902	„

The increase is not a matter of unmixed satisfaction, for the remittances are as a rule largest in those districts in which the tension between landlords and tenants is most acute. But the increasing use of money-orders, coupled with the smaller sums now shown in the rental deposit accounts, deserves notice. In the year under review 903 items of rent were deposited, amounting to Rs. 68,121, and of these only 480, representing less than Rs. 25,000, relate to the North-Western Provinces. In 1883-84 the deposits of rent in the North-Western Provinces amounted to over 2½ lakhs. With the extension of the system of payment of rent by money-order they have continuously declined, and the question suggests itself whether the retention of the complicated system provided in sections 50—55 for the deposit of rent of the existing Rent Act is necessary.

Settlement. (Paragraph 82.)

25. The settlements in Oudh are nearly completed. The Fyzabad report, to which reference was made in the last year's review, has been received and the settlement of the district confirmed. The Kheri settlement is now completed, though final sanction to the assessment of five of the parganas of that district was not obtained until after the close of the year under review. In Hardoi the revision of the Sandíla tahsíl was completed, but the report was not received within the year. Gonda is the only Oudh district under formal assessment, two parganas being assessed during the year.

In the North-Western Provinces the Budaun report is awaited. The settlement of the important district of Meerut is completed, and in Sháhjahánpur the work of inspection and assessment is over. In the Bareilly, Pilibhít, Farrukhabad, Aligarh, and Naini Tal districts work is progressing, and the assessments of Káli Kumaun, Almora district, are complete. Special circumstances necessitated the postponements of the resettlement of the Etáwah and Fatehpur districts for ten years. The work of settlement has undergone careful scrutiny both by the Board and by Government, and moderation in the assessments has been enjoined and enforced. It may fairly be claimed that the settlements which have been concluded during recent years, while yielding Government a considerable enhancement, are not burdensome to the landowning classes; and it is satisfactory to note that the moderation of Government in fixing the assessment is acknowledged by influential classes of landlords.

Survey.
(Paragraphs 78 to 80, and paragraph 17 of the Director of Land Records and Agriculture's Report.)

26. Traverse surveys were carried on in five districts and in parts of two others, the area traversed being 2,753 square miles. From the beginning of the year under review the traverse parties have been placed under the Local Government. The cost has averaged Rs. 25·2 per square mile, the lowest figure yet attained. In the cadastral section 3,882 square miles were surveyed at an average cost of Rs. 67½ per square mile, exclusive of the cost of headquarters establishments. The records (khasras) were, however, written up for only 3,106 square miles. The surveyed tracts include the circles of 1,805 patwáris, and in 1,623 of these circles the survey work was performed by the patwáris or their heirs. The mapping work of the patwáris is reported to be excellent, but the opinions of the two Settlement Officers who were consulted vary as to the value of the record. The department will lose in a few months the services of the Superintendent, Mr. G. B. Scott, whose energy and devotion are properly acknowledged by the Director of Land Records and Agriculture in his report.

Patwáris.
(Paragraph 87, and paragraphs 5, 7, and 8 of Director of Land Records and Agriculture's Report.)

27. The work of the patwáris on the whole shows improvement, and the percentage of men who have passed the examination has further risen from 86·51 to 87·86. The number of patwáris exempted from examination shows a decrease from 2,718 to 2,437, but continues unduly high in several districts, especially in Allahabad, Jhánsi, and Kheri. Seventy-eight per cent. of the patwáris are shown as resident in the North-Western Provinces, the improvement on last year's figures being fractional. In Oudh the proportion of non-residents is higher, but proposals for re-allocation are under discussion for all the districts of that Province, and until orders are issued it is impracticable to enforce residence. The high percentage of absentees is admittedly unsatisfactory, and in future reports the Director promises to show separately those patwáris whose absence from their circles is due to settlement work or survey training. The large percentage of absentees in Gorakhpur, Allahabad, and Mirzapur cannot be attributed to this cause, and the District Officers should give the matter closer attention. The percentage of patwáris exempted from residence in the Rohilkhand and Benares Divisions is extraordinarily high, and needs to be justified. It is satisfactory to note that, except in Budaun, Moradabad, and Bijnor, the papers have been filed with commendable punctuality.

Kánúngos.
(Paragraph 88, and paragraphs 2, 3, and 6 of Director of Land Records and Agriculture's Report.)

28. The work of the kánúngos has been good during the year, and they deserve as a body credit for the general accuracy of the village records and for the promptitude with which these have been prepared. Few of these officers fulfil the educational qualifications required under the existing rules for promotion to the grade of naib tahsíldár; but a better educated class of candidate is now appearing, and the Lieutenant-Governor is prepared to reserve a reasonable number of naib tahsíldárships for supervisor, kánúngos who possess the educational qualifications required for naib tahsíldárs: His Honour is even prepared to recognise special claims by direct promotion to the tahsíldár grade. The Lieutenant-Governor desires to improve the personnel of this branch of the Revenue establishments by opening to deserving officers promotion to the Provincial Service. For kánúngos who do not possess the qualifications entitling them to this promotion, but who are deserving men, special allowances have been provided.

The results of the annual examination of kánúngos show marked improvement. One-half of the candidates passed against one-sixth in the previous year. The question discussed in previous reviews, whether kánúngoships should not be limited to men who have qualified in the Agricultural School, is not referred to by the Director. The suggestion of the Director that the diploma of the Cawnpore Agricultural School should be treated as equivalent to the Entrance Examination, which is the qualification required for naib tahsíldárs, has been accepted by this Government. It is, however, probable that the standard of the Entrance Examination of the University will be raised, and the Lieutenant-Governor expects that there will be a corresponding improvement in the standard required for the diploma of the Cawnpore School. This question is connected with another important one, already referred to the Director, namely, the improvement in the status of the Agricultural School. The Lieutenant-Governor's object is to raise this school to the status of an Agricultural College: and in this connexion a reference has been made to the Director.

Mutations in the revenue registers. (Paragraphs 90-91.)

29. The statistics of transfers and mortgages of land show no marked changes as compared with the returns of the preceding year; 150,801 mutations were recorded in the proprietary registers against 152,617 in 1898-99; 6,086 were sales by order of the Court, the remainder being private transfers. Exact deductions cannot be drawn from the statistics adduced. They indicate that the value of land is greatest in the Meerut and eastern divisions of the Province and in Oudh: while it is lowest, as might be expected, in the Bundelkhand districts of the Allahabad Division. The wealth of a particular tract of country does not appear to render it less liable to changes in proprietary possession. Meerut is probably the wealthiest division in the Provinces, yet it shows more compulsory sales and far more mortgages than any other division of the Provinces.

Partitions. (Paragraph 92.)

30. The provision of the new Revenue Bill, which checks the multiplication of infinitesimal mahals, will lighten to a certain extent the burden of partition work. At present the disposal of these cases cannot be deemed satisfactory. The ordinary case work of the Courts was exceptionally heavy during the year, and accounts in part for the delay in dealing with these partitions. There were over 4,000 cases for disposal during the year, but little more than half that number was disposed of, and 1,900 cases awaited decision at the close of the year. Many districts are burdened with incompetent

REPORT

ON THE

FOR THE REVENUE YEAR 1900-1901.

No. $\frac{1466}{\text{XII—163}}$ OF 1902.

FROM

H. F. HOUSE, ESQ., I. C. S.,

SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF REVENUE,
NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH,

To

THE SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH,
REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Allahabad, the 8th April 1902.

Present:

HON'BLE MR. H. F. EVANS, C.S.I., AND HON'BLE MR. D. T. ROBERTS, C.S.I.

SIR,

§§ 1—3.—Introductory.

I AM directed to submit the Board's report on the Revenue Administration of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh for the year ending on the 30th September 1901.

2. The Members of the Board were the Hon'ble Mr. LaTouche and the Hon'ble Mr. Evans. During the absence of the former on furlough, and of the latter on deputation, the officiating Members were the Hon'ble Mr. Roberts and Mr. Rose.

3. All the divisional reports were received by the end of the first week of December.

Chapter I.—AGRICULTURAL.

§§ 4—8.—Rainfall and Harvests.

4. The monsoon of 1900 was much delayed. Heavy but local falls were received in the first week of June, followed in the middle of the month by moderate rain in the eastern half of the Province. The rainfall of June was, however, almost everywhere in considerable defect. By the end of June a period of very hot dry weather set in, which lasted up to the first week of July. An abrupt change then occurred and rain fell generally, lasting throughout the month, but the fall, on the whole, was below the average, especially in the Agra, Benares and Allahabad divisions. In August, particularly in the last week of the month, good rain fell everywhere; but in all the submontane districts and in the Benares division the rainfall of the month was considerably below the average. The deficiency, however, was more than made up in September, in which month heavy rain was general. In October the eastern districts received heavy rain, but elsewhere the fall was small, notably in the Agra and Rohilkhand divisions. There was a good deal of rain in December and the first half of January, and again in February. Falls were also recorded in March. Taking the Province as a whole the rainfall of the year averaged 39·5 inches, or the average of the rainfall of the preceding five years.

5. The total kharíf area of 1900 exceeded that of the previous year by 8·2 per cent., the increase being particularly marked in Bundelkhand, where the increase was from 23 to 37 per cent. Owing to the lateness of the monsoon to begin with, and the unusually heavy rain later on, the rice crop, especially in the eastern districts, was not a success. These districts return only a two-thirds outturn, while the provincial average is three-fourths. Maize, juár, bájra and til were full or almost full crops, but the small millets were poor. The indigo and cotton crops were damaged by heavy rain and did not yield more than 85 per cent. of the normal. Taken as a whole, however, the kharif harvest of 1900 was a normal harvest in every part of the Province, except in the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions, for which it may be put at about 75 per cent.

6. Except in districts in which the full rabi sowings were not made owing to excessive moisture, the area devoted to rabi crops was larger than usual, the estimated area of the wheat crop showing an increase of over 10 per cent. and of linseed and rape-seed of 25 to 23 per cent. respectively. The winter rains were timely and the rabi prospects up to the close of January were unusually good, but the continuance of rain and cloudy weather in February altered the situation considerably, especially in the eastern half of the Provinces, where wheat rust occurred in a worse form than has been the case for many years past. The average wheat yield for the Province was about 80 per cent. of the normal. Barley, linseed and rape-seed gave an outturn of 85 per cent., while for gram and arhar the yield was from 90 to 95 per cent. The season was throughout favourable to sugarcane, which gave an average yield of 95 per cent. as compared with the 62 per cent. of the previous year. The yield of opium was also in general very satisfactory. Taken as a whole, the rabi harvest was a good one except in the Benares division, where it was poor, as was the case last year.

7. The monsoon of 1901, like that of the preceding year, was much delayed. Rain was fairly general in most districts during the first half of June, but the record of the second half was very disappointing. For the month as a whole the rainfall was below the average everywhere. General and heavy rain set in about the 10th July and continued up to the third week of that month, when it decreased; the rainfall for the whole month being below the normal. Rain was, however, well distributed, and beyond retarding sowings did no great harm. The weather in August was favourable and the rain was generally above the normal. September opened with fair or good rain in all the plains districts east of a line drawn roughly from Etáwah to Bareilly. West of this line the fall was light and ill distributed. The second and third weeks were generally dry and hot, but the end of the month brought heavy rain to the greater part of the Provinces. The rainfall during October was below the average in almost every district, but the falls which occurred in the western districts did much good.

8. Taking the Provinces as a whole, the area under kharif sowings in 1901 was slightly below that of the previous year, but the variations are nowhere noticeable except in Bánda and Mirzapur, the former district showing a fall of 12 per cent. and the latter a rise of 15 per cent. The rice crop was only 65 per cent. of the normal as compared with 75 per cent. in the preceding year, the outturn in the eastern districts being poor for the third year in succession. Indigo and til also did badly, but the cotton crop was an unusually good one and the yield of other crops between 80 and 90 per cent. of the normal.

§ 9.—Hailstorms, floods and other calamities.

9. Hailstorms occurred in the Allahabad division and in the districts of Muttra, Pilibhit, Basti and Gonda in February and March 1901, and necessitated the suspension and remission of revenue to the extent of Rs. 2,518 and Rs. 20,768 respectively. Injury by rust and insects was caused in Hamírpur and Rs. 14,108 had to be remitted on this account. Considerable damage by floods occurred in Ballia, Etawah, Moradabad and Bara Banki, but generally speaking the loss on the kharif was counterbalanced by the gain on the rabi. Damage by locusts is reported from Dehra Dún and Almora, and the sugarcane crop in parts of the Rohilkhand and Meerut divisions was injured by grasshoppers which appeared in large numbers and cut off the young shoots.

§ 10.—Prices.

10. Prices, which were easier than they had been for some time, at the beginning of the year in prospect of an unusually good rabi, again rose as the character of the harvest became known, and ruled high throughout the year with some fluctuations. At the close of the year the price of wheat was from 12 to 15 seers per rupee and the price of rice from 9 to 12 seers.

Chapter II.—FINANCIAL.

§ 11.—Total demand and collections.

11. The total receipts from the several sources of income treated of in this report amounted to Rs. 8,27,13,904 out of a demand of Rs. 8,52,80,604 as compared with Rs. 8,42,06,822 out of a demand of Rs. 8,86,52,378 in the previous year.

§ 12.—Land revenue on the roll—current demand.

12. The current demand on account of land revenue borne on the roll was Rs. 6,23,35,093. The collections amounted to Rs. 6,20,25,708. Of the balance of Rs. 3,09,385, the sum of Rs. 1,19,725 is nominal, owing to reductions in assessment, assignments, &c. Rs. 52,809 have been remitted (chiefly on account of damage to crops by hail and rust) and the real balance in train of liquidation is Rs. 1,36,851 or ·2 per cent. of the gross demand. For the greater portion of this balance the Allahabad division is responsible, the outstandings in that division, amounting to Rs. 96,111, being due for the most part from estates under attachment. The collections of the year have been unusually good and no detailed remarks as to the district balances are necessary.

§§ 13—14.—Land revenue on the roll—arrear demand.

13. The balance of land revenue on the roll for collection at the beginning of the year was Rs. 17,70,029.* The collections amounted to Rs. 11,48,911 or 64·9 per cent. Of the balance of Rs. 6,21,118, Rs. 15,702 represent a nominal balance on account of annulments of settlement mainly in the Bánda, Hamírpur, Allahabad and Jhánsi districts. Rupees 89,687 represent remissions on account of scarcity and deterioration mainly in the Allahabad and Unao districts, the remissions in the former amounting to Rs. 34,485 and in the latter to Rs. 34,870. The amount in train of liquidation therefore at the close of the year was Rs. 5,15,729,† viz., on account of—

	Rs.

* As detailed in Appendices E-II and E-III of last year's report with an addition of Rs. 7,482 on account of subsequent adjustments.

† Vide Statement II.

14. The only arrears of any magnitude are those of the Allahabad division, which amount to Rs. 4,81,509, distributed as follows :—

			Rs.
Cawnpore	...	...	84
Fatehpur	...	...	68,590
Bánda	...	...	19,743
Hamírpur	...	...	71,075

Jhánsi	...	...	1,27,336
Jalaun	...	...	36,170
	Total	...	4,81,509

Of the Jhánsi arrears Rs. 26,064 have been remitted since the close of the year; and the whole of the Allahabad arrears have been proposed for remission. Regarding the remaining arrears nothing further need be said here as the matter is under consideration separately.

§ 15.—Land revenue not borne on the roll.

15. The amount for recovery was Rs. 1,64,736 (chiefly on account of revision of settlement in the Bareilly and Sháhjahánpur districts). The collections amounted to Rs. 1,52,675 or 92·6 per cent., leaving a balance of Rs. 12,061 of which all but Rs. 45, which is nominal, is in train of liquidation*.

§ 16.—Malikana.

16. The demand on account of málikána was Rs. 1,96,157 of which Rs. 1,95,984 were collected, leaving a balance of Rs. 173 at the close of the year. The total amount for disbursement, including the balance in hand from the previous year, was Rs. 2,25,417. The payments amounted to Rs. 1,92,973, leaving an undisbursed balance of Rs. 32,444, nearly half of which is in the Gorakhpur district†.

§ 17.—Canal rates.

17. The total demand for occupiers' rates for the year was Rs. 60,72,322, viz., current, Rs. 60,56,614, and arrear, Rs. 15,708. The demand was nearly 20 lakhs below what it was in 1899-1900 owing to timely and sufficient rainfall in the canal-irrigated districts. Collections amounted to Rs. 60,56,162 or 99·7 per cent. The demand for owners' rate, current and arrear, was Rs. 2,62,808 against Rs. 3,65,130 in 1899-1900. Rs. 2,62,183 or 99·7 per cent. were collected and the balance was remitted or was realized after the close of the year.

§ 18.—Cesses.

18. The demand and collections, current and arrear, on account of the various cesses‡ were as follows :—

			Demand. Rs.	Collections. Rs.
Twelve per cent. cess ...	...	...	52,79,785	52,41,055
Acreage cess, &c. ...	...	...	6,10,328	6,08,990
Consolidated Local Rates	...	...	12,22,704	12,18,884
Rural Police Rate ...	...	...	8,59,163	8,56,112
Village Watch cess ...	...	...	32,090	31,558
Patwári Rate ...	...	...	25,32,866	25,19,526

The outstandings are not sufficiently large to call for comment.

§§ 19—22.—Advances (takkavi).

19. The advances during the year under report under the Land Improvement Loans Act amounted to Rs. 32,840 only, the bulk of them being made in the Allahabad, Agra and Lucknow divisions. Rupees 4,13,367 were under recovery during the year. The collections amounted to Rs. 3,49,037 and Rs. 14,024 were remitted, leaving a balance of Rs. 50,306§ for recovery. The total demand for interest was Rs. 73,510 of which Rs. 45,617 were collected and Rs. 3,272 were remitted, leaving a balance of Rs. 24,621§ for recovery.

* For district and divisional details see Statement III.
† Vide Statement IV.
‡ Vide Statements VII to XII.
§ For district details see Statement XVI.

20. Of the special partly recoverable advances, only Rs. 829 now remain to be recovered. The collections during the year on this account amounted to Rs. 6,905.

21. The advances under the Agriculturists' Loans Act during the year amounted to Rs. 77,570 as against Rs. 4,10,764 during 1899-1900. The Allahabad and Lucknow divisions account for over two-thirds of the advances made during the year. Rupees 6,69,186 were under recovery and Rs. 3,84,333 were collected and Rs. 62,801 remitted, leaving a balance of Rs. 2,22,052 at the close of the year. Of the total sum remitted, Rs. 59,284 were sanctioned for the Allahabad division ; the Jalaun district alone accounting for Rs. 42,776. The demand for interest was Rs. 91,872. Rupees 46,161 of this sum were collected and Rs. 10,424 remitted, leaving a balance of Rs. 35,287.*

22. The following statement† shows the result of the transactions under the Land Improvement and Agriculturists' Loans Acts from 1895-96 to 1900-1901 :—

The total advances made during this period amount to Rs. 62,18,818 or taking into account the outstanding balances at the beginning of this period Rs. 72,22,888. Collections and remissions account for Rs. 63,43,545 of this, and the total outstandings are Rs. 8,79,343. The interest during this period has amounted to Rs. 6,47,371 or including the balance at the beginning of the period Rs. 6,82,806. Collections and remissions amount to Rs. 6,22,898. The balance for interest therefore is Rs. 59,908. Remissions have hitherto not been separately shown, but the amounts remitted are, on account of principal Rs. 2,41,208, and on account of interest Rs. 25,144. If interest be set off against bad debts and all outstanding items be regarded as capable of recovery the State's profits amount to Rs. 4,16,454.

§ 23.—State Properties.

23. During the year under report 97 estates were added to the estates under the Board's supervision. The demand amounted to Rs. 2,50,655 as compared with Rs. 2,30,802. Including arrears the total demand came to Rs. 3,13,311 of which Rs. 2,50,232 or 80 per cent. was collected as compared with 76 per cent. in the preceding year.

*For district details see Statement XVII.

†Inserted in compliance with G. G. O. No. 2099—321-4, dated the 26th September 1901.

In the Holagarh and Khargapur escheated estates in the Allahabad district 63 per cent. of the gross demand was realized against 71 per cent. in the previous year. The outstanding balance was Rs. 63,079* of which Rs. 35,938 are classed as recoverable, Rs. 938 as nominal and Rs. 26,203 as irrecoverable. Of the amount classed as irrecoverable the Allahabad district alone is responsible for Rs. 21,878. After payment of land revenue and rates the income was Rs. 1,30,217 of which Rs. 44,656 were spent on establishment, contingencies and improvements, leaving a net profit to Government of Rs. 85,561 as compared with Rs. 72,798 in the preceding year. The figures for special State properties in the Kumaun division and the Dudhi estate in the south of Mirzapur have been excluded from this report as they are separately reported upon.

§ 24.—Sale of waste lands, &c.

24. The total demand inclusive of outstandings for the price of confiscated, escheated and waste lands recoverable within the year, was Rs. 6,089† of which all but Rs. 84 was collected.

§ 25.—Miscellaneous land revenue.

25. Inclusive of the outstanding arrears, the total demand on account of miscellaneous land revenue was Rs. 1,26,934‡ of which all but Rs. 24 was collected. The receipts are normal.

§ 26.—Coercive processes.

26. The number of processes for the recovery of land revenue, or other sums recoverable as land revenue, was 41,992 compared with 49,814 in the preceding year, viz., writs, 32,022; arrests, 2,798; attachments of moveables, 6,342; attachments of estates, 592; transfers to co-sharers, 185; annulments of settlement, 28; and sales, 25.

The number of processes in Sháhjahánpur has increased considerably, but this is apparent rather than real, regular processes having taken the place of irregular processes which were formerly adopted; otherwise the heaviest returns are those of the congested districts of the Gorakhpur division, but considering the immense number of proprietors who have to be dealt with, the number of processes was anything but excessive. Of the severer coercive measures employed, those of transfer and sale show an increase. The majority of the transfers were in the Allahabad district. The Allahabad division accounts for 22 out of the 25 sales which took place during the year. In Hamirpur alone there were 13 sales in the case of certain recusant defaulters who systematically endeavoured to avoid paying their revenue by crossing over to neighbouring Native States.

Of the 1,843 estates under attachment during the year, 1,100 were released before the close of the year. The total rental demand amounted to Rs. 17,11,589 of which Rs. 8,59,299 (50·2 per cent.) were realized. Out of this sum Rs. 8,03,559 were credited against the demand for land revenue and cesses. In the estates under direct management after annulment of settlement Rs. 3,28,562 were collected out of a demand of Rs. 5,36,665. The orders for annulment of settlement in Bundelkhand have been cancelled and the properties released as already reported. The procedure in such cases has now been rectified, and it appears unnecessary to discuss the matter any further here.

§ 27.—Alterations in land revenue on the roll.

27. The increases under all heads amount to Rs. 10,45,084. Rupees 2,61,475 are due to the restoration to the roll of the revenue of the estates (principally in Bundelkhand) of which the settlement had been annulled, but the bulk of the increase is due to regular revision of settlement in Meerut, Bareilly, Kheri, Gonda and other districts. The decreases for all reasons amount to Rs. 67,840. The nett change in the revenue on the roll, therefore, is an increase of Rs. 9,77,244, and the demand for the year 1901-1902 stands at Rs. 6,33,12,337. It would have been materially higher had all the assessments introduced with the kharíf of 1901-1902 been announced in time to allow of the enhanced revenues being brought upon the roll.

* For district details see Statement XIII.
† For details see Statement XV.
‡ For district details see Statement XIV.

Chapter III.—RENT LAW.

§§ 28—34.—Litigation in North-Western Provinces (except Kumaun).

28. In their report of last year the Board had occasion to remark that for litigation the year 1899-1900 was a record year. To the heavy returns of that year two causes contributed, the desire to recover in one form or another the outstanding arrears of the famine period, and the unrest caused by the proposed changes in the Tenancy Law. In the year 1900-1901 the volume of litigation was far greater even than in the preceding year: and for this there is but one reason to be assigned,—the impending Tenancy legislation. The total number of proceedings before courts of original jurisdiction during the year was no less than 629,421*, or between 40 and 50 per cent. in excess of the figures of 1899-1900.

29. The increase, as might be expected, is chiefly in proceedings in ejectment. The number of notices of ejectment issued under section 36 of the Rent Act was 194,399†, or slightly more than 100,000 in excess of the number of notices issued in the preceding year. In only one district in the whole Provinces was the number of applications for the issue of ejectment notices lower than it was in 1899-1900, and that district was Meerut. The reason assigned for this by the Commissioner is that the recently completed settlement operations had decided most of the disputes that might otherwise have come to an issue in ejectment proceedings. There has not been a similar decrease in other districts in which the records have just been revised, and the probable explanation of the fall is the altogether abnormal number of notices issued in the preceding year, when it was 250 per cent. in excess of what it was in 1898-1899. The landlords of the Meerut division were early in the field, and particularly those of the Meerut district. In the Meerut division, as a whole, the percentage of increase in the number of notices issued above that of 1899-1900 was less than in any other division, being only 57 per cent. as compared with 130 per cent. in the Agra division, 157 per cent. in the Rohilkhand division, 143 per cent. in the Allahabad division, 85 per cent. in the Benares division, and 132 per cent. in the Gorakhpur division: but taking the actual number of notices for the year, the Meerut division still keeps the lead, having 55,850 while no other division has more than 47,256 which is the number returned by the Rohilkhand division. In Dehra Dún the rise from 189 in 1898-1899 to 438 in 1899-1900 and to 2,730 in 1900-1901 was sufficiently remarkable, but has been passed over by the Superintendent without comment. The other districts in the Provinces with the highest percentages of increase are Saháranpur with 248 per cent., Bareilly with 239 per cent., Allahabad with 211 per cent., and Basti with 199 per cent. It is needless, however, to attempt any detailed examination of the various district returns.

30. The amount of litigation to which the issue of these notices actually gave rise, was comparatively small, as only 41,623 out of the 194,399 notices issued (or 21 per cent.) were contested: 34,994 of these cases were disposed of within the year, in rather less than half of which the tenants were successful. Discarding the 6,629 cases pending at the close of the year, it is thus seen that in 170,314 cases the landholders were acting within their rights, while in 17,456 cases only was their action wholly or partly unjustified by the results. The proportion of cases in which the preliminary ejectment proceedings were followed up by formal application for eviction under section 40 was very high, the number of such applications having been 139,883*,—a clear indication that the object in the majority of the cases was to obtain whatever advantage it was supposed might be derived from a recorded break in the tenure before the new law came into force. It must not, however, be supposed that these ejectments were anything more than "formal" in a large number of instances.

* For district details see Statements XX-A, XXI-A and XXI-C.

31. To the pressure brought to bear by landholders is no doubt to be ascribed the increase in the number of notices of relinquishment filed during the year by tenants. This increase was most marked in the Agra division (where the number rose from 4,823 to 11,609), in the Rohilkhand division (where the number rose from 5,783 to 10,102) and in the Meerut division (where the number rose from 7,248 to 11,035). In the Meerut district the number of notices of relinquishment like the number of the notices of ejectment shows a fall: but here again the large number of notices issued in the previous year probably accounts for the fall. In contrast with the rest of the provinces, the Allahabad division, notably the Bundelkhand districts, shows a marked fall in the number of notices of relinquishment issued during the year: but the causes at work here are distinct from those which are operative elsewhere. With an improvement in agricultural conditions the tenants had less motive than before for throwing up their holdings.

32. The increase in the number of applications for enhancement of rent† has also been noted as a further phase of the anti-tenant campaign, and no doubt correctly so, but the expiry of the first decade of the current settlements in Saháranpur and Bulandshahr, is also a contributory factor in this instance. In the former of these districts the number of cases rose from 446 to 2,424: in the latter from 1,983 to 2,500. In Etah the rise (336) has been large, and would (the Collector explains), have been larger but for the approach of settlement. In Etáwah, where the term of settlement has just been extended, there were four times as many enhancement cases as there were in the year before. In Budaun, where the number of enhancement cases since settlement operations were closed has been enormous, the returns for the year show scarcely any diminution, and in Bareilly and Sháhjahánpur enhancement proceedings have been started in the District Courts as soon as settlements have been completed. There was also a general increase in the districts of the Benares division.

33. The returns of suits for arrears of rent had shown unusually high figures for two or three years past owing to steps being taken for the recovery of arrears of the famine period. The time for filing such suits having expired, a drop was to be anticipated in the year under report. The institutions have fallen from 122,857 to 104,571, or nearly 15 per cent. The fall is spread over the whole provinces, and is particularly noticeable in the Agra, Rohilkhand and Allahabad divisions which together account for five-sixths of the whole decrease.

34. This fall in suits has been accompanied by a fall in the number of applications for the ejectment of tenants for arrears of rent‡ to the extent of about 10 per cent. The Gorakhpur division is the only division in which there was an increase. No explanation has been offered of this. Similarly distraint proceedings have decreased, the applications for sale of distrained produce having fallen from 45,901 to 40,902,§ or about 11 per cent.

§§ 35—39.—Litigation in Oudh.

35. The fall in the number of suits instituted in the North-Western Provinces was accompanied by a corresponding fall in Oudh, and for the same reasons. Curiously enough the increase in ejectment proceedings in the North-

‡ Ditto ditto ditto XXI-A.
§ Ditto ditto ditto XXI-C.

Western Provinces had also its parallel in Oudh. There was a widespread impression that provisions similar to those of the North-Western Provinces Tenancy Law might be applied to Oudh also, and the rise in ejectment proceedings was in sympathy with that in the North-Western Provinces. While therefore suits show a fall of 2,549 (from 39,912 to 37,363)* ejectment proceedings show a rise of 6,613 (from 19,626 to 26,239)† and the total number of cases to be dealt with in the province rose from 80,426 to 83,407‡,—an advance of nearly 4 per cent.

36. Suits for arrears of rent declined by 5,114 on the number returned (28,738) in the preceding year, and the fall was contributed to by every district but one (Fyzabad). The number of applications for ejectment for arrears of rent shows a decrease of 2,236, and the number of applications for sale of distrained produce a decrease of 521.

37. Suits for ejectment rose from 1,146 to 1,311 and notices of ejectment from 14,011 to 22,860 : 27 per cent. of the notices were contested—in about 40 per cent. successfully. The number of notices of relinquishment fell from 7,153 to 1,936 indicating prosperous times and a general desire to retain holdings.

38. Suits for enhancement (94) though more numerous than in the preceding year (71) are few in number, while the notices of enhancement issued fell from 221 to 87§. Ten notices only were contested—three successfully. Enhancements by private arrangement are common and Rent Court proceedings are unpopular.

39. There was a slight fall in the number of applications for recovery of arrears of rent under section 158 of the Oudh Land Revenue Act, the number of cases having dropped from 2,110 to 1,999 : 1,834‖ of the cases for disposal were disposed of within the year, the results in Fyzabad being very satisfactory.

§ 40.—Litigation in Kumaun.

40. The number of suits instituted during the year in Kumaun was 639 as compared with 757 in 1899-1900, the decrease being chiefly in suits for arrears of rent or revenue. The total number of cases for disposal was 757.

§ 41.—Disposal of work.

41. In the North-Western Provinces 88·78 per cent. of the cases for disposal were disposed of; in Oudh, 97·95 per cent.; and in Kumaun 84·41 per cent.; and the pending files numbered 73,911, 1,797 and 118, respectively. The average duration of the contested suits decided in the North-Western Provinces was 1 month and 23 days, of contested applications under section 95, 2 months and 21 days; and of contested miscellaneous proceedings 2 months and 2 days. The corresponding figures for uncontested cases are 1 month 1 day, 1 month 14 days and 24 days. In Oudh contested cases were disposed of in an average of 1 month 28 days, and uncontested cases in an average of 1 month and 4 days. Considering the immense amount of work for disposal during the year, the amount actually disposed of and the average time in which cases were disposed of are alike creditable to the Courts concerned.

§§ 42–45.—Work of Appellate Courts.

42. Appeals to Collectors numbered 4,911†† as against 4,647 in the preceding year. The total number of cases for disposal was 5,312, of which 4,920 were decided during the year, the average duration being 1 month 3 days. Sixty per cent. of the decisions disposed of were confirmed.

43. The number of appeals to Judges fell from 2,152 to 2,026*, and the pending file shows a further appreciable decrease from 1,146 to 905. The total number of appeals for disposal was 3,172 of which 2,267 or 71·47 per cent. were decided. The average duration in the North-Western Provinces (10 months 7 days) is in marked contrast with the average duration of appeals in Oudh (4 months 2 days).

44. The increase in ejectment proceedings is reflected in the number of appeals to Commissioners: and as might have been expected they were most numerous in the Meerut, Rohilkhand and Agra divisions. The number of appeals instituted was 8,250† as compared with 5,744 in the preceding year—an increase of 44 per cent. The total for disposal was 10,213, of which 6,091 or 60 per cent. were disposed of, the average duration being 3 months and 18 days: 751 appeals were transferred to Collectors. Including arrears, the Collectors in the Meerut and Benares divisions had 835 appeals received in transfer to dispose of, of which 115 were left pending at the close of the year—26 in Meerut and 89 in Benares. The decisions of the Lower Courts were upheld in 71 per cent. of the appeals as against 73 in 1899-1900, the worst results being in the Kumaun division, where only 50 per cent. of the orders were upheld. In the Allahabad division the percentage of orders reversed, which was highest last year (24) has dropped to 16. The percentage of remands (9) is the same as last year.

45. Under the Rent Acts, the judicial work of the Board consisted, in appeal, of 562 cases in the North-Western Provinces and 330 cases in Oudh. Of the former 383 were disposed of, the average duration being 3 months and 22 days; and of the latter 273 were disposed of, the average duration being 3 months. In revision, they dealt with 1,966 cases under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1,582 of which were disposed of, the average duration being 2 months and 9 days. The orders of the Lower Courts were disturbed in 17 per cent. of the cases in appeal, and in 11 per cent. of those in revision. Under the Kumaun rules there were 23 cases for disposal, 22 of which were disposed of, the average duration being 1 month and 25 days. The order of the Lower Court was disturbed in one case.

Chapter IV.—SETTLEMENT.

§§ 46—48.—Oudh settlements.‡

46. Revisional operations were continued in the Hardoi district. The revised assessments of tahsíl Sandila were sanctioned resulting in a demand of Rs. 4,45,368 as compared with Rs. 4,56,030 assessed at the last settlement. Tahsíl Hardoi was also inspected and assessed, but the report has not yet been received.

47. The settlement of the Kheri district was completed, the final settlement report received, and the settlement confirmed by Government.

48. In Gonda the attestation and fairing of khewats has been completed and the assessments of parganas Paharapur, Gonda, Nawábganj and Mahadewa received and sanctioned. In Paharapur the revenue was increased from Rs. 89,732 to Rs. 1,04,400 or 16·35 per cent.; in Gonda from Rs. 3,52,467 to Rs. 3,90,373 or 10·75 per cent; in Nawábganj from Rs. 67,666 to Rs. 74,094 or 9·50 per cent. and in Mahadewa from Rs. 49,864 to Rs. 60,332 or 21 per cent.

49. The final settlement reports of the Budaun, Sháhjahánpur and Meerut districts were received during the year. The first two have been submitted to Government and the settlement of Sháhjahánpur has been confirmed.

* For district details see Statement XXIII.
† Ditto ditto ditto XXIV.
‡ Ditto ditto ditto XXV.
§ Ditto ditto ditto ditto.

50. In Sháhjahánpur the greater portion of the fairing and miscellaneous work remaining over has been completed.

51. In Bareilly the fairing of records has been practically finished. Attestation work in tahsíl Bisalpur (Pilibhít) has been completed and about one-third of the records has also been faired. The entire tract under settlement has been inspected, tahsíls Nawábganj and Baheri in Bareilly and the Bisalpur tahsíl in Pilibhit having been inspected this year. The revised assessments of tahsíls Bareilly, Aonla and Nawábganj have been sanctioned. In tahsil Bareilly the revenue has increased from Rs. 2,41,558 to Rs. 2,73,817 or 13·3 per cent. and in tahsíl Mirganj from Rs. 1,31,492 to Rs. 1,50,545 or 14·5 per cent.

52. In Farukhabad survey operations have been completed and good progress made in attestation work. The assessments of tahsíl Kaimganj were sanctioned after the close of the year.

53. In the Aligarh (Koil) tahsíl of the Aligarh district, the records of only 59 maháls remain to be attested. In Atrauli attestation has been completed and nearly so in tahsíls Khair and Iglas. More than half the records of tahsíl Hathras have been attested and this work has been started in Sikandra Rao. The rent-rate reports of Atrauli and Khair and the assessment reports of Aligarh and Atrauli were received after the close of the year.

54. In Almora and the hill pattis of Naini Tál operations are making good progress. The parganas assessed were Sira, Gangoli and Askot in Almora and the hill pattis of Naini Tál. All these assessments have been sanctioned since the close of the year. The revised assessments of pargana Kali Kumaun were declared during the year, the demand being raised from Rs. 30,000 to Rs. 37,548 or 25 per cent.

55. The district of Azamgarh was brought under settlement in November 1900 and Mr. C. E. Crawford was appointed Settlement Officer. The work of attestation which was started in tahsíls Deogaon and Nizamabad, has proved more laborious than was at first anticipated, and it was found necessary not only to further increase the staff of Deputy Collectors employed on that work, but to obtain sanction to the extension of the settlement of pargana Bela Daulatabad by one year in order that the Settlement Officer may, as far as possible, have attested papers for his inspection and assessment. Since the close of the year the attestation of parganas Deogaon and Belhabans has been completed and very little remains to be done in tahsíl Nizamabad. The Settlement Officer has inspected pargana Deogaon, the temporarily settled portion of which contains an area of 173 square miles.

56. On the completion of the survey of tahsíls Puranpur and Pilibhít, of the Pilibhít district, it was decided to undertake at once the preparation of a record-of-rights for these tahsíls instead of postponing this work until the assessments are revised. The work was accordingly started during the year. All the records of tahsíl Puranpur and more than half of those of Pilibhít have been attested. The revision of records will not be followed by a revision of the revenue as it has recently been decided to extend the existing settlement of these two tahsíls for a further period of 10 years.

57. The re-settlement of the Cawnpore district under the special rules framed by the Board has been sanctioned. In the Allahabad district the existing settlements of the Doab parganas and the trans Ganges tract have been extended for a further period of 10 years. The assessment of the trans Jumna parganas is to be revised on the lines proposed for the Jálaun district. For this latter district, the re-settlement of which has also been sanctioned, Government have generally approved the rules proposed by the Board for a quinquennial revision of assessments.

58. In September 1901 application was made for the posting of Deputy Collectors to the districts of Mainpuri and Etah, the re-settlement of which had been sanctioned in February 1900, for the purpose of attesting the survey records preparatory to re-settlement which will be commenced in October 1902. Since the close of the year attestation work has been started in both districts.

§ 59.—Work of Settlement Courts.*

59. The number of cases for disposal in Settlement Courts was 92,102, of which 66,665 were disposed of. There were 1,369 appeals to Settlement Officers, 1,177 of which were disposed of. Appeals to Commissioners number 658, of which 454 were disposed of.

§ 60.—Cost of settlement operations.

60. The total cost of settlement operations during the year amounted to Rs. 4,72,537.

CHAPTER V.—GENERAL.

§ 61.—Mutation in the Revenue Registers.

61. The total number of mutations carried out in the proprietary registers during the year was slightly higher than in the preceding year, the number being 1,52,105 as compared with 150,801 in 1899-1900.† The details do not call for comment. The fees and fines levied aggregated Rs. 56,028.

§ 62.—Partitions of mahals.

62. Compared with the previous year, there has been a total increase of 227 in the number of applications for partition—to which the North-Western Provinces contributes 125 and Oudh 102. Including arrears, there were 4,422 cases for disposal, 2,198 of which were disposed of, partition being actually effected in 1,375 cases. The pending files were heaviest in the Meerut and Budaun districts: the former of these districts showing one case pending since the 5th May 1894. The result of partition operations during the year has been to increase the number of mahâls by 2,813, and the number of pattis by 1,012.‡

§ 63—65.—Work of Appellate Courts under the Land Revenue Acts.

63. The number of appeals to Collectors and Deputy Commissioners under the Revenue Acts rose from 3,806 to 4,373, the total number for disposal being 4,702 against 4,151 in 1899-1900, of which, 4,307 were disposed of during the year. The Collectors of Meerut (299), Gorakhpur (253) and Bulandshahr (237) had most appeals to decide.§

64. The appeals in Commissioners' Courts also show an increase from 2,158 to 2,261, being most numerous in Meerut (544), Allahabad (276) and Fyzabad (273). Of the total number of 2,679 for disposal, 662 were pending at the close of the year, Meerut (261) and Fyzabad (133) showing the heaviest files.‖

65. Appeals to the Board numbered under the North-Western Provinces Revenue Act, 229, and under the Oudh Revenue Act, 38. Under the former 184 cases were disposed of, the orders of the Lower Courts being disturbed in 16 cases: under the latter the corresponding figures are 33 and 2 respectively. For the North-Western Provinces the average duration was 2 months 24 days, and for Oudh 1 month 14 days. In revision, the Board had 324 cases to deal with under the North-Western Provinces Revenue Act, 249 of which were disposed of, the average duration being 2 months 16 days. From Oudh 44 cases came before them, 36 of which were disposed of, the average duration being 23 days. The orders of the Lower Courts were disturbed in only 13 cases from the North-Western Provinces. Appeals under the Regulations of the Family Domains of the Mahárája of Benares numbered 35, of which 31 were disposed of, the average duration being 2 months 26 days. The orders of the Lower Courts were disturbed in 2 cases.

§ 66.—Acquisition of land.

66. During the year 10,983 acres of land were acquired for public purposes, for which Rs. 5,31,182 were paid as compensation. The area restored by Government during the same period amounted to 1,587 acres, and the price realized to Rs. 24,102.*

§ 67.—Jhansi Encumbered Estates.

67. No advance was made during the year. Twenty-two accounts were closed—19 by regular payment of instalments; 2 by transfer from the Personal Ledger Account, and one by remission—leaving 35 cases still open at the close of the year. Collections made satisfactory progress during the year.

§ 68.—Territorial changes.

68. Two villages have been transferred from the Kheri to the Bahraich district.

§ 69.—Maps.

69. During the year of report the maps of the Bisauli and Sahaswan tahsíls, and of the Bara Banki, Fyzabad, Moradabad and Sultánpur districts, were published, and when the year closed the Roorkee College Press had on hand for reproduction 39 tahsíli and 9 district maps, of which 13 of the former were forwarded by this office during 1900-1901. The progress so far has not been very satisfactory.

§ 70.—Total work of district offices.

70. The registered receipts and issues of English district offices show a further rise of 16,023 over last year's figures, being 418,339 items as against 402,316 in that year. The other work done in district offices was also heavier by 175,472 items, the total being 1,847,484 as compared with 1,672,012 in the previous year.†

§ 71.—Increase of work in Commissioners' Office.

71. The proposals made by the Board for the revision of Commissioners' office establishments (paragraph 106 of last year's report) were sanctioned by Government after the year under report had closed, and were given effect to from the 1st April 1902.

§ 72.—Increase of work in Board's Offices.

72. Proposals for revising the Board's office establishment were also submitted to Government, and were partially sanctioned after the close of the year. The total receipts and issues of the Board's office were 52,251, about the same as in 1899-1900 when they amounted to 52,412.

§§ 73—74.—Economic section.

73. The events of the year that call for special notice are the taking of the census, the advent of plague, the extension (or the preparation for the extension) of railway communications, the opening of village banks, and the legislation dealing with the Tenancy law of the North-Western Provinces and the combination in one enactment of the Revenue law of the two provinces. On the first three of these subjects no remarks are called for here. The fourth is still in the stage of an interesting experiment. On the subject of the Tenancy legislation in the North-Western Provinces some comments have already been made in the third chapter of this report, but a few general remarks may not be out of place here. It was estimated in last year's report that the actual amount of disturbance of non-occupancy tenancies caused by ejectment proceedings during 1899-1900 affected 3·36 per cent. of the area held by them, and that the amount of disturbance of tenancies in general was 1·25 per cent. Combining with these figures the corresponding figures for the year 1900-1901, the total disturbance during the last two years may be put approximately at 10·25 per cent. of non-occupancy holdings and 4·80 per cent. of tenant holdings in general. If from these figures a deduction be made on account of ejectments enforced independently of any connection with the Tenancy legislation, the effect of that legislation, as exhibited by ejectments, will be shown by the balance. There must be a certain amount of conjecture in these figures, but the fact will remain that only, at the outside, about four per cent. of the tenant area was disturbed in consequence of the introduction of a radical measure of tenancy reform. That even this much disturbance took place is due, no doubt, to a great extent, to the uncertainty that existed up to the very last moment of the precise shape that the Tenancy law would take. Landholders accordingly prepared for the worst : but even so, their action brings out, not so much the vastness of the litigation of the year, as the insignificance of the litigation which takes place in years of normal character, and the extent to which the business of landholder and tenant is ordinarily transacted without the intervention of the Courts.

* For district details see Statement XXI.

74. The North-Western Provinces Tenancy Bill has become law since the close of the year under report, and it is too early yet to estimate its probable results. It should prove, however, a beneficial measure, whether it serves to increase the number of occupancy tenancies or operates by the general introduction of seven-year leases. The amalgamation in one Act of the Revenue law of the two Provinces, effected with scrupulous regard to the preservation of such provisions as were peculiar to the individual Provinces, will simplify the administration of the Revenue law and greatly assist the officers engaged in that work.

§ 75.—Conclusion.

75. In conclusion, the Board desire to place on record their satisfaction at the manner in which the arduous duties of the year have been discharged by Revenue officers of all grades.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

H. F. HOUSE,

Secretary.

ORDERS OF GOVERNMENT.

No. $\frac{1577}{I-607F}$ OF 1902.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Naini Tal, the 27th May 1902.

READ—

Letter from the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, No. $\frac{1466}{XII-163}$, dated 8th April 1902, being the Board's Report on the Revenue Administration of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh for the year ending 30th September 1901.

OBSERVATIONS.—The Report on the Revenue Administration of the United Provinces reached the Government on 3rd May. Under the orders of Government, and in accordance with the recommendations made by the officer recently placed on special duty, the appendices have been considerably curtailed; the number has been reduced from 84 to 32, while those that remain have been freed from unnecessary columns and re-arranged in a convenient order. The report deals in a businesslike manner and in a reasonable number of pages with the salient features of the year's administration.

2. The year covered by the report may be said to have been a fairly satisfactory one for the Provinces. The rains of 1900, though not well distributed, were not deficient on the whole; the kharif that followed was normal, and the rabi, except in the Benares Division, is characterized as good. Though the seasons were not altogether free from calamities, the extent of the latter was limited, and, as the anticipated fall in prices did not take place, cultivators were able to obtain a good return for their produce.

3. The collection of the current demand of revenue on the roll was in consequence effected with little difficulty, a very small proportion only remaining unrealized at the close of the year. With reference to the arrears of previous years, the progress made was quite as much as could be expected. Nearly two-thirds of the total sum due were collected. The balance outstanding at the close of the year, which amounted to over six lakhs of rupees, has since been remitted by this Government with the sanction of the Government of India—a substantial and necessary measure of relief, which has benefited that portion of the Provinces, the Allahabad Division, which suffered most from the ravages and sequelæ of famine. In this division alone were the severer processes for the recovery of land revenue resorted to during the year to any noticeable extent.

4. Under heads other than land revenue the collections were equally satisfactory. The revenue on the roll at the close of the year was increased by nearly 7 lakhs of rupees in consequence of revisions of settlements, and the important change of system by which revenue is no longer removed from the accounts on annulment of settlement. also added substantially to the recorded demand.

5. As was to be expected from the character of the year, the operations under the Land Improvement and Agriculturists' Loans Acts were limited in extent, the advances made to landholders and cultivators aggregating little more than one lakh of rupees. The most noticeable feature in the returns is the large unrealized balance, ($2\frac{1}{5}$ lakhs) at the close of the year, of advances under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, almost entirely due from the Allahabad Division. In that division remissions to the extent of Rs. 59,000 were made during the year, but more are certainly called for. The matter demands, and is receiving, the special attention of the Board and of the Government.

6. The returns of litigation, which are of special interest in view of the fact that at the close of the year a few months only remained during which Act XII of 1881 continued in force, are instructive. In parts of the Province of Agra the landholders took the opportunity of issuing an enormous number of notices of ejectment (194,435) under section 36, followed up by applications for assistance to eject, but the Board are of opinion that the ejectments were to a great extent formal, carried out in the idea that some benefit was to be gained by adopting this procedure before the new Act came into force: in about one-fifth of the cases only did the tenants contest the notices, and the very small proportion of success attained by them is remarkable. In view of the provisions of Chapter II of the North-Western Provinces Tenancy Act, 1901, the proceedings will probably be found in most cases to be of no effect. They must, however, have added considerably to the work of revenue officials, who had also to deal with an increased number of notices of relinquishment.

Though the total number of suits for disposal, chiefly owing to the decline in the suits for arrears of rent, was less than in the previous year, the pending file increased in the Province of Agra by 10 per cent., and the disposals compare unfavourably with those in Oudh, unavoidably no doubt owing to the heaviness of the work in other branches. Similarly, the pending file in the case of applications was three times greater at the close of the year in the Province of Agra than it was at the beginning, no less than 6,629 tenants' cases (contesting liability to ejectment) and 37,041 landholders' cases (assistance to eject) remaining undecided. The enhancement cases for disposal during the year exceeded by half those for disposal in the previous year, being most numerous in Budaun where the settlement has been recently revised, and the pending file rose very materially. The Lieutenant-Governor, however, concurs with the Board that, in view of the great increase of work taken as a whole, the extent of the disposal of suits and applications in both Provinces is creditable, and trusts that during the current year the arrears will be substantially reduced, especially under the heads of enhancements and partitions.

7. The appellate work of Commissioners shows a corresponding rise. The disposals in each of the three divisions of Agra, Rohilkhand, and Meerut averaged 1,000 cases, and, if the disposals in the Benares and Fyzabad Divisions had equalled this number, the pending file in those two divisions would have been reduced to a minimum. In the Fyzabad and Meerut Divisions the pending file at the close of the year was heavy (756 and 1,376 respectively), and a considerable proportion of the cases had been pending for more than three months. The expedient permitted in the Meerut Division of transferring appeals to the more senior Collectors for disposal is not effective, as it cannot conveniently be resorted to to any great extent, and an examination of the figures given in Statement XXIV leads the Lieutenant-Governor to the conclusion that it may be necessary to give special assistance to the Commissioner in the cold weather when the services of an officer are available.

8. Settlement operations are shown to have been in progress in twelve districts during the year—nine in the Province of Agra and three in Oudh,—but in three districts (Meerut, Sháhjahánpur, and Kheri) the proceedings were limited, the settlement having come to a close, and in two others, Pilibhít and Naini Tal, the work for other reasons was light. In the remaining seven a substantial amount of work was taken in hand and completed. On the close of the year the important scheme elaborated by the Board for the future revision of settlements in Bundelkhand reached the Government. It is regarded by the Lieutenant-Governor as a most urgent measure of reform, and he hopes to be in a position to pass final orders shortly. Bundelkhand, with its ever indebted proprietors, has for some time past given grave cause for anxiety, and several other measures of importance with a view to its relief, notably the summary re-adjustment of the revenue demand, and the extension and modification of the Jhánsi Encumbered Estates Act, received earnest consideration during the year. Proposals were worked out, which will, it is hoped, be carried into effect or at least materially advanced during the current year.

9. It remains, in conclusion, to refer to the loss which the United Provinces have sustained by the retirement of two experienced and able revenue officials, who held office on the Board during the year, the Hon'ble Mr. H. F. Evans, C.S.I., Senior Member, and Mr. E. Rose, C.V.O., Officiating Member, and to place on record this Government's appreciation of their services. Mr. Evans' wide experience and sound judgment were of the greatest value to the Government, especially in connection with the numerous settlements carried out during his tenure of office, and Mr. Rose brought to the Board the ripe knowledge and untiring industry which had distinguished his work as a Commissioner.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, for the information of the Board.

Chief Secretary to Government,
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.

REPORT

ON THE

UNITED PROVINCES OF AGRA AND OUDH,

FOR THE REVENUE YEAR 1901-1902.

No. $\frac{1540}{\text{XII-163}}$ OF 1903.

FROM

R. W. GILLAN, ESQ., I. C. S.,

SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF REVENUE,

UNITED PROVINCES OF AGRA AND OUDH,

To

THE SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,

UNITED PROVINCES OF AGRA AND OUDH,

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Allahabad, the 17th April 1903.

SIR,

Present:

HON'BLE MR. D. T. ROBERTS, C. S. I.,
HON'BLE MR. J. HOOPER, I. C. S., AND
J. B. THOMSON, ESQ., I. C. S.

§§ 1—3.—Introductory.

I AM directed to submit the Board's report on the Revenue Administration of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh for the year ending on the 30th September 1902.

2. The office of Senior Member was held till April 1902 by the Hon'ble Mr. Evans. On his retirement from the service, he was succeeded by the Hon'ble Mr. Roberts, whose place as Junior Member was then taken by the Hon'ble Mr. Hooper, and this arrangement continued without further change till the close of the year.

3. All the divisional reports were received by the close of December. The delay in most cases was due to the necessity of preparing the appendices in an unfamiliar form, and the subsequent return of some of the statements for correction prevented the completion of the statistics required for this report before the 14th February 1903.

Chapter I.—AGRICULTURAL.

§§ 4—7.—Rainfall and harvests.

4. The monsoon of 1901 was short-lived and capricious; but opportune rain at the most critical period saved the Provinces from the results that would be expected to follow a season of this description. Showers in June had sufficed here and there to start kharif operations, but many districts were practically rainless, and nowhere, except in Rohilkhand, was the deficiency less than 75 per cent. of the normal. Dry and extremely hot weather continued till the end of the first week in July when the monsoon fairly set in. During July good rain was general, and the deficiency was reduced considerably. From the end of that month, however, the conditions in the east and west of the Provinces began to diverge. During August the rainfall in the Benares, Gorakhpur and Oudh divisions was normal or slightly in defect. In other divisions it was considerably to largely in excess, and the kharif crops suffered in the low-lying tracts of many districts. In September the conditions were reversed. In the western districts a break began in the first week, which later extended, and for more than a fortnight continued, over the whole of the Provinces. The outlook, indeed, was unpromising and was rapidly becoming gloomy when, towards the end of the month, another burst of the monsoon saved the kharíf and prepared the ground for the rabi. The rain, however, did not extend over the whole of the Provinces. In the east it was general, and in places exceptionally heavy, Tarabganj, in Gonda, receiving 16 inches in twenty-four hours, but it did not reach to the west of a line drawn from Jalaun to Budaun and Bijnor. In October the western districts received a few showers which, if not heavy, were very beneficial. The rainfall of the month, however, was less than half an inch in every division, and a similar deficiency characterised the rainfall throughout the months of the succeeding cold weather. November and the greater part of December were rainless. At the end of December, the divisions of Meerut, Agra, Rohilkhand and Kumaun received light to moderate rain. In January Allahabad and Benares were distinguished by the advent of a storm, the benefits of which did not reach other divisions, and in February and March the rainfall was generally trifling.

5. In the conditions described, the Provinces might be considered fortunate in escaping a calamity that would have followed only too closely on the disastrous experience of years from which they had not entirely recovered; but the actual result of these conditions was a moderate crop in an exceptionally large area. The area of kharíf indeed was slightly below the area in 1900-1901, and the outturn was somewhat below normal. The yield of cotton and small millets was good, but maize, juar and bajra did not do as well as in the previous year; indigo suffered from the delay in the commencement of the rains, and rice, which was sown on an exceptionally small area, was estimated to give a return of no more than 65 per cent. of the normal. The greatest sufferers in the kharíf were the rice growing districts, which failed for the third year in succession to obtain a good crop; but some of the districts in Bundelkhand and the west, especially Muttra, Agra and Jalaun, were equally unfortunate. On the whole the kharíf crop may be estimated as 80 or 85 per cent. of the normal.

6. The rain towards the end of November thus saved the kharíf and it had a still more important effect on the saving of the rabi. The area sown with spring crops was, in fact, so great as to make the total cultivated area of the year the largest on record, and the spring crops generally started under favourable conditions. As the cold weather months went by without sufficient rain, prospects gradually deteriorated, and in the end the crops on dry land suffered severely. Some damage also was done to arhar, peas and gram by frost. But, in general, surprise is expressed that the crops did so well, and the season was undoubtedly favourable for oil seeds and for sugarcane. The general outturn was poorest in the divisions of Meerut, Agra and Kumaun, and best in Fyzabad. On the provinces as a whole it is estimated to have been 85 per cent. of the normal.

7. The monsoon of 1902 may conveniently be left for fuller discussion in next year's report, and for the present a brief reference to its general character is all that is necessary. The rains were again delayed, and a long break in August did some damage. In September, however, the rainfall was almost uniformly excellent. On the whole, the kharíf harvest of 1902 was distinctly better than that of the preceding year, and prospects in general are very good.

§ 8.—Hail storms, floods and other calamities.

8. The year, as a whole, was free from calamities of any importance. Locusts did some damage in Jaunsar-Bawar and tahsíl Muhamdi (Kheri district). Hail storms were reported from nine districts, but only in Bulandshahr was the damage sufficient to call for any action on the part of the revenue authorities; in 18 villages of that district revenue amounting to Rs. 2,372 was suspended. Of more importance were the floods, already mentioned, which the heavy rains of August brought down the rivers,

In Kheri, the damage to crops in the alluvial mahâls was estimated at from 4 annas to 8 annas, and in Budaun Rs. 18,000 revenue was suspended. This sum, however, was recovered before the end of the year, and generally the khadir lands gained as much in the rabi as they had lost in the kharíf. The Commissioner of Rohilkhand mentions the frequency in his division of accidental fires, which destroyed property valued at no less than Rs. 1,62,910.

§ 9—Prices.

9. Prices, it is generally noted, were easier throughout the year, but a comparison of the figures in different parts of the Provinces brings variations to light which can be attributed only to local conditions. Prices are often affected, it is true, more by the state of the export trade than by the outturn of the harvest, and in the reports from the western districts, it is frequently remarked that the fall in prices has taken place in spite of deficient crops. The demand from other parts of India appears to have decreased, and this was no doubt the governing factor in the case of wheat. In September 1901 the price of wheat was almost exactly the same as a twelve month before, but December and every succeeding quarter shows a fall on the corresponding quarter of the year before; the average increase for the year in the amount purchasable for a rupee was two seers, and this increase is distributed with remarkable uniformity over every division in the Provinces. The statistics of other crops, on the contrary, bring out two facts with the greatest clearness, first that the movement of the prices of rabi crops was much more uniform than that of the kharíf, and, secondly, that the changes on the whole were so unequal as to transfer to the east the area of minimum prices which, at the beginning of the year, was situated in the west. The average for the year of arhar in seers per rupee was two or three seers above the average of 1900-1901, but the excess was smallest in the divisions of Agra and Meerut. Gram was considerably cheaper throughout the year, but at its close the difference had disappeared in Meerut and Agra, the price in September 1902 being practically the same in those divisions as at the end of September 1901, while in other divisions it was lower. The price of barley followed much the same course as the price of wheat, and was lower in September 1902 than in September 1901, but on the whole the average of the year was raised only in Bundelkhand and Gorakhpur. Maize, juar and bajra which, during the year 1900-1901 had been cheapest in the west, were all lower in price at the end of that year than at the beginning, but during the next few months their price rose in Meerut, Agra, Rohilkhand and Allahabad, and though September 1902 has again shown a fall, the result is that in the divisions named the average price of these grains was higher than in the preceding year, while in the remaining divisions it was lower. Rice fluctuated little in price. It was dearer as a rule after the harvest of 1901 than it had been a year earlier, but the price has since fallen and it was a seer cheaper at the end of the year than at the beginning.

§ 10—Results.

10. These variations follow so closely the variations in the outturn of the crops, that they can be ascribed to no other cause, and the result is to emphasize the description given in the preceding paragraphs of the conditions of the year under report. Oudh, and especially Fyzabad, did particularly well. Except for their rice the eastern districts had also good crops. The western districts were by no means so fortunate; their dry land suffered more from climatic conditions, and their wheat sold at a lower price. In Jhánsi and Jalaun the kharíf is noticed as exceptionally poor. In Bijnor, the Collector says there was difficulty in collecting the revenue; in Aligarh there were suspensions, in Muttra large remissions. These are the main features of the agricultural year, but it may be added that in Mirzapur the late kharíf was very poor, the til crop being a failure, and that Dehra Dún and the Kumaun division were also unfortunate in their harvests.

Chapter II.—FINANCIAL.

§ 11.—Total demand and collections.

11. The total receipts from the several sources of income treated of in this report amounted to Rs. 8,21,82,265 out of a demand of Rs. 8,41,88,722 as compared with Rs. 8,27,13,904 out of a demand of Rs. 8,52,80,604 in the preceding year. The revenue administration of the year was distinguished by the extinction of old balances and ease in collections. To a great extent these favourable results were due to the liberal policy of Government which will be indicated in subsequent paragraphs, and they were conspicuous accordingly in the Allahabad division where the Bundelkhand districts have always provided difficulties in revenue administration. In this division the year closed with the demand met practically in full, a circumstance, says the Commissioner, almost unknown for a long cycle of years. "It would be difficult," he adds, "to over-estimate the relief afforded to the land-owning community . . . . . Numerous estates which had been attached for arrears have now been restored to the old proprietors, while the reductions, both ordinary and special, in the demand have enabled the embarrassed proprietors to rid themselves of the encumbrances on their property." The fact remains, however, that similar results were obtained also in divisions where there was fortunately no need for exceptional measures. Speaking generally the year was an easy one both for the revenue officer and for the revenue payer.

§ 12.—Arrears of land revenue.

12. The first point to be noted is the complete removal of the disturbing effects of famine. Much indeed had already been done with this object. The year 1896-97 closed with a balance of Rs. 1,62,00,008 : of the sum obtained by adding this amount to the current demand of the next four years, Rs. 73,17,613 had been remitted, but there still remained on 1st October 1901 a balance of Rs. 6,52,580 raised by subsequent adjustments to Rs. 6,58,345; there was also an arrear demand of Rs. 12,108 for revenue not on the roll. The account was finally cleared by orders in April remitting all sums outstanding at the end of the previous revenue year. The working out of the remissions led, however, to some alterations in detail. Before the orders issued, a considerable part of the arrears had been collected; in such cases a corresponding sum had to be written off the current demand, and there are instances in which, the current demand being insufficient, the transaction will be completed only in the present year. Small corrections again had to be made in the balances already reported. Finally, the case of farms and transfers made after the 1st of October 1901, had to be considered. Transferees and farmers in such cases had no right to the remission, and the remission was not given them. In order, however, to facilitate a restoration of the properties to the original owners, they were offered a refund of arrears paid by them on condition that they gave up their farms or other transfers, and some restorations were effected; but the refusal of the transferees in other cases to give up their bargains led to a small reduction in the amount originally sanctioned for remission. The account may be stated as follows :—

Amount sanctioned for remission	Rs.	6,38,596
Arrears as finally corrected	„	6,44,496
Remissions not granted on account of transfers ...	„	14,957
Remitted out of arrears	„	5,05,317
Remitted out of the demand for 1901-02	„	90,634
Left over for adjustment in 1902-03	„	33,588

Of the amount given in the second line of this statement no less than Rs. 5,56,154 belong to the Allahabad division, and the only other items of importance were Rs. 16,091 in Partábgarh and Rs. 11,655 in Sháhjahánpur.

§§ 13—14.—Land revenue: current demand.

13. The amount remitted is not large in proportion to the total land revenue, but the relief to the districts chiefly affected was great, and further help was given by measures taken to bring the current demand into accordance with present circumstances. The peculiar conditions of Bundelkhand, its liability to excessive fluctuations, and the necessity for a revenue system more elastic than that suited to the rest of the provinces, have recently been emphasized. A system of fluctuating settlements has therefore been devised, but it requires necessarily some time for its execution. Meantime a tract which has recovered more slowly from the famine than any other part of the provinces, required the application of some immediate remedy, and this has been found in a summary reduction of revenue. The details of the process by which the result has been reached have already been reported and do not require repetition; but in effect it may be said that the result of a summary revision, based on the principle of taking half the present assets as revenue, has been to reduce the demand in Bundelkhand by Rs. 5,53,528. These have been called in the correspondence on the subject ordinary reductions, and will generally be continued for the remainder of the term of settlement in each district, or till the system of fluctuating assessments is introduced. In addition it was recognised that hereditary land-owners were fairly entitled to some recompense for the years in which they had been paying a revenue much in excess of half the assets of their land, and for this reason a further concession was given them in the shape of special reductions which amount to Rs.1,72,914, and will have effect for five years. The total amount of the reductions was, therefore, Rs. 7,26,442, but for one reason and another, because they were sanctioned late in the year and because in some cases, where the land had passed away from the old proprietors, the necessity for special reductions had disappeared, the sum to which actual effect was given in the accounts of the year was Rs. 39,288 less or Rs. 6,87,154. Pending the sanction of special legislation, the reductions, both ordinary and special, are to be regarded only as suspensions, and in the appendices to this report they have for this reason to be shown, incongruously enough, in the balance in train of liquidation.

14. The revenue on the roll for the year was Rs. 6,33,12,337, which for reasons given in paragraph 27 of last year's report was Rs. 9,77,244 above last year's demand. To this sum Rs. 2,21,928 are added as revenue not on the roll, consisting of sums which were sanctioned after the 1st of October, Rs. 1,84,763 being contributed by Aligarh alone, which is under settlement. The first deduction to be made is Rs. 6,87,154, the actual amount of the suspensions in Bundelkhand, and Rs. 68,314 should be deducted on account of what is called the nominal balance, consisting of reductions in revenue sanctioned after the revenue roll is made up. The real demand for the year therefore was Rs. 6,27,78,797, of which Rs. 6,24,81,059, or 99·5 per cent., were collected.

The difference of Rs. 2,97,738 may be briefly explained. In the Meerut division the difference amounts to Rs. 15,685, of which Rs. 1,120 was recovered after the close of the year in Dehra Dun, and Rs. 11,854 was suspended in the dry tracts of tahsíls Khair, Iglas and Hathras in Aligarh on account of poor harvests. In the Agra division Rs. 80,501 of the amount uncollected was remitted in Muttra for a similar reason. In Rohilkhand the only item outstanding of any importance is one of Rs. 31,642 in Bijnor where the remarks in paragraphs 4 and 10, will explain the necessity of postponing so much of the demand till the kharif of the present year. In Allahabad the balances shown in Statement I are very large, but they are accounted for, all but Rs. 29,923, by summary reductions or by remissions in return for sums collected out of arrears outstanding at the end of the previous year, and an additional sum of Rs. 11,330 had to be remitted in Jhánsi during the year on account of the resettlement of the Gursarai estate. In Kumaun there is a sum of Rs. 10,908 shown as recoverable from estates under Government management, which the Deputy Commissioner of Naini Tal explains as due in great part to the late receipt of a cheque which should have been credited in the year's accounts. In Benares the only real balance outstanding is one of Rs. 2,264 in Ghazipur, and in the whole of Oudh there is no real balance at all. Rs. 23,154, however, had been remitted in Oudh as an act of grace, and in Unao the item of Rs. 14,207 represents the last instalment of remissions which were in the nature of temporary reductions of revenue granted in deteriorated villages.

Reductions of the kind granted in Muttra cannot be excluded from the demand in making a fair calculation of the percentage of collections. The true percentage is that given at the beginning of this paragraph; but it is worthy of note that if the whole irrecoverable balance is is excluded from the demand, the percentage of collections is 99·8, and that the balance actually recoverable, from which the Bundelkhand suspensions are omitted, was on 1st October 1902 Rs. 97,004.

§ 15.—Alterations in land revenue on the roll.

15. The land revenue on the roll on the 1st October 1902 was Rs. 6,39,10,869, an increase of Rs. 5,98,532 over the demand of the year just closed. Of this increase Rs. 5,65,476, or 94·5 per cent., are due to regular revision of settlement. In the Province of Agra, Aligarh (Rs. 1,84,759), Budaun (Rs. 90,856), Farukhabad and Bareilly (nearly Rs. 28,000 each) and Bijnor (Rs. 25,853), and in Oudh, Gonda (Rs. 48,042), Fyzabad (Rs. 40,349), Bara Banki (Rs. 22,875), Hardoi (Rs. 19,670), Bahraich (Rs. 13,664), and Sitapur (Rs. 12,065) are the districts which principally contribute to this increase. Of the decrease the largest item is in the Jhánsi district (Rs. 15,024), of which Rs. 14,988 are due to the reduction of the revenue of the Gursarai estate owing to the restitution of the ubari jama.

§ 16.—Malikana.

16. The demand on account of malikana was Rs. 1,92,406, the whole of which, with the exception of Rs. 165, was collected. Of this Rs. 72 were remitted in Jhánsi, Rs. 93 being left over at the close of the year. The total amount for disbursement, including the balance in hand from the previous year, was Rs. 2,23,627. Payments amounted to Rs. 1,86,195, and an undisbursed balance of Rs. 37,432, more than half of which is in the Gorakhpur district, was in hand when the year closed.

§ 17.—Canal rates.

17. With the exception of Bareilly and Pilibhít, where the seasons were favourable, deficient rainfall led to a great increase in the demand for water in all canal-irrigated districts, the rise in occupiers' rate being 27·4 per cent. in the Meerut division, 22·3 per cent. in Agra and 38 per cent. in Allahabad. The demand for occupiers' rate, current and arrear, was Rs. 76,64,603, or 16 lakhs of rupees above the demand for 1900-1901, and Rs. 76,45,150, or 99·7 per cent., were collected. Of the balance of Rs. 19,453, Rs. 8,536 are nominal, and the real balance is large only in the district of Allahabad. This district has only recently received canal irrigation, and the Collector explains the arrears as due partly to the unfamiliarity of the demand and partly to the late receipt of the canal jamabandis. In Meerut and Aligarh revision of settlement has led to a reduction in owners' rate. Elsewhere there has been an increase, corresponding to the increase of occupiers' rate, and the demand as a whole has risen from Rs. 2,62,808 to Rs 2,99,347. The balance left for recovery at the end of the year was only Rs. 86.

§ 18.—Cesses.

18. The demand and collections, current and arrear, of the various cesses are given below :—

	Demand.	Collections.	Balance. Real.	Balance. Nominal or irrecoverable.	Balance. Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Twelve per cent. Cess	52,19,567	51,99,371	15,069	5,127	20,196
Acreage Cess, &c.	6,08,532	6,07,833	218	481	699
Consolidated Local Rate	12,45,299	12,45,122	...	177	177
Rural Police Rate	9,16,221	9,16,047	...	174	174
Village Watch Cess	24,037	24,037	...	...	...
Patwári Rate ...	25,23,329	25,16,402	5,129	1,798	6,927

The only outstandings that call for remark are on account of the 12 per cent. cess and the patwári rate, and even under these heads they are unimportant except in the Allahabad division where arrears of Rs. 12,661 and Rs. 4,381 respectively have resulted from a misunderstanding as to the demand. When the revenues of deteriorated villages were reduced in Bundelkhand, district officers at first calculated the cesses on the reduced demand. Subsequently, when the reductions of revenue were ordered to be treated as suspensions, the Board directed that the calculation should be made on the original revenues which are still borne on the roll, but the short collections which were the result of the change in procedure could not be made good within the year. The question of these cesses is being referred to Government.

§§ 19–23.—Advances (takavi).

19. Advances under the Land Improvement and Agriculturists' Loans Acts were confined practically to districts where the partial failure of the monsoon led to their adoption as a measure of relief, and though the totals are not large, they are above the figures of the preceding year.

20. The total amount advanced under the Land Improvement Loans Act during the year was Rs. 67,780 compared with Rs. 32,840 in the previous year, the Meerut and Agra divisions accounting for more than half of the advances made. The largest advance made in any single district was Rs. 14,930 in Aligarh, where the scantiness of the rainfall during the first half of the year necessitated the distribution of large amounts under both the Acts for the construction of wells and the purchase of seed. In the Fyzabad division also a local drought was met in the same way, and the Commissioner specially notices the results obtained by advancing Rs. 3,365 in Sultánpur, Rs. 2,000 of which was free of interest: the sum is small, but through the construction of kachha wells it saved a considerable area in the rabi. Under the Agriculturists' Loans Act the advances during the year amounted to Rs. 1,16,974 as against Rs. 77,570 in the previous year. The Allahabad, Agra and Meerut divisions took over two-thirds of the advances made. In the Jhánsi district, where over Rs. 14,000 were advanced, the major portion was spent on the purchase of cattle. In Garhwál also Rs. 8,582 were distributed, and in Dehra Dún Rs. 5,000.

21. Collections for the provinces as a whole were poor. The total amount for recovery under the Land Improvement Loans Act during the year was Rs. 2,36,176. The collections amounted to Rs. 1,92,056 and Rs. 9,796 were remitted, leaving a balance of Rs. 34,324* at the close of the year. The total demand for interest was Rs. 51,392: of this sum Rs. 31,357 were collected and Rs. 2,300 were remitted. The outstanding balance was therefore Rs. 17,735.*

The total amount under recovery under the Agriculturists' Loans Act during the year was Rs. 3,62,156. The collections amounted only to Rs. 1,70,398 and the remissions to Rs. 46,587, leaving a total unrealized balance of Rs. 2,64,299.† The demand for interest was Rs. 50,407. The amount collected was Rs. 15,780 and Rs. 5,288 were remitted, leaving a balance of Rs. 29,339.† The great bulk of the balances, however, is due in the Allahabad division, and the years in which most of the advances were made show that they should be regarded as famine expenditure. Steps have been taken therefore to clear the accounts by removing all items which it would be a hardship to recover. Since the close of the year Rs. 1,39,874 have been sanctioned for remission under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, and Rs. 3,963 under the Land Improvement Act, while proposals under the latter are still awaited from some of the districts in Bundelkhand and the balance left, when effect has been given to all these remissions, will not be large.

22. The balance that remained to be collected at the close of last year under the head special partly recoverable advances was Rs. 829.

* Vide Statement XV. | † Vide Statement XVI.

To this amount, however, a further sum of Rs. 1,816 was added during the year in the Jhánsi district, making a total demand of Rs. 2,645. The collections amcunted to Rs. 2,063, leaving a balance of Rs. 582.

23. The following statement * shows the result of the transactions under the Land Improvement and Agriculturists' Loans Acts from 1896-97 to 1901-02.

Including the outstanding balances under both the Acts at the beginning of 1896-97, the total advances made amount to Rs. 69,73,245. The collections and remissions during the period amount to Rs. 63,27,985. The total unrealized balance at the close of 1902 was therefore Rs. 6,45,260. The total demand for interest was Rs. 6,74,841. The collections and remissions amounted to Rs. 6,27,767, leaving outstandings amounting to Rs. 47,074. Remissions have been shown separately in the appendices only since 1900-01, but the amount remitted from the commencement of 1896-97 to the end of 1901-1902 is Rs. 2,97,184 on account of principal and Rs. 32,726 on account of interest. In addition a large portion of the outstanding balance is irrecoverable. Rupees 1,43,837, the remission of which was sanctioned after the close of the year, will have to come off the accounts, and a further sum of about Rs. 15,000 will have to be proposed for remission. The last item introduces a slight element of uncertainty into the calculation, but if all sums remitted or estimated to be proposed for remission are deducted from the amount of interest actually recovered, the net profit to Government on the working of the last six years has been Rs. 1,86,094.

§ 24.—State properties.

24. During the year under report 24 estates were added to the estates under the Board's supervision. The total current demand for rent amounted to Rs. 3,18,316 against Rs. 2,50,655 in the previous year. The increase is due mainly to the inclusion in the accounts of the rental of lands confiscated in the Allahabad district, in which district there is a total increase of Rs. 47,658. Including outstandings the total demand was Rs. 3,65,237, of which Rs. 3,22,196 or 88 per cent. was collected as compared with 80 per cent. in the preceding year. In the Holagarh and Khargapur escheated estates in the Allahabad district, 89 per cent. of the gross demand was realized against 63 per cent. in the previous year. The outstanding balance was Rs. 43,041,† of which Rs. 28,682 are classed as recoverable, Rs. 2,588 as nominal, and Rs. 11,771 as irrecoverable. Of the amount classed as irrecoverable, the Allahabad district is responsible for Rs. 5,390 and Bánda for Rs. 3,919. After payment of land revenue and rates there remained a balance of Rs. 1,94,448, of which Rs. 54,878 were spent on establishment, contingencies and improvements, leaving a net profit to Government of Rs. 1,39,570 as compared with Rs. 85,561 in the preceding year. The figures for special state properties in the Kumaun division and the Dudhi estate in the south of Mirzapur have been separately reported upon.

§ 25.—Sale of waste lands, &c.

25. The total demand for the price of confiscated, escheated and waste lands recoverable within the year was Rs. 9,502,* all of which was collected.

§ 26.—Miscellaneous land revenue.

26. Inclusive of the outstanding arrears the total demand on account of miscellaneous revenue came to Rs. 1,36,767,† of which all but Rs. 18 was collected. The total current demand amounted to Rs. 1,36,743, as compared with Rs. 1,26,709, being an increase of Rs. 10,034, due mainly to a rise of Rs. 7,046 in the receipts from the Mirzapur stone quarries. The subjoined figures of the last five years show satisfactory improvement in the income of these quarries :—

		Rs.
(1)	1897-98	47,056
(2)	1898-99	57,378
(3)	1899-00	68,749
(4)	1900-01	69,190
(5)	1901-02	76,236

The collections on account of the current demand for water-mill rents in the Kumaun division aggregate Rs. 14,644 as compared with Rs. 14,383 in the preceding year.

§§ 27—29.—Coercive processes.

27. Except where hampered by the breakdown of the lambardári system and an excessive sub-division of proprietary shares, the collection of revenue was easy and the number of processes employed in the recovery of land revenue or other sums recoverable as land revenue was less, as the following figures will show, than in the previous year :—

	1900-01.	1901-02.
Writs	32,022	31,817
Warrants of arrest	2,798	2,909
Attachments—

Of immoveable property	592	394
Transfers	185	133
Annulments of settlement	28	4
Sales	25	30
	41,992	40,555

The explanations given of variations in particular districts are not consistent. In the Meerut division, for example, the Collector of Saháranpur ascribes the increase of processes in his district to a poor rabi which made the collection of the revenue far from easy: in the adjoining district of Muzaffarnagar, the Collector says merely that the number of processes fell off instead of increasing, as might have been expected in an unfavourable year: and the district officer of Aligarh explains a very large decrease by saying that "the character of the year was not such as to justify stern measures." The figures, however, for the division as a whole are extremely satisfactory: the number of writs decreased, warrants and attachments were seldom used, in only two cases was moveable property sold and no process against immoveable property had to be employed. These results are noteworthy, especially in a division where the seasons were less favourable than in other parts, and a similar remark is applicable, though in a less degree, to the Agra division. In Etah the Collector explains the issue of 1,285 writs by the delay in the breaking of the rains and the drought in August, which led the zamíndárs to hold back their payments, and Agra shows an exceptional number of attachments of moveable property, but in the whole division no process was found necessary more severe than attachment of immoveable property, which was resorted to only in 16 cases.

28. The figures for the Allahabad division are also interesting. The one disadvantage in liberal remissions is that they encourage the revenue payers to default in the hope of proving a necessity for further concessions, and a growing tendency in this direction is noticed by the Commissioner. The necessity of checking this tendency is given, however, as the reason for an increase in the number of transfers and sales of immoveable property in Fatehpur, and it is certain that it has not been overlooked where it existed. The number of transfers in the Allahabad district is very large, accounting indeed with Fatehpur for 119 out of a provincial total of 133, and the number of attachments of immoveable property nearly doubled; the Commissioner explains, however, that both the transfers and these attachments were resorted to before the issue of orders for the remission of arrears. In this division as a whole the number of arrests and of attachments of moveable property increased, while there was a decrease in the number of writs and of all the more serious processes except sale.

29. The other divisions can be dealt with more briefly. The number of processes employed was very small in Oudh, and scarcely more numerous in the Benares division. In Rohilkhand there was one annulment of settlement and a great decrease in all attachments. Bijnor and Budaun show an increase in warrants, and there is a large increase in the number of writs in Bareilly, where it is thought to have been caused by the introduction of new revenues by settlement with which the people were not familiar. In Sháhjahánpur the increase is striking, and the number of writs is exceeded only by the number in Gorakhpur. At the same time there has been a remarkable falling off in the number of other processes, particularly of attachments, and the Commissioner specially notes as a satisfactory feature of the year's work the fact that the demand in this district was realised in full. In the Gorakhpur division, Azamgarh shows an increase in all processes except warrants and transfers, which is not accounted for by referring, as the Collector does, to the difficult conditions of the district; those difficulties are notorious, but they are not new. The number of writs also in Azamgarh and Gorakhpur is enormous. Gorakhpur, the Collector remarks, has 2,85,354 malguzárs, and the necessity which results from the powerlessness of lambardárs, of dealing individually with this crowd of petty proprietors, is a severe strain on the mechanism of a revenue system that was designed for other conditions. It has been suggested, however, that after all allowance has been made for difficulties arising from this source, a comparison with similar tracts shows the number of writs in these districts to be excessive, and the question will be considered by the Board in connection with criticisms made by the Commissioner of the extra process-serving establishment.

§ 30.—Estates under direct management.

30. The number of estates under direct management shows a decrease sufficient in some districts to amount to an appreciable lightening of the Collector's work. At the beginning of the year there were 743 estates under attachment, and 413 were attached during its course; but no less than 1,117 estates were released, and only 39 remained under attachment at its close. Out of a total rental demand in these estates of Rs. 40,196, Rs. 18,770 or 44·2 per cent. were collected and Rs. 14,451 credited against the demand for land revenue and cesses; but these figures are of little practical importance as the attachments often last for only a short period. None of the four estates in which settlement was annulled was held under direct management and the balance under this head of 62 estates from the previous year was reduced to 19. Collections were Rs. 28,660 against a demand of Rs. 38,830, and Rs. 19,382 were credited to land revenue and cesses.

Chapter III.—RENT LAW.

§ 31.—Litigation in the Province of Agra.

31. The outstanding feature, as described in the Board's report, of the rent law returns of last year, was the extraordinary increase in litigation due to the efforts made by landholders to forestall the results, as they imagined them, of impending legislation. That legislation, in the shape of the Tenancy Act of 1901, has since come into force, and in order, so far as possible, to judge of its results, the statistics now to be dealt with are of special importance. The comparison, however, required for this purpose is rendered difficult by changes in procedure. These will be mentioned in their proper place; but as a preliminary the alterations that have been found necessary in the appendices may be explained. The new Tenancy Act took effect from the 1st January 1902; and as Act XII of 1881 was in force for the first three months of the year, it has been thought desirable to give separate figures under each Act. The change also in the law which has brought nearly all matters of importance decided by Rent Courts under the heading of suits, pointed to the possibility of substituting a combined statement of suits and applications for the separate statements hitherto in use for suits, applications and miscellaneous proceedings. In this statement cases have been classified according to their subject matter, and for convenience the suits and applications under Act XII of 1881 also have been arranged and combined to correspond, as far as possible, with the classification used for the new Tenancy Act.

§ 32.—Ejectments. Difficulties in dealing with the statistics.

32. The most important question to consider is that of the ejectment of non-occupancy tenants; but, owing to change in procedure, no exact comparison can be made between the statistics under the new and old Acts. Under the old Act the procedure was—

(1) service of notice of ejectment, section 36;
(2) trial of objections to the notice, section 39;
(3) application to enforce ejectment, section 40.

The corresponding procedure under the new Act is—

(1) suit for ejectment under section 63;
(2) trial of contested suits;
(3) application to enforce decrees for ejectment.

Another difference in procedure is that, whereas notices of ejectment had to be presented for service between 1st January and 1st April for the termination of a tenancy in the year ending the 30th June following, the corresponding suit for ejectment must be instituted between 30th June and 1st October. But for the first year of the new Act, by special provision in section 63, permission was given to institute suits between 1st December 1901 and 1st April 1902. There were, therefore, in the year under report two sets of ejectment suits, one set for terminating tenancies by the 30th June 1902, and another set for terminating them by the 30th June 1903. In other words the institutions shown in the present returns are for two years instead of for one year only.

The returns do not discriminate between the two sets of ejectment suits; but, for the purpose of comparison with previous years, it may be assumed that none of the suits instituted in the period July to September were decided before the end of the year, and that all instituted in the first period December to April were so decided except suits shown as pending for over three months. In this way the number of cases pending at the end of the year less the number pending over thr e months may be taken as the number of the second set, and the difference between that number and the total number of institutions as the number of the first set. But, as some suits instituted in the July-September period were certainly decided before the end of the year, the number of the first set thus estimated is greater, and the number of the second set is less than the actual facts. It is not considered advisable to delay this report in order to obtain the correct figures, and the approximation is perhaps near enough for purposes of comparison with previous years.

Again, the two years preceding the passing of the new Tenancy Act were marked by an extraordinary issue of notices of ejectment by landlords eager to take advantage of the old Act, because of their alarm at the impending changes in the law. For the purposes of comparison, therefore, the average number of cases in the years preceding the agitation about the new law should also be considered.

§§ 33—34.—Comparison with previous years.

33. On these lines, therefore, the following table* has been constructed to compare the number of notices of ejectment under section 36 of Act XII of 1881 with the number of suits for ejectment under section 63 of Act II of 1901 :—

Total ...	57,767	95,903	196,330	64,938	41,495	106,433	+7,171	—16,272

It will be seen that the number of suits of the first set has fallen to one-third of the number of notices in the preceding year, and to two-thirds of the number in 1899-1900, but still very appreciably exceeds the average number of notices in the four years 1895-99. And the number in the second set has still further fallen to about two-thirds of the number of the first set and to a number about 28 per cent. less than that of the four years' average.

It will be remembered—and the statement exemplifies that the agitation among the landholders, and the consequent increase in ejectment notices, was greatest in the Meerut and Rohilkhand divisions ; next followed Agra and Allahabad. In Benares and Gorakhpur, the eastern divisions, there was relatively very little excitement over the new Act. It is interesting to notice that in Meerut the number of suits fell at once to one-seventh of the number of notices issued in 1900-1901 and, in the second set, to one-tenth. And the number of the second set of suits has fallen to one-third of the four years' average of notices. In Rohilkhand, however, though the number of suits fell conspicuously, they remained in both sets of suits largely above the four years' average of notices. In Agra the fall is very great in the second set of suits, which are only two-thirds of the average. In Allahabad there was relatively a smaller falling off in suits of the first set from the figures of the preceding year than in any other division ; and even in the second set the number exceeded the four years' average.

An examination of the returns by districts show a remarkable state of things in Budaun. In the preceding year the number of notices under section 36 was 10,703. In the year under report the total number of suits for ejectment was the extraordinary number of 12,027, of which 6,348 may be assigned to the first set and 5,679 to the second. No explanation of these figures has been given.

34. The second point for comparison is between the number of applications to contest a notice of ejectment (section 39 of Act XII) and the number of contested suits. On an average of years, tenants contested very nearly 25 per cent. of the notices; in 1901-1902 out of 61,183 cases disposed of, 16,365 were contested. The proportion is very nearly the same.

The third point for comparison is the number of actual ejectments. This comparison cannot be made. There is no return of execution of decrees of ejectment under the new Act for comparison with the number of applications for assistance to eject under section 40 of Act XII. As it is desirable to know to what extent decrees for ejectment are actually enforced, a return will be prescribed by the Board if the Government approves.

But Appendix XX-A shows that in 45,102 suits ejectment was decreed from 161,524 acres, an average of 3·58 acres. The average covered by a notice of ejectment under Act XII, which has been fairly constant for some years, was 5·29 acres. No confident opinion can be expressed as to this variation, but a remark made by the Collector of Fatehpur that the majority of the tenants ejected were sub-tenants in sír lands, may be true of other districts, and the figures certainly suggest that, whether in point of tenure or extent of holding, the ejectment work of the year represents the less important cases that were left over after the sifting of the two preceding years.

§ 35.—Effects of the Tenancy Act.

35. Returning to the comparison of the figures for notices of ejectment and for suits for ejectment, it remains to consider what, if any conclusion can be drawn from them in regard to the effect of the new Tenancy Act. There is one further qualification to be made in comparing these figures. Notices under section 36 were presented at the tahsíl and involved little trouble or expense. Suits must be filed at the district head-quarters on a substantial court-fee. They involve a good deal more trouble and more expense. It is fair to suppose, therefore, that they are instituted with more deliberation and express a more fixed determination to eject the tenant by formal process. Supposing that the only change in the law was the change of procedure, it would still be natural to expect that the number of suits would be smaller than the number of notices under the old Act.

Allowing for this effect of a change of procedure, and for the fact that the excessive number of ejectments in the preceding two years must have diminished the number of cases in which ejectment to prevent accrual of occupancy rights remained to be made, and also allowing for the fact that the interval between the first set of ejectments and the second was only six months instead of a year, it can scarcely be said that the decrease in the number of suits compared with the number of notices under section 36 for the two preceding years is greater than these three causes would account for. That is to say, the change in the substantive law regarding ejectment and occupancy right has not produced any appreciable effect upon the number of ejectment cases during the year under report.

§ 36.—Probable explanations.

36. When it is considered what the change in the law was intended to effect, this is a very remarkable conclusion to arrive at. Under the new law no formal ejectment and no change of holding will count as a break in the tenant's occupation, and prevent accrual of occupancy right. Nothing, except the grant of a seven years' lease, will be effectual for that purpose short of actual ejectment, not only from the holding, but from the village, for the space of a whole year. It was therefore expected that suits for ejectment of non-occupancy tenants would at once drop to the very small number of cases in which the landholder for any reason desired to be absolutely rid of the tenant. The only apparent way of preventing the acquisition of occupancy right is the grant of leases for seven years. Little or no light is thrown upon the matter by the District and Divisional reports; and until the Act has been in force for another year or two, it would be premature to dogmatize. Meanwhile there are three provisional explanations which may or may not be the correct ones, but might be made the subject of enquiry during the current year. The first is that landholders have not appreciated or comprehended the change in the law and have supposed that there is only a change in procedure. The extraordinary number of 12,000 suits in Budaun district would seem to support that view; but on the other hand the excessive number of ejectments throughout the Province in the year preceding is only explicable on the view that the landholders did appreciate the change in the law and were anxious to forestall it.

The second is that the landholders are not able or do not attempt to make their tenants accept seven-year leases without first enforcing actual ejectment or at least obtaining a decree for ejectment. There is no information in the returns of the number of cases in which such leases have been given, either before or after ejectment, and as such leases may be attested under section 97 instead of being registered under the Registration Act, a complete return of them could not be compiled by the Registration Department. As it is in any case important to know what effect the new law has in this way, the Board propose to prescribe a return to be prepared by the patwáris and scrutinized by the kanúngos.

The third is that landholders think they have discovered an easy way of evading the new law by the grant of a short-term lease to the son or other near relation of the ejected tenant. After the expiry of this lease the old tenant would be re-admitted for a while to be again formally ejected before another period of 12 years expires. Or such a lease might be fictitiously granted to an outsider and the old tenant recorded as a sub-tenant. It has been ascertained that this device has been resorted to in at least one district, and some time must elapse before a judicial decision can be given as to its efficacy. This also should be made the subject of inquiry by district officers and reported upon in next year's report.

§ 37.—Ejectment for arrears of rent.

37. The only class of ejectment in which the landholder now proceeds by application is under section 59 of the Tenancy Act when he holds a decree for arrears of rent against a tenant, and the procedure then corresponds most closely with the procedure under section 35 of Act XII of 1881. The total number of applications under section 35 of the old Act and section 59 of the new was 22,556, as compared with an average under section 35 in the years 1895-96 to 1898-99 of 23,518. The procedure is now applicable to non-occupancy as well as to occupancy tenants, and it is somewhat surprising that there has been no increase; but the use of these sections is accessory to suits for arrears of rent, the number of which has slightly decreased.

§ 38.—Surrenders.

38. The number of relinquishments or surrenders, which in previous years has had a connection with the number of ejectments, shows a remarkable falling off. The average number in the four normal years preceding 1899-1900 was 30,237. In 1900-1901 the number rose to 43,156. In 1901-1902 it was only 9,140, and there is a decrease in every division. For this decrease there are many reasons to be assigned. In the Bundelkhand districts of the Allahabad division there can be no question that the number of relinquishments depends chiefly on the condition of the tenants. They can always get land when they want it, and they have no hesitation in giving up land which they do not require. In this division therefore the number of relinquishments is really an index of the tenant's prosperity and the decrease of 12,901 cases as compared with the average is satisfactory. It is true that in this division the year 1895-96 showed the abnormal figure of 27,880 cases; but even if this figure is excluded, the average is 13,150, and during last year only 3,931 notices of relinquishment were filed. In other divisions the number of surrenders is normally much less than in Allahabad, and it was only in 1899-1900 and 1900-1901 that the efforts of landholders to oust their tenants by one means or another led to an extraordinary rise. In these divisions also favourable seasons have no doubt been one of the causes for a decrease. To account, however, for a decrease of 8,196, which is 61 per cent. below 13,405, the average for the years 1895-96 to 1898-99, some further explanation is necessary. In part this extraordinary fall may be ascribed to an increased tenacity on the part of cultivators, who, with exaggerated notions of what the new Act was going to do for them, have been less willing than usual to give up their holdings. It is to be remembered also that under the new Act the latest date for filing a notice of relinquishment is now the 31st March. Under the old Act the date was 30th April, and it may be that many tenants, or their landholders, were disappointed when they went to the tahsíl in April and found that they were too late. But in all probability the figures represent the exhaustion, or the absence for need of exertion, after the turmoil of the preceding two years. The sudden rise in relinquishments during 1899-1900 and 1900-1901 accompanied a great increase in ejectment cases, and was due undoubtedly to the pressure which landholders brought to bear on their tenants. So far as can be judged from the figures here dealt with, landholders felt themselves under no special necessity in 1901-1902 of getting rid of their tenants, and the fact has to be remembered in considering the figures of ejectment cases.

§ 39.—Enhancement of rent.

39. In the classes of suits remaining to be dealt with, there is no difficulty in comparing the figures for the year under report with those of previous years. As connected with the anti-tenant campaign which preceded the introduction of the Tenancy Act, Class IV of Appendices XIX and XIX-A may first be referred to; the number of suits for abatement of rent included under this head is so small that it may be neglected, and the figures taken to represent the number of suits for enhancement only. The only matter that complicates the comparison here is the question of settlement: at certain periods in each district the number of enhancements is certain to increase, and the expiry of the first decade of the current settlement in Bulandshahr and Saháranpur was referred to last year as a factor contributory to the increase of enhancements in those districts. This year there has been a fall in all divisions, in those which have had no recent settlement equally with those in which the first decade has recently expired. The total number of cases under this head was 6,147, compared with 9,821 in 1899-1900, with 15,153 in 1900-1901, and an average of 6,788 in 1895-96 to 1898-99. To this result the new provision of the Tenancy Act which allows any number of tenants in the same mahal to sue or to be sued collectively for abatement or enhancement of rent, has no doubt contributed; but the great decrease in the number of cases since 1900-1901 is for the most part the result of the excessive litigation of that year and of the return to more normal conditions.

§ 40.—Suits for arrears of rent.

40. The returns under this class indicate on the whole favourable agricultural conditions. The arrears of the famine were worked out, it may be said, in 1899-1900 when the number of suits for arrears of rent rose to 126,067. In 1900-1901 there was a fall of nearly 15 per cent. to 104,810, and during the year under report a further decrease to 102,647. The variations are not large; but it may be noted that there was a fall in the divisions of Meerut, Allahabad, Benares, and Gorakhpur. On the other hand there was a considerable increase in Bijnor, and the districts of the Agra division, with the exception of Muttra and Etah, return a larger number of suits. Suits in connection with distraint also fell from 4,206 to 2,885.

§§ 41—43.—Litigation in Oudh.

41. In Oudh the results of the year's working are in marked contrast to those of the Agra districts, the number of suits and miscellaneous applications having risen from 57,081 to 59,503, while applications for service of notices of ejectment have increased from 26,239 to 30,444. Suits for arrears of rent, however, and similar and connected proceedings have fallen off. Under suits for arrears of rent a decrease of 1,542 is contributed to by all districts, except Kheri and Fyzabad. Similarly there is a decrease of 213 in the number of applications for ejectment on account of arrears of rent, and the number of cases connected with distraint has fallen by 196. Under suits for arrears of revenue and profits also the returns show a decrease of 300.

42. Suits for enhancement and abatement of rent rose from 113 to 131. In Unao 89 cases of illegal enhancement are reported to have taken place, while a similar complaint is made by one or two other districts.

43. By the Oudh Rent Act Amendment Act (IV of 1901), a landholder can now sue for the resumption, assessment or enhancement of rent on land held rent-free or at a favourable rate of rent. The number of suits instituted under this class during the year was 269.

§§ 44—45.—Ejectments.

44. Suits for ejectment or recovery of possession rose from 10,331 to 11,313 and notices of ejectment under section 55 from 22,860 to 27,278. Under the latter head ejectment was ordered in about 71 per cent. of the cases filed, the area affected by actual eviction being 138,880 acres. The number of notices of relinquishment also rose from 1,936 to 2,568, an increase shared by all districts except Bahraich. Following as they do on a large increase in the previous year, the ejectment figures require special consideration. In Gonda undoubtedly the increase is explained by the action taken by the Ajudhya estate. The Deputy Commissioners of Fyzabad and Gonda both bring to notice that in this estate leases have been given for exorbitant sums exceeding the recorded rental in the case of 134 villages cited by the Commissioner, by as much as 50 per cent. In order to recoup themselves the lessees have resorted to every expedient of which they could avail themselves, and the results, varying according to the time for which the leases have been in force, are shown in an increase of the number of suits for arrears of rent, as in Fyzabad, or of ejectments as in Gonda. Elsewhere the increase in ejectment notices has not been explained satisfactorily. Last year it was attributed, and no doubt correctly, to the prevalence of a belief that alterations in the Oudh law would follow the introduction of the North-Western Provinces Tenancy Act; but the repetition of this explanation by district officers this year is much less plausible. The cause alleged was certainly at work last year, and unless it is shown not only to have continued but to have gained strength, it cannot account for a further increase. The probability on the contrary is that the apprehensions of landlords on this subject have abated. In one case at least steps have been taken to assure proprietors that no change in the law is contemplated, and in some districts the very same circumstance has been cited to explain a decrease in ejectments which elsewhere is alleged as a cause of their increase. It would appear that some more general cause is at work, and this opinion is strengthened by noting the continued growth of ejectment proceedings which has been going on for some years.

45. In the year under report, the variations in the ejectment figures are in both directions. Unao, Rae Bareli, Hardoi and Gonda, showing large increases, while there is a falling off in Sítapur, Partábgarh, and Bahraich. On a series of years, however, the case is different. Since 1895-96 the number of applications for ejectment has risen from 9,387 to 27,278. The increase is most marked in Unao and Hardoi, where the number of applications has risen from 700 or 800 to over 4,000, and in Bara Banki, where the figures for 1895-96 and 1901-02 are 1,287 and 3,498 respectively; but it has occurred in all districts, and in all districts, except in Partábgarh, it has followed very nearly the same course. The increase is not to be accounted for by any change in the nature of the notices issued: the important classes are those of notices issued on payment of a court-fee and "other" notices, and the proportion of these two classes is almost exactly the same as it was six years ago. It would be interesting to know whether the increase has occurred chiefly in taluqdári or in pattidári villages; on general grounds the greater part might be assigned to the latter, but district figures do not bear out this supposition. Nor do the figures lend themselves to the theory that the increase is due to the varying pressure of the revenue in different districts. The impetus was given undoubtedly by fears of new legislation; but the disturbing fact is that the increase has continued after those fears had time to subside. It is of course possible that conclusions drawn from the present figures may be greatly modified by the results of the current year; but unless it is shown that the increase is temporary, there will be reason to fear that landholders have been taught by example and under the pressure of new conditions to make an increasing use of ejectments as a means of coercing their tenants. The subject is one of great importance and should be noticed by district officers in their next reports.

§ 46.—Recovery of under-proprietary rents.

46. Including 235 pending at the beginning of the year, the total number of cases for recovery of arrears of rent under section 185 of the Land Revenue Act was 2,160, or 91 more than in the preceding year. Of this number 1,988 cases were disposed of within the year, the results in Fyzabad, where the applications as usual were most numerous, being again very satisfactory.

§ 47.—Litigation in Kumaun.

47. The total number of suits under the Kumaun rules shows a slight rise from 639 to 726. The suits were chiefly suits for the recovery of arrears of rent or revenue, and the figures call for no special remarks.

§ 48.—Work in courts of original jurisdiction.

48. Including the cases pending from the preceding year, the total number of cases for disposal in courts of original jurisdiction was in the Agra districts 358,115 compared with 658,930 in 1900-1901, and in Oudh 93,941 compared with 87,812. The figures for the Agra districts, however, are entirely misleading, as one suit for ejectment may be taken on the average as equivalent to combined proceedings under sections 36, 39, and 40, all of which are separately counted in previous returns. To arrive at a true comparison the total number of contested cases under all heads may be accepted as it stands, but from the number of cases for disposal should be deducted the entries under sections 39 and 40, as well as applications for sale of distrained property (section 67, Act XII) which are no longer included in the returns; at the same time the number of applications under section 59 of the Tenancy Act should be added to the total for the year under report. The figures are then as follows:—

Year.	Total number of cases for disposal.	Contested.
1897-1898 ...	268,728	47,144
1898-1899 ...	274,090	48,284
1899-1900 ...	323,992	53,055
1900-1901 ...	428,030	64,591
1901-1902 ...	312,260	62,062

On these figures it is plain that the work of the courts has been very little lighter than in the year preceding, which was much the heaviest on record, and in addition the effect of a change in procedure on the work involved in ejectment cases must be borne in mind. In Oudh also a few adjustments might be made, as notices of enhancement for example have now been excluded from the returns: but the difference is so small that it may be neglected.

§ 49.—Disposal of work.

49. Taking the figures as they stand in the appendices, in the Agra districts 82 per cent. of the total number of suits, applications and miscellaneous proceedings were disposed of, while of the 18,010 applications filed under section 59 of the Tenancy Act, ejectment was ordered in 4,439 cases. The low percentage of disposals is due to the provision of the Tenancy Act that ejectment suits should be filed in the last three months of the revenue year. If allowance is made for this fact, it will be found that the courts have succeeded in clearing off much of the work which the excessive litigation of the two years 1899-1900 and 1900-1901 had thrown into arrears. The pending file at the close of 1900-1901, excluding section 40 cases and the miscellaneous proceedings shown in Appendix XXI-C of last year's report, was 35,342. At the close of 1901-1902 it was 60,715, but this comprises 45,250 ejectment cases, the exclusion of which leaves a balance of only 15,465. This balance would be still further reduced by deducting 6,009 cases of enhancement and abatement of rent, most of which have to stand over for decision during the cold weather; but this matter does not affect the comparison with the preceding year. The number of cases pending over three months was at the end of the year 4,696 compared with 7,519 at the end of 1900-1901. Five hundred and forty-eight were suits and applications under Act XII of 1881 still pending, of which 318 were in the Meerut division and 121 in Rohilkhand. Of cases pending over three months, Budaun, Cawnpore, and Bulandshahr show the heaviest files, and Aligarh and Moradabad have also large outstandings: these five districts in fact account for 3,879 cases out of the provincial total of 4,696. The heaviest arrears of all kinds were in Budaun; it has been mentioned that the litigation in this district was of an exceptional character, and at the end of the year, excluding ejectment suits, there were 1,600 cases undecided, in which were included not only 800 cases of enhancement, but a large number of suits for arrears of rent and of revenue and for profits. Jaunpur also returns the exceptional figure of 1,370, most of them rent suits, but very few of more than three months' duration. The files in Gorakhpur, Allahabad, and Bareilly were also heavy.

In Kumaun the total number of cases for disposal and those pending at the close of the year were 844 and 86 respectively as against 757 and 118 in 1900-1901.

In Oudh, excluding 30,444 applications for ejectment, of which 20,736 were decided, the percentage of cases disposed of was 97, and the outstandings call for no remarks.

§ 50.—Effect of the Tenancy Act on the work of the Courts.

50. This subject has already been alluded to. The effect of the Act on the total volume of work cannot of course be judged from the figures of the past year. That year opened with an abnormal balance left to it by its predecessor and the number of new institutions was greatly swollen by the double set of suits for ejectment. Future returns will not be similarly affected; and though the majority of ejectment cases will be shown twice over, first as new institutions in the year in which they are filed, and again carried forward as a balance into the following year, so that the figures of litigation will no doubt continue high, it is certain that the actual amount of work to be done will be much less than it has been for the last three years. Whether the new law will effect a reduction below the average of normal years is another question, to which an answer will be possible only when experience has shown which of the explanations suggested in paragraph 36 of the ejectment figures of the past year is correct. If many of the ejectments have been due in fact to a misapprehension of the new law, work will no doubt diminish and, it may be, fall considerably below the average. If on the contrary ejectments are used as a preliminary to the grant of leases or as part of some process for the evasion of the law, no great diminution of suits in future years can be expected, and this may create a serious administrative difficulty. One obvious effect of the new Act is the shifting of much of the work from the tahsíl to sadr courts, and this transfer has been counterbalanced only to a very small extent by the power now given to the Tahsíldár to entertain applications for ejectment on the ground of an unsatisfied decree for arrears of rent. Under the former law again the ejectment of non-occupancy tenants was carried out practically without the intervention of the Revenue Courts except in contested cases. In the procedure by suit in every case evidence must be recorded and the patwári summoned. Ejectment cases will come on for hearing in the touring season, when the patwári should be partalling his circle, and the change of procedure thus involves a serious addition to the work of the district staff, and a serious interference with the patwári's discharge of his ordinary duties.

§§ 51–54.—Work of Appellate Courts.

51. Appeals to Collectors during the year numbered 5,197 as against 4,911 in the previous year. Among these were included in the Agra districts 1,453 appeals under Act XII of 1881 which, with the exception of one case in Bulandshahr, were all disposed of before the year closed. Altogether there were 5,589 appeals for decision, of which 5,145, or 92 per cent., were disposed of during the year. The percentage of decisions confirmed is 58 as compared with 60 per cent. in the preceding year.

52. Appeals to Judges show a further decrease from 2,026 to 1,826, the pending file falling from 905 to 861. Including the cases carried forward from the previous year, the total number of appeals for disposal was 2,731, of which 1,870, or 68 per cent., were decided. Of the pending cases 208 were under Act XII of 1881 in the Agra Province.

53. The effects of the increase in ejectment proceedings which characterized the litigation of the previous year are still apparent in the revenue work of courts of higher jurisdiction. Owing to the number of undecided cases in the lower courts at the close of 1900-1901, appeals to Commissioners rose from 8,250 to 8,804, the cases again being most numerous in the Meerut, Agra and Rohilkhand divisions. Of a total of 12,175 for disposal, 7,335 were disposed of by Commissioners, and 1,576 were transferred to Collectors. In Meerut the appellate work has been particularly heavy for the past two or three years, and the appointment of an Additional Commissioner for four months has recently been sanctioned for this division. Including arrears, Collectors in the Meerut and Benares divisions had 1,691 appeals received in transfer to dispose of—1,328 in Meerut and 363 in Benares, of which 167 were left pending in the former division. The percentage of orders upheld was 73 as against 71 in the preceding year, the worst results being in the Benares division, where only 59 per cent. of the decisions were upheld, and in Rohilkhand where the percentage was 64. The revenue staff in the Allahabad district is observed by the Commissioner to have shown little judicial ability, the appeals decided from this district being considerably in excess of those for the previous year, when litigation was undoubtedly heavy and the work in consequence hurriedly done. The percentage (22·01) of reversals is highest in the Rohilkhand division, where the result is said by the Commissioner to be due partly to series of cognate cases following the same decision on some point of law or of fact. The percentage of remands was exceptionally high in the Benares division (26·41) and in Rohilkhand (10·50); for the Provinces generally it was 7·64.

54. In appeal the Board had to deal with 703 cases under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act (XII of 1881), and 307 cases under the Oudh Rent Act. No appeals were instituted under the North-Western Provinces Tenancy Act (II of 1901) during the year. Six hundred and three appeals under Act XII and 222 under the Oudh Rent Act were disposed of, the average duration of the former being three months and twenty days, and of the latter two months and ten days. In revision the Board dealt with 1,856 cases under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1,707 of which were disposed of, the average duration being two months and nineteen days. The orders of the lower courts were disturbed in 18 per cent. of the appeals and in 13 per cent. of the cases in revision. There were 19 appeals for disposal under the Kumaun rules, and 18 were decided, the average duration being one month and two days. In one case the order of the lower court was disturbed.

Chapter IV.—SETTLEMENT.

§ 55—General remarks.

55. During the year under report the miscellaneous work outstanding in the settlements of Sháhjahánpur and Meerut was completed. The final report for the Meerut district was submitted to Government and the settlements of Meerut and Budaun were confirmed. Operations continued in 8 districts where they had been begun in previous years, and in all but Azamgarh are now almost concluded.

§§ 56—57—Oudh settlements.

56. In Oudh the revision of the assessments recently imposed in Hardoi continued. The assessment of the Hardoi tahsíl had been completed in the previous year, and a revised demand of Rs. 4,35,767 or Rs. 20,708 below that fixed at the last settlement was now sanctioned. Tahsíl Bilgram was inspected and assessed during the year and the assessment report was submitted shortly after its close.

57. In Gonda, the only district that remains to be dealt with under regular revision of settlement, the assessments of the following parganas were sanctioned in addition to those mentioned in paragraph 48 of last year's report :—

Pargana.	Expiring demand.	Final revised demand.	Percentage of increase.
Gwarich ...	1,59,940	1,88,370	17·78
Digsar ...	1,06,785	1,07,841	0·90
Utraula ...	1,20,378	1,48,906	23·70

The Settlement Officer inspected the remaining temporarily settled parganas, viz., Mankapur, Sadullanagar, Babhnipair and Burhapar and nine villages in pargana Balrampur. He also completed the assessments of the two first named parganas, but the assessment reports were not submitted during the year.

§§ 58—62—Settlements in the Province of Agra.

58. The operations in Bareilly and Pilibhít, having been conducted by the same officers, may be considered together. In Bareilly the fairing of records in tahsíl Baheri which has an area of 345 square miles has been completed, and the assessments, which raised the demand from Rs. 3,48,315 to Rs. 3,80,979 or 9·38 per cent. have been reported and sanctioned. The revised assessments for the Nawabganj and Aonla tahsíls were also declared during the year, the revenue in the first tahsíl being increased from Rs. 2,41,870 to Rs. 2,65,760 or 9·88 per cent. and in the second from Rs. 2,48,604 to Rs. 2,88,141 or 15·90 per cent. In Pilibhít a revision of the revenue was undertaken only in tahsíl Bisalpur with an area of 365 square miles, and since the close of the year assessments of Rs. 3,26,655, which are 6·2 per cent. above the old demand of Rs. 3,07,599 have been sanctioned. In tahsíls Puranpur and Pilibhít, where only a revision of the records was considered necessary, attestation has been completed and the work of fairing the papers is in progress.

59. All the Farukhabad records have been attested and in the Sadr tahsíl, in Chhibramau and a portion of Tirwa the faired records are also ready. Inspection work was finished last season by the Settlement Officer and his Assistant, and at the close of the year the only assessments that remained to be submitted were those of the alluvial maháls and of the city of Farukhabad. The assessments of tahsíls Farukhabad and Chhibramau were received during the year and those of Kaimganj, which had been previously received, and of Farukhabad were sanctioned.

The assessments of the remaining four tahsíls were sanctioned shortly after the close of the year. The revised demand of tahsíl Kaimganj, which was declared during the year, amounts to Rs. 2,29,862 as compared with the expiring demand (including average owners' rate) of Rs. 2,00,710 or an increase of 14·52 per cent.

60. In the Aligarh district the records of all the tahsíls have been attested. The fairing of the records has also been completed in almost the whole of tahsíl Atrauli and in all but three villages of tahsíl Koil. It is well advanced in Iglas and Khair. The rent-rate reports of Khair and Iglas and the assessments of Koil and Atrauli were received and dealt with. The assessments of the other two tahsíls were sanctioned after the close of the year. The revised assessments of tahsíls Koil and Atrauli were declared during the year and resulted in an enhancement of the revenue from Rs. 3,66,357 (including owners' rate) to Rs. 4,81,565 or 31·45 per cent. in Koil, and from Rs. 3,02,398 to Rs. 3,93,197 or 30·02 per cent. in Atrauli.

61. In Almora and the hill pattis of Naini Tál, the work of assessment is over. The revised assessments of six parganas were declared during the year as follows:—

	Old revenue.	New revenue.	Increase.
			Amount.	Percentage.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Naini Tál (hill pattis)	38,501	50,314	11,813	30·68
Almora (parganas Gangoli, Sira, Askot, Darma and Phaldakot).	32,236	42,089	9,853	30·57

but the Settlement Officer also submitted the assessments of Johar, Pali, Baramandal, Chaugarkha and Danpur, and orders have since been passed on his proposals. The record work also is nearing its close, all that remains being to make out the phants in office of a few parganas, and to complete the attestation and preparation of a record-of-rights in pargana Shor which has recently been ordered by Government.

62. The completion of the intricate and laborious settlement of Azamgarh is still however distant. Attestation of records which was practically completed within the year in tahsíl Deogaon, and parganas Nizamabad and Atraulia, has since been started in tahsíl Sagri, but with the exception of a few khewats in parganas Deogaon and Nizamabad, it was found impossible to start the fairing of the attested records. In addition to pargana Deogaon, which the Settlement Officer revisited during the cold weather of 1901-1902, he inspected the parganas of Nizamabad and Belhabans, an area of 375 square miles, and the rent-rate reports of all three parganas were submitted and sanctioned during the year or shortly after its close. The assessment reports also have been received and orders have been passed on the Deogaon and Belhabans proposals. The progress of this settlement is impeded by the minute sub-division of property, the complexity of the tenures and the litigiousness of the people, but an Assistant Settlement Officer (Mr. J. C. Smith) has now been posted to the district, and it is hoped that by the end of this year 8 out of 15 parganas will be disposed of and the settlement more than half completed.

§§ 63—66—New settlements.

63. In the districts detailed so far, settlement operations had been begun in previous years; they were extended during the year under report to Mainpuri, Etah and Jalaun while preparations were made for their extension to part of Allahabad. In Mainpuri and Etah the work was confined to attestation of the record. In Mainpuri two Deputy Collectors were at work, one from 11th November 1901 and the second from 1st April 1902 and an area roughly of 745 square miles was attested comprising all but a few villages of tahsíl Bhongaon and two parganas in tahsíl Mainpuri. In Etah also attestation work was started in November 1901 and five parganas with an area of 788 square miles were completed, viz., all three parganas of the Etah tahsíl (excepting 11 villages) and parganas Azamnagar (excepting 4 villages) and Barna of the Aliganj tahsíl. Both these districts have been brought under settlement since the close of the year, and Mr. Lupton has been appointed Settlement Officer in Mainpuri, and Mr. H. O. W. Robarts, with Mr. W. S. Cassels as Assistant Settlement Officer, in Etah.

64. In Bijnor there was assessment work to be done. The bulk of the district had been settled in 1899 by Mr. Pert, but the term of settlement in four parganas, Nagina, Chandpur, Burpur, and Bashta, and in some forest villages of other parganas was not to expire for some years, and their assessment had for this reason been deferred. Twenty-five of these villages, the settlement of which expired on 30th June 1901, were dealt with by the Collector who was invested for this purpose with the powers of a Settlement Officer and the revised assessments, which were declared during the year, increased the revenue from Rs. 5,170 to Rs. 11,405 or 120·60 per cent.; there had been a large increase in cultivation, and the greater portion of the demand is nominal in revenue-free villages. The remaining 56 forest villages and the four parganas above mentioned comprising an area of 540 square miles, were taken up by Mr. Holme who was appointed Settlement Officer in November 1901. The Settlement Officer inspected the whole area during the year 1901-1902 and has recently completed his assessments. His services, however, will be retained for two months beyond the period originally sanctioned in order that he may revise the assessment of deteriorated tracts in parganas Afzalgarh and Burhapura.

65. In the districts of Bundelkhand the settlements will expire on different dates between 1905 and 1912, and special interest attaches to the system of fluctuating assessments which has been worked out in connection with the revision of Jalaun, the district in which the settlement will first fall in. Jalaun is still in the stage of attestation; a Deputy Collector was appointed Assistant Record Officer in July 1902, and attestation is in progress in tahsíls Orai and Kalpi, but a Settlement Officer will be appointed in October next, and the new system will then be applied. It is, moreover, intended for use in all the districts of this peculiar tract, and it is already being worked in the trans-Jumna tahsíls of the Allahabad district, a tract resembling Bundelkhand, for which Mr. Pim was appointed Settlement Officer in October 1902. In Bánda, Hamírpur and Jhánsi revision would not in the ordinary course begin for several years, but the Board have now proposed to extend the new system of assessment at once so far as may be done consistently with existing settlement engagements to all these districts.

66. Outside of Bundelkhand the only prospective settlements which have been dealt with during the year are those of Dehra Dún and Muttra. The re-settlement of the Dehra Dún district has been sanctioned excepting the Jaunsar Bawar tract, the settlement of which has been extended, and a Settlement Officer will be appointed in October 1904. The present settlement of the Muttra district has been extended for a further period of 15 years. In some 80 villages in which the revenue demand stands in need of revision owing to deterioration or other causes the work of revision will be carried out by the Collector.

§ 67—Work of settlement Courts*.

67. The number of cases instituted in settlement courts was 99,406 which, added to 24,303, the number of cases outstanding at the close of 1900-1901, gave a total of no less than 123,709 for decision; of these 98,161 were disposed of. The balance is large, but it is composed chiefly of enhancement cases, the decision of which is always deferred till sanction is received to the rent rates proposed. Appeals to Settlement Officers numbered 2,528, of which 1,467 were decided. There were 940 appeals to Commissioners, of which 696 were disposed of.

* For district details see Statements XXVII-A. and XXVII-B.

§ 68—Cost of settlement operations.

68. The expenditure during the year on settlement operations was Rs. 5,28,961. Some further expenditure has still to be incurred in most of the settlements referred to in this chapter, but in Meerut and Sháhjahánpur, the accounts of which have been closed, the cost of settlement was Rs. 119·28 and Rs. 148·48 per square mile.

Chapter V.—GENERAL.

§ 69.—Mutations in the Revenue Registers.

69. The total number of proprietary mutations registered during the year shows an advance of 13,603—from 1,52,105 to 1,65,708—over that in the preceding year, but the advance is more than accounted for by the increase of 13,830 in succession cases, and the differences under other heads nearly balance each other. An increase in succession cases is shown in every division except Agra and Kumaun, but is most marked in Gorakhpur, where it has not been very satisfactorily explained. The Collector of Gorakhpur ascribes it to unfavourable seasons, the Collector of Azamgarh to the anxiety of transferees to get their names brought on the settlement papers, but as the Commissioner remarks the seasons in Gorakhpur were no more unfavourable nor in Azamgarh did settlement operations extend to a larger area than in the preceding year. In some other districts the increase is attributed to a higher mortality, or to more accurate reporting by the patwárís. These are no doubt contributory factors, but the principal cause at work appears to have been the overhauling of khewats and discovery of unreported successions which is mentioned by several District Officers as a special feature of the work of the year. From Basti where the condition of the khewats is described as "deplorable", it is reported that the examination of the registers resulted in the institution of more than 6,000 mutation cases during the last quarter of the year, and that the registrar qánúngos have still 6,494 undisposed of reports that will probably result in as many cases. The majority of these cases will be included in the returns for the current year.

The other columns of the mutation statement have a bearing on the conclusions to be drawn as to the prosperity of the year. The number of sales under orders of court shows a slight increase. The number of private sales, and in Meerut, Kumaun and Oudh the value, as judged by the revenue, of the property transferred, fell off, but in the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions they increased both in number and in value. The number of mortgages was generally less, but in Benares and Gorakhpur there was a considerable to large increase. The number of redemptions on the other hand increased in every division except Kumaun, where the figures in both years are insignificant, and Meerut where there was a slight falling off. On the whole the statistics indicate the prosperity which is noticed—though sometimes, as in Muttra, with surprise—by many of the district officers, but they are less favourable in the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions than in other parts of the Provinces. It is satisfactory to find from the Bánda report that the value of land in that district is rising, and the Commissioner believes this to be the case throughout Bundelkhand.

§ 70.—Partitions.

70. The statistics of partition work, which have a special interest this year on account of the changes introduced by the new Revenue Act of 1901, show peculiar variations. By prohibiting the formation in perfect partition of mahál below a certain size or value, and by abolishing the proviso of the old Act, that no imperfect partition should be carried out without the consent of all the co-sharers, the Act of 1901 was expected to lead to the substitution in some measure of the imperfect for perfect partitions. So far as applications are concerned, the expectation has been fulfilled, but the effects produced have been very irregular. The number of applications for perfect partition has fallen from 2,054 to 1,522, and the decrease is general, but while it has amounted to more than 50 per cent. in the Fyzabad division, 37 per cent. in Agra and 32 per cent. in Meerut, it has been only slight in Gorakhpur and Lucknow, and in Rohilkhand there has been an increase. The number of applications for imperfect partition on the other hand has risen from 468 to 1,161, but again unequally; in Kumaun where imperfect partitions have always been the rule, applications were 154 only against 279 in the previous year; in the Meerut, Rohilkhand and Gorakhpur divisions they were 687 against 58, while in Agra, Allahabad and Benares, they were still very few in number. The figures for the districts of Meerut, Moradabad, Basti and Gorakhpur are altogether anomalous, and have not been explained. So far, however, it is impossible to trace any influence of the new Act in the partitions actually carried out. The total number of partitions effected was 1,371, or practically the same as in the preceding year, but the number of new mahâls, the result of perfect partition, increased from 2,813 to 2,921, while the number of new pattis, formed by imperfect partition, fell from 1,012 to 595. In great measure this result must be ascribed no doubt to the fact that two-thirds of the applications filed for imperfect partition had not been disposed of by the end of the year, and is merely an indication of the slowness of partition work in general.

§ 71.—Amount of partition work.

71. This work shows no signs of diminishing. The strain caused by exceptional litigation in the previous year had no doubt delayed the disposal of cases, and on the 1st October 1901 there were 2,255 partitions pending compared with 1900 a twelve month before. The total number of institutions, including both perfect and imperfect partitions was 161 higher than in the previous year, and the number of cases for disposal rose from 4,422 to 4,938; disposals were slightly more numerous, but the pending file at the close of the year was 2,608 or 353 higher than at its beginning. It decreased largely in Sultánpur and Almora where the number of institutions also was considerably less, and slightly in Mirzapur, Lucknow, Fyzabad and Partábgarh: elsewhere there was practically no improvement, and in the districts distinguished by an exceptional number of imperfect partitions, there was a very large increase. Explanations of long pending cases have been given in district reports, and it is only necessary to say here that in Meerut, a district which shows a case pending since the 11th August 1894, partition work was stopped for several years by settlement. On the whole the results of the year's work are not very favourable. District officers, it is plain from their reports, have devoted much attention to this part of their duties, but the work is often intricate, it is often hampered by appeals, and in many cases they have had to regret unavoidable delays. Any improvement in the future is not to be looked for as the result of the new Act; the effect of the restrictions imposed by that Act on perfect partitions must be discounted by the fact that the formation of small mahâls has for years been discouraged, and on the other hand it is to be apprehended that the alteration in the law which permits imperfect partition to be made without as heretofore making the consent of all the co-sharers a necessary preliminary will result in a very large increase of imperfect partitions generally, as well as in cases where the resulting mahâl would be less than 100 acres. In other directions, however, there is a prospect of improvement. In Hardoi, for example, and it is believed in other districts of Oudh, the difficulty of getting competent amíns has delayed the work, and this difficulty the Board propose to meet by extending the system of employing amíns on fixed salaries. It is to be remembered also that the whole work of the Revenue Courts has still been exceptionally heavy; in these circumstances partition work is always the first to suffer, and as there is every reason to hope for the return of litigation generally to more normal conditions, the Board look forward confidently to a reduction in the arrears of partition cases.

§ 72.—Lambardars.

72. The difficulties met with in the appointment of lambardárs require special notice in connection with the provisions of section 45 of the new Revenue Act which have been enacted with the object of removing them, and the remarks of the Collector of Moradabad may be referred to. In that district there are villages where the existence of an extraordinary number of petty proprietors deters co-sharers from accepting the office of lambardár, and difficulties have followed in the collection of revenue with which it was impossible formerly to deal. Taking advantage of the new Act, however, the Collector last year attached 23 maháls, with the result that in 20 cases a lambardár was after a short interval elected, and in the remaining three maháls it is believed that lambardárs will shortly be forthcoming. That the authority to attach a mahál, the proprietors of which fail to nominate a lambardár, is a powerful aid in facilitating revenue collections, cannot be doubted, but its application must remain very limited unless it is allowed in cases where the disadvantages of the office of lambardár outweigh the advantages in such a degree as to make it impossible to secure a voluntary acceptance of the appointment, and its use in such cases involves a hardship removable only by effecting improvements in the lambardár's position which would at the same time remove the necessity for its employment. The whole question of giving effect to the policy of the Act in respect of lambardárs, which is one of great difficulty, is engaging the attention of the Board.

§ 73.—Cases under section 184 of the Revenue Act.

73. In this connection the provisions of section 184 of the new Revenue Act deserve mention. Under this section, which extends the procedure sanctioned by the Oudh Rent Act for the recovery of sub-proprietary rents, the Collector is now empowered in certain circumstances to recover from a co-sharer arrears paid on his behalf by his lambardár in the same manner as if it were an arrear of revenue payable to Government, and to a small extent the advantages of the section have already been recognised. Two hundred and four cases for sums amounting to Rs. 21,329 were filed during the year, the Meerut division with 131 cases and Rs. 12,383 for recovery being easily first; and in 123 cases disposed of Rs. 8,142 were collected. So far no difficulty has been experienced in working the section. In Muzaffarnagar indeed it is noted that the mere filing of the application generally leads to the payment of arrears, and it is clear that the use of coercive processes has been very exceptional. Most district officers agree that increasing familiarity with the new law will lead to a large increase in the employment of this section.

§ 74.—The use of money-orders in payment of Government dues.

74. The payment of revenue by money orders is connected with the subject of the two preceding paragraphs. In the years of its introduction, which were different for the two Provinces, the amount of land revenue remitted by money orders was in the North-Western Provinces Rs. 15,00,199 and in Oudh Rs. 1,85,573. In 1891-92 the total for both Provinces was Rs. 29,67,565, in 1895-96 Rs. 36,54,412, in 1901-02 Rs. 50,57,093, or Rs. 2,46,788 in excess of the preceding year. The annual rate of increase was during the first five years Rs. 2,56,400, during the next four Rs. 1,71,700, and between 1895-96 and 1901-02, Rs. 2,33,800. In 1891-92 the amount so remitted was 5 per cent. of the total revenue demand, in 1895-96 it was 6 per cent., in 1901-02 it was 8 per cent. The system is not necessarily inconsistent with efforts to restore the lambardár to his former position; and in order to secure the payment of fees to the lambardár, it is only necessary to provide, as in rule 12 (2) of the Board's Circular No. 1—III, that any payment made direct by a co-sharer of a mahál in which a lambardár has been appointed should be deemed to have been made through the lambardár. Nor is it essential even to inquire what effect the system has had on the lambardár's position; this is a question that has often been discussed, and in 1896-97 the Board recorded their opinion "that the increase in revenue money orders and the difficulty in finding lambardárs are more probably due to similar causes than that they are connected as cause and effect." On either interpretation, the comparative figures for a series of years are striking, and show very clearly the strength of the influences which the new Revenue law is intended to counteract. The value of miscellaneous revenue money orders also has risen in the year under report from Rs. 6,57,382 to Rs. 7,42,844.

§ 75.—Rental money orders.

75. The amount of rent remitted by money orders rose in the Province of Agra from Rs. 11,28,813 to Rs. 12,35,241 or 9 per cent., and in Oudh from Rs. 64,426 to Rs. 78,107 or 21 per cent. The results of the previous year, however, had been abnormal. In the North-Western Provinces the annual increase between 1888-89 and 1899-1900 had averaged little more than Rs. 30,000: in 1900-01 it was exceptionally large in Meerut (20 per cent.,) Agra (24 per cent.) and Rohilkhand (34 per cent.,) and in the North-Western Provinces as a whole it amounted to Rs. 1,95,163 or 21 per cent. above the figures of the previous year. In the year under report the increase in Meerut and Agra was trifling. In Rohilkhand it was 14 per cent. and in Allahabad where the districts of Allahabad and Cawnpore show an exceptional rise, it was 30 per cent. The figures for Oudh are peculiar. In 1898-99 the amount of rent remitted by money-order was Rs. 45,803 or rather less than in 1888-89, the first year for which complete figures are available. Since 1898-99, and especially during the year under report, the increase has been greater proportionately than in the Province of Agra. The statistics generally reflect the disturbance of the relations between landlord and tenant, which has shown itself in the returns of litigation in recent years. In some cases no doubt, as when the landholder has a large estate and resides at a distance from many of his villages, the system is a convenience, and it may serve also to protect the tenant from the exactions of the landholder's subordinates, but where, as often happens, it indicates the weakening of long established ties, its extended use is little matter for congratulation.

§ 76.—Work of appellate courts under the Land Revenue Acts.

76. Appeals to Collectors under the old and new Revenue Acts numbered 4,037, or 336 less than in the preceding year, the total number for decision being 4,434 against 4,702 in 1900-01, of which 4,007 were disposed of during the year. The largest number of appeals for disposal was in Gorakhpur (336), Meerut (284), Bulandshahr (224), and Basti (259), and it was only in the first three of these districts that the file pending at the close of the year was large. Out of 24 cases that had been pending for over three months, 15 were in the Bulandshahr district.

Appeals to Commissioners also show a decrease from 2,261 to 2,176. They were most numerous in Meerut (356), Gorakhpur (337) and Rohilkhand (268). The total number for disposal was 2,838 of which 609 were pending when the year closed, the heaviest file (274) being in the court of the Commissioner of Meerut. The number of cases pending over three months fell from 299 to 228.

Appeals to the Board under the North-Western Provinces Revenue Act numbered 276, of which 230 were disposed of, the orders of the lower courts being disturbed in 18 cases. Appeals under the Oudh Revenue Act numbered 72, 50 being disposed of, in three of which the orders of the lower courts were disturbed. For the North-Western Provinces the average duration was two months and 18 days, and for Oudh two months and 12 days. No appeals under the new Land Revenue Act were filed during the year. In revision the Board had 728 cases to deal with under the North-Western Provinces Revenue Act, 697 of which were disposed of, the average duration being one month and 16 days. Oudh revision cases numbered 47, 32 of which were disposed of, the average duration being one month and 24 days. Appeals under the regulations of the Family Domains of the Mahárája of Benares numbered 35, of which 19 were disposed of, the average duration being four months and 10 days. The orders of the lower courts were disturbed in four cases.

§ 77.—Acquisition of land.

77. During the year 3,135 acres of land were appropriated for public purposes, for which Rs. 3,54,261 were paid as compensation. The area restored by Government during the same period amounted to 1,255 acres and the price realized to Rs. 25,599. The returns for the year do not include the important work in connection with the Allahabad-Fyzabad Railway.

§ 78.—Jhansi Encumbered Estates Act.

78. No advance was made during the year. Twenty-one accounts were closed by regular payment of instalments, leaving 14 cases still open at the close of the year. The collections during the year were satisfactory.

§ 79.—Territorial changes.

79. An area of about 35 acres was transferred from Saháranpur to Muzaffarnagar and 10 maháls from Bulandshahr to Delhi under the deep stream rules. Some islands were also transferred from Ballia to Saran and vice versâ owing to a change in the deep stream of the Ghagra.

§ 80.—Maps.

80. During the year of report the maps of the Jhánsi, Moth, Gunnaur, Gangapur and Bilhaur tahsíls and of the Jalaun, Jaunpur, Basti, Sítápur and Unao districts were published, and when the year closed the Roorkee College Press had on hand for reproduction 34 tahsíl maps, including four sent by this office during the year 1901-02, and four district maps. Since the year closed the maps of the Datáganj, Budaun, Kairana, Budhana, Deoband and Mahoba tahsíls and of the Hardoi district have been received from the Roorkee College Press.

§ 81.—Total work in district offices.*

81. The registered receipts and issues in the Revenue department of English district offices were 3,75,991 against 4,18,339 in the previous year, and the decrease of 42,348 is a satisfactory indication of the result of Mr. Impey's recommendations for the curtailment and abolition of reports and returns. The total receipts and issues of the Board's office also decreased by 4,823, the figures being 47,428 against 52,251 in the previous year. The figures in the other columns of Appendix XXXII are not affected by the reduction in correspondence effected by Mr. Impey's proposals. They give in fact the total number of revenue cases dealt with in the vernacular department of district offices, and as they are compiled from the business statement which includes the whole of the rent and revenue work of a Collector, they have already to a large extent been considered. The total number of cases was 2,00,455 less than in 1900-01, but the rent law appendices show a decrease of 3,38,344, so that allowing for the increase in mutations and partitions there still remains an increase of 80,165 under heads not separately reported. It has been ascertained that a fourth of this increase has occurred under execution of rent decrees and orders; the remainder is distributed over heads of less importance, and cannot be definitely accounted for.

§ 82.—Assignment, &c., of land in favour of grantees.

82. The statement (No. XXXIII) showing assignments or alienations of land in favour of grantees has been included in this report for the first time under the orders contained in G. O. No. $\frac{72}{III-330}$, dated the 20th January 1903. The total value of the property assigned or alienated up to the close of the year under report is Rs. 5,68,901.

* For district details see Statement XXXII.

§ 83.—Economic.

83. Outside of the subjects already discussed, few matters have been reported that have a bearing on the economic condition of the provinces. A question of great importance is raised by the report from several districts that low prices have done harm to the sugar industry. The stability of the revenue in several western districts depends on this crop, and a diminution in the cultivator's profits might have serious effects; the area statistics, however, show that there is at present no cause for alarm. The indigo crop decreases year by year, but its place is being taken by cotton, and the number of new cotton mills is a satisfactory sign of native enterprise. Plague unfortunately continued to increase, and in several districts is said to have interfered with trade: the year on the whole was more unhealthy than the previous one. Village banks are referred to in several districts, but without much enthusiasm; to judge from the reports, the scheme which is still in its infancy has no very great vitality, and certainly it has not yet shown any signs of independence and ability to dispense with official assistance. The seed depôts established by the Land Records and Agriculture department for the supply of improved seed are noticed in Sultánpur and Partábgarh as doing most useful work.

Wages were high, and lower prices benefited the labouring class. Cultivators also appear to have done well. In Moradabad it is noted that tenants were paying off their debts, and the Collector of Etáwah has had complaints from money-lenders that they could not find employment for their capital. The decrease in the demand from other parts of India, which led to a fall in prices, must have affected agricultural profits, but, with scarcely an exception, the district reports give a pleasing picture of the condition of the people. The influence of favourable seasons was strongly reinforced by the liberal policy of Government in its Revenue administration. After their struggles over new legislation, landlord and tenant returned to friendlier relations. The year was one of rest and recuperation, and its result was certainly to establish on a firmer basis the returning prosperity of the provinces.

§ 84.—Conclusion.

84. Attention has been called to the heavy work that has been thrown on the courts, especially of Deputy Collectors, by changes of procedure as well as by the agitation consequent on a re-casting of the Tenancy law, and in concluding their report the Board have pleasure in recording their satisfaction with the manner in which revenue officers of all grades have discharged their duties.

I have the honor to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

R. W. GILLAN,

Secretary.

ORDERS OF GOVERNMENT.

No. $\frac{1627}{\text{I—676G}}$ OF 1903.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Naini Tal, the 18th May 1903.

READ—

Letter from the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces, No. $\frac{1540}{\text{XII—163}}$, dated 17th April 1903, being the Board's Report on the Revenue Administration of the United Provinces for the year ending 30th September 1902.

OBSERVATIONS.—The Report on the Revenue Administration for the year ending 30th September 1902, which reached the Government on the 28th April 1903, covers a period characterized by capricious rainfall, the result being a reduction in the area of kharíf and moderate crops at both harvests, though, as a consequence of timely rain in November, the area of rabí was the largest on record, and prices, owing chiefly to a decline in exports, were easier.

2. The main features of the revenue administration of the year were the remission of large arrears and the summary and substantial reduction of revenue in Bundelkhand, the part of the United Provinces which stood in urgent need of relief. In the month of April the Lieutenant-Governor had the satisfaction of remitting, with the approval of the Government of India, all arrears of revenue outstanding in the Provinces at the beginning of the year—the legacy of the past famine—amounting to 6½ lakhs of rupees and due chiefly from the Allahabad Division. This had the direct effect of enabling the current demand, in a year which may, on the whole, be regarded as an average one, free from calamities of importance, to be paid without difficulty throughout the Provinces, and the recoverable balances at the close of the year amounted in consequence to an unusually small sum, less than one lakh of rupees. A few months later sanction was accorded to the reduction of the demand in Bundelkhand by 5½ lakhs of rupees, with a rebate for the next five years of 1¾ lakhs in addition. During several months of the year the Board of Revenue was engaged in giving effect in the best manner possible to these concessions, which have been granted at a critical period, and will, as soon as possible, be followed by a revision of settlement on a system adapted to the peculiar conditions of the tract. During his recent tour through Bundelkhand the Lieutenant-Governor was pleased to find that the landholders were in very good heart, and that, with reasonably good seasons, there was every prospect of a speedy recovery from the depressed condition which had characterized these districts for many years past. The Government has been engaged during the year in elaborating the details of the important legislation, since undertaken, for the relief of the indebted proprietors of Bundelkhand, and the affairs of Bundelkhand will continue to occupy its earnest attention for some time to come.

3. Among demands other than land revenue, the increase of 16 lakhs in the amount due on account of occupiers' rate, owing to the great increase in the demand for water in districts which suffered from a scantiness of rainfall, is noticeable. A similar reason led to an increase in the advances made for wells, while the advances for the purchase of cattle and seed doubled those made in the previous year. The outstanding loans of past years under the Agriculturists Loans Act have been treated generally as famine arrears, and have been to a great extent remitted under the orders of Government. Taking these and other remissions into account, the figures quoted in paragraph 23 of the report show that during the last six years the business of advancing loans has been conducted at a profit to Government, roughly, of 2·7 per cent. on the capital employed. The collections under these and other miscellaneous heads, as in the case of the land revenue, were satisfactory. The minor processes of coercion were resorted to in a less degree than in the previous year; and the severer processes were hardly employed at all, except in the Allahabad Division, and that at a time previous to the grant of remissions.

4. It is to be regretted that so many serious difficulties exist in attempting a comparison of the procedure under the new Tenancy Act of 1901 and the old Rent Act of 1881, in the most important branch of litigation—ejectments. It is, indeed, almost impossible to draw definite conclusions from the statistics of the two years as to the result of the recent legislation in the Province of Agra, and District and Divisional Officers appear unfortunately to have failed to place on record any useful general conclusions derived from their practical experience of the working of the new Act. So far as calculations can be based on the figures submitted, the Board, after a careful examination, are inclined to the view, for reasons which appear to be sufficient, that the change in the law has not, as yet, tended to a diminution in ejectment cases, though the number of surrenders by tenants, many of which in years past were no doubt forced, has declined substantially. It certainly seems advisable that the number of decrees for ejectment actually enforced and the number of leases granted for seven years, both of which are essential to a knowledge of the relations of landlord and tenant, should be on record for reference, and proposals for the inclusion of such information in the existing returns will be awaited. It is satisfactory to note that suits for arrears of rent and applications for ejectment on account of arrears declined in both Provinces, and suits for enhancement decreased considerably in Agra. In Oudh the chief matter for note is a regrettable rise in ordinary notices of ejectment, in explanation of which no sufficient explanation is, it is admitted, forthcoming except as regards the Ajudhia estate, where the inconsiderate action of new lessees accounts for the increase. The matter, which is discussed at length in paragraph 44 of the report, should receive the careful consideration of District Officers, to whose attention the remarks of the Board of Revenue are specially commended.

5. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets to observe that during the year the courts of original jurisdiction obtained but little relief, the volume of case work being maintained at the comparatively high figure to which it rose in the year 1900-1901. Endeavour has been made to strengthen temporarily the staff of some of the heaviest worked districts, and, as the Board point out, a diminution in the total work, as compared with that of recent years of activity, is bound to occur in due course. If, contrary to expectation, ejectment cases do not decline substantially, the effect of the transfer of work from the tahsíl to head-quarters will be disastrous in several respects to the administration.

6. With settlement work in full progress in ten districts, the work of the Members successively in charge has been onerous and responsible. By the close of the year, in the Almora district settlement work was completed, and in Aligarh, Farrukhabad, Bijnor, and Gonda inspections for assessment purposes were finished. The proceedings, including progressive enhancements which fell due during the year in other districts, resulted in an addition of over 5½ lakhs of rupees to the revenue of the Provinces, while the cost of the operations of the year corresponded very closely to this sum. For many years to come the settlement work of the Provinces will be heavy, and in Bundelkhand will require the closest supervision and control, in order to deal satisfactorily with the problems to which the new system of settlement now being introduced in that tract will give rise.

7. Taking the year as a whole, the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to find, notwithstanding the unfortunate prevalence of plague, much cause for congratulation in the condition of the Provinces, of the prosperity of which there are many indications in the report. His Honour is particularly pleased to learn that the temporary breach between landlord and tenant is in a fair way to be healed. The abnormal litigation of recent years, the changes in the law, and the working of the new Acts have made many calls upon the time and energies of revenue officials, which have been well and cheerfully met. The acknowledgments of the Government are due for much good work carried out in districts during the year. Apart from reduction of reports and returns, there has been as yet no noticeable diminution of business. Help will continue to be given, so far as possible, to the districts with heaviest arrears by strengthening the district staff, if the present state of the pending file still requires it. As intimated in the review of the report for the year 1900-1901, the question of an Additional Commissioner for the Meerut Division was taken up, the sanction of the Government of India being obtained to the appointment of an officer for four months. Excluding the Meerut Division, the outstanding appeals in the Fyzabad Division were numerous: they will, it is hoped, be worked off at an early date. It has been found necessary to strengthen the Board of Revenue by the addition of a third Member, for which proposals were submitted during the year to the Government of India and have been subsequently sanctioned. With the services of one Member devoted almost entirely to the work of settlement and to dealing with the important questions pending in Bundelkhand, those of the other two will be available for the administration of the Court of Wards and the remaining business of the Board, which will fully occupy their time. There are many questions referred to in the report, such as the proper working of the various provisions of the new Acts, and the ascertainment of the real effect of recent legislation, which require their special attention. During the year under report the revised rules for patwáris and kánúngos were issued as a manual in a convenient form, combined with the circulars relating to the Department of Land Records and Agriculture. Revised rules relating to the assessment of alluvial maháls, to summary settlements, and to the procedure of courts and officers under the new Acts were issued by the Board with the approval of Government, and the changes have been so numerous and important that they will necessitate the issue of new volumes of circulars, which are under preparation.

8. In conclusion, the Government desires to express its appreciation of the interesting and thoughtful report submitted by the Board on the operations of the year. The statistics have been carefully examined and analysed, and the result recorded without prolixity in a report which has been kept well within the maximum limit.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces, for the information of the Board.

REPORT

ON THE

UNITED PROVINCES OF AGRA AND OUDH.

FOR THE REVENUE YEAR 1902-1903.

No. $\frac{1170}{\text{XII—163A}}$ OF 1904.

FROM

R. W. GILLAN, ESQ., I.C.S.,
SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF REVENUE,
UNITED PROVINCES OF AGRA AND OUDH,

To

THE CHIEF SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,
UNITED PROVINCES OF AGRA AND OUDH,
REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Allahabad, the 12th March 1904.

SIR,

Present:

HON'BLE MR. R. G. HARDY, C. S. I.,
HON'BLE MR. J. HOOPER, C. S. I.,
AND
J. B. THOMSON, ESQ.

§§ 1—3.—Introductory.

I AM directed to submit the Board's report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh for the year ending 30th September 1903.

2. At the beginning of the year, the offices of Senior and Junior Member of the Board were held by the Hon'ble Messrs. D. T. Roberts and J. Hooper. On the 8th November 1902, Mr. Thomson assumed charge of the office of Third Member of the Board, an appointment specially sanctioned for a period of four years. This arrangement remained in force until the 20th April 1903, when Mr. Roberts went on leave, his place as Senior Member being taken by Mr. R. G. Hardy. On Mr. Robert's return on the 9th July 1903, Mr. Thomson proceeded on leave, Mr. Hardy then becoming Junior Member and Mr. Hooper Third Member. No further change took place up to the close of the year.

3. The Commissioners' divisional reports were not received with their usual punctuality; the report for the Rohilkhand division having been received on the 19th December; those for the Agra and Benares divisions on the 22nd idem, while that for the Allahabad division was not received till the 4th January 1904. No special reason has been assigned for the delay in the submission of these reports.

§§ 4—8.—Rainfall and harvests.

4. The monsoon of 1902 was late, like its predecessor, in arriving, and, though less capricious, was subject to considerable fluctuations. The rainfall of June was not greatly below the normal in Meerut or Rohilkhand, but in all other divisions it was in large defect, and nowhere does it seem to have been sufficient for more than the preliminary ploughings. During the first week of July, however, the monsoon currents advanced in strength, and conditions continued favourable throughout the month. The rainfall was everywhere above the normal, but the excess was considerable only in the east of the provinces. In August there was a long break, which lasted nearly three weeks and reduced the rainfall for the month to about half the normal in all divisions except Rohilkhand, where the deficiency was small, and Meerut, where there was a small excess. Towards the end of August rain began again, and continuing well into September entirely removed the apprehensions which had been caused by the long continued withdrawal of the monsoon. The September rainfall was below, or only slightly above, the normal in Meerut, Agra and Rohilkhand, while it was largely in excess in Fyzabad, Allahabad and Benares. The number of rainy days was, considerably above the average both in July and September, and the rain received was therefore, well distributed. Rainfall in October was very slight, exceeding an inch only in Gorakhpur, and being a third of an inch or less in five divisions: the cold weather months were very dry. November and December were rainless. In January some useful rain fell in most of the divisions, but its distribution was very unequal; it was heaviest in Rohilkhand and the north of the Meerut division; but Allahabad, Benares and the south of Oudh received practically no rain.

5. Generally speaking, the character of the seasons was favourable to agriculture. The cultivated area of 1901-02, which was a maximum, was again exceeded by 448,372 acres, an increase to which the Allahabad and Rohilkhand divisions contributed about a lakh of acres each. In his season and crop report the Director remarks that, allowing for a small increase in districts which are under settlement and which therefore submitted no returns, the extension during the last two years has been nearly 900,000 acres; of this extension, the Bundelkhand districts account for at least 250,000 acres. The crop area also, which in 1901-02 had risen 590,479 acres, shows a further increase of 632,757 acres in the year under report. Owing to the character of the seasons, the increase was greater in the rabí area (425,619 acres) than in the kharíf (208,754 acres). The kharíf crops were affected by the delay in the setting in of the monsoon; there was a continuation of the decline in the area under rice, which has been noticed since the cycle of dry seasons began, and the area under the earlier sown crops, such as maize and small millets, decreased, but there were increases in arhar, juár and bájra. The marked feature of the rabí was the expansion of the area under wheat, which shows an increase of 447,820 acres. There was a falling off of 220,000 acres under gram, and a slight decrease under barley and peas. The changes indicate an extension of the more valuable crops, and the Director is of opinion that the stock of grain in the hands of consumers has increased.

6. Maize and indigo suffered from the delay in the commencement of the rains, and the long break in August did some damage, especially to rice. Generally, however, the outturn exceeded expectations. According to the estimates received by the Director, the maize and rice crops were 80 per cent. of the normal, small millets and autumn pulses 85 per cent., and juár and bájra 95 per cent. There is no doubt, however, that, from the tendency to adopt a maximum instead of a true normal crop as the standard of comparison, the estimated percentages are often too low, and it is evident from the reports received that, in many districts, the kharíf gave quite an average return to the cultivators. The general outturn was much the same in Agra as in Oudh, and did not, in fact, vary much throughout the province, but it was poorer in Gorakhpur than in other divisions, and, in view of what has been said of the character of the rainfall, it is not surprising to find that Rohilkhand and, with the exception of parts of Aligarh, the Meerut division did better than any other part of the province. It is noted also that the crops in Allahabad and Jhánsi were excellent; in the remainder of the Allahabad division, they were fair; but cotton was poor in Bánda and Jalaun. The kharíf of 1901 was poorest in Meerut and Agra, and it was these divisions accordingly which showed the greatest improvement in 1902. In Oudh, the results of the two years were very similar, but generally there was a distinct improvement in the average of each crop throughout the province and in the general outturn of each division. Even the rice, which was an uneven crop, was estimated to be 80 per cent. of the normal against 65 per cent. in the previous year, and with this crop the eastern districts were more fortunate than they have been for some time. The returns for Kumaun are confusing. The detailed estimates show a 12-anna crop, but from the reports it would appear that the outturn was at least a full normal.

7. A special feature of the cold weather was the severity of the frosts in December and January. The only crop that was severely damaged was arhar, the outturn of which was only 55 per cent. of the normal, but strangely exaggerated ideas were formed at the time of the probable damage to the rabí crops. The dryness of the season also was against peas and gram, which are reported to have been some 20 per cent. below the normal. It was inevitable, further, that all crops in unirrigated land should suffer, but, on the whole, it is remarkable how little the general estimate of the rabí seems to be affected by failure of the winter rains. Irrigated crops did exceptionally well. Cereals were a bumper crop in Jaunpur, Gházipur and Sultánpur; in Azamgarh they were 10 per cent. above the normal, in Bara Banki 25 per cent. The rabí generally was a fine crop in Benares, Gorakhpur and Oudh: in Basti it is described as the best that has been reaped in the last twenty years. In Allahabad it is said that the crops on dry land suffered severely, but the outturn was fair on the whole and beyond expectation, except in Hamírpur and parts of Bánda. Even under the specially generous rules which have been approved for Bundelkhand, it was found necessary to remit only Rs. 1,222 in these two districts. Agra and Meerut both did better than in the previous year, but parts of Aligarh, where the sub-soil water level has sunk so as to make irrigation difficult or impossible, again had a very unfavourable season. In Rohilkhand the crops were not so good as in 1902, and the results appear to have been less satisfactory than in any division except, perhaps, Kumaun. It is to be noted also that the sugarcane crop was disappointing. Owing to the dryness of the seed time (February and March 1902) it was sown in 76,914 acres less than in the previous year. In the eastern districts it suffered greatly from insects, in the west it was affected by frost, and, on the whole, the outturn, which was only three-fourths of a normal crop, was distinctly poorer than that of the previous year.

8. The monsoon of 1903 will be described in next year's report. For the present, it may be noted that the rains were exceptionally late; in September Oudh and the eastern districts were visited by heavy floods, and in October an exceptional storm of wind and rain did much damage to the crops. There is reason, therefore, to believe that the kharíf was distinctly poorer than in the preceding year, but there are hopes that the spring harvest will again be good, and prospects generally are favourable.

§ 9.—Hailstorms, floods and other calamities.

9. The year was entirely free from serious calamity. Some loss from drought in Bánda, Hamírpur and Aligarh has already been noticed. The Commissioner of Rohilkhand again reports the occurrence of numerous accidental fires, and a hailstorm visited Baheri and Pilibhít in the same division, but the relief called for was insignificant. In Gonda, also, some damage was done by hail: Rs. 918 of revenue were suspended and Rs. 626 remitted.

§§ 10—11.—Prices.

10. The fluctuations of prices in different parts of the provinces corresponded fairly with the results of the harvests. At the beginning of the year, prices all round were easiest in Rohilkhand, Lucknow and Fyzabad. Taking maize, juár and bájra as specimens of the kharíf, the fall in prices in December 1902, when the harvest was over, was greatest in Allahabad and Benares, and least in Meerut and Agra. The fall in the price of rice also was greater in the eastern districts than in the west. Similarly in the rabí, the fall in the prices of wheat, barley and gram in June 1903, on a comparison with the prices in September 1902, was exceptionally large in Fyzabad, Gorakhpur and Benares, and it was small in Agra and Rohilkhand; in Gorakhpur it was not less than 25 to 30 per cent. all round. The results are in much the same proportion if a comparison is made between September 1902 and September 1903. On the whole year, Meerut, Agra and Rohilkhand appear to have been the least fortunate divisions, while the east of the provinces did exceptionally well. Apart from these fluctuations, which are of interest as bearing on the character of the harvest, it is more important to note that, with scarcely an exception, there was a well marked fall in the price of every staple in every division. This fall is attributable, no doubt, to the slackening of the demand from other parts of India, as well as to the general excellence of the harvest. Wheat, which is in a special degree the subject of trade and dependent therefore more on the fluctuations of general demand than on the excess or deficiency of the provincial outturn, has been falling in price steadily, quarter by quarter, for the last two years, except in March 1903, when it experienced a check in common with other staples, and the provincial average in quantities purchaseable for a rupee was 1½ seers higher at the end of the year than at the beginning. The prices of all other staples, fluctuate more with the season of the year. They all fell between September and December 1902. In March, there was a rise, which can only be attributed to the exaggerated fears that seem to have been entertained regarding the outturn of the rabí. In June there was a sharp fall in the price of rabí crops, but bájra, rice and juár again increased in price. The autumn crops, however, were cheaper again in September, and rice and gram were about a seer, and barley, juár, maize and bájra were all 2 to 3 seers cheaper at the end of the year than at the commencement. The averages for the whole year were wheat 15·7 seers, barley 22·2 seers, gram 20·1 seers, rice 11·1 seers, maize 24·9 seers, juár 24·1 seers and bájra 20·13 seers. The fall in prices during the last two years has been so remarkable that the divisional figures may be given :—

A comparison of these figures with the quinquennial averages given in "Wages and Prices in India" will show that the cereals are now as cheap as in the period 1886—1890; rice is, on the whole, cheaper than in 1896—1900, but dearer than in 1891—1895; while the autumn crops, juár, maize and bájra, are cheaper than even in 1886—1890. The comparison is not wholly relevant in an annual review, but some emphasis may, without impropriety, be laid on these results. In view of this marked fall in prices, and the possibility that the contraction of the currency may cause a still lower level to be reached, it is satisfactory to know that the settlements recently completed are distinctly moderate in their character, and that the danger of basing the assessments on rents forced to an extreme pitch by the high prices of former years has been avoided.

11. To return to the consideration of the year under report. The fall in prices is, by no means, an unmixed blessing to the agriculturist. Especially it must be presumed to have been felt as a positive loss in canal irrigated districts, which have been accustomed of late years to raise a normal crop and sell it at scarcity prices. But to the large class of labourers, it must have been a great boon, and it is a matter of congratulation that the granary of the cultivator and small proprietor should be full, even if the market value of its contents should have decreased. The seasons have set another good year to the credit of the provinces.

Chapter II.—FINANCIAL.

§ 12.—Total demand and collections.

12. The revenue collections of the year were extremely successful. Not only had the accounts been cleared, as described in the last report, by remitting the balances of all land revenue outstanding on 1st October 1901, but the land revenue demand had been substantially reduced in Bundelkhand. By these measures, the task of district officers in the Allahabad division had been greatly lightened, and, with favourable seasons throughout the provinces, the demand has been recovered practically in full. This result is somewhat obscured by the figures appended to this report. The appendices show Rs. 8,24,36,375 as recovered out of a demand of Rs. 8,44,84,950 and balances of no less than Rs. 20,48,575. It will be shown, however, that these figures give an entirely wrong impression. The amount that was actually capable of collection was Rs. 8,27,52,023. Of this sum, Rs. 8,24,36,375 were recovered, and, of the outstanding balance, Rs. 1,96,936 having been remitted, chiefly on account of taqávi arrears that were the last legacy of the famine, the actual amount for realization at the end of the year was Rs. 1,18,712.

§ 13.—Land revenue.

13. The differences to be explained are chiefly in the land revenue demand, which, as entered in Appendices I—III, contains large sums, apart from ordinary remissions, which were not realizable. There are, in the first place, what are called "nominal balances:" these are really reductions in the demand declared after the revenue roll for the year is made up, and occur every year. There were also some special deductions. It was remarked last year that, out of the total of Rs. 6,44,496 remitted as the balance outstanding on 1st October 1901, a sum of Rs. 33,588 had to the carried forward for adjustment in the year 1902-1903, and, by subsequent corrections, this figure was raised to Rs. 35,618. Of this amount Rs. 12,506 was refunded in cash in the case of transferees who had paid up arrears remitted by Government and agreed to relinquish their rights in favour of the original proprietors, but Rs. 23,112 took effect as a remission and were deducted as such from the demand of the year. Finally, no less a sum than Rs. 14,29,565 must be deducted on account of the summary reductions in Bundelkhand, which were approved on account of deterioration with effect from 1st July 1901. In G. O. No. 149/I—716F., dated 15th January 1904, Government has agreed that it is no longer necessary to show these reductions as suspensions: the amount suspended will therefore now be written off as a remission and the reductions will be given effect to in the revenue roll from 1st October next. But during the year under report and pending the passing of the Alienation of Land Act, it was necessary, for reasons given in G. G. O. No. 954/167—6, dated 15th June 1902, to treat the reductions as suspensions, and as such they had to be included in the column "in train of liquidation." Deducting these and similar items, it will be found that the real demand was Rs. 6,33,44,755, and of this Rs. 6,33,00,066, or 99·93 per cent., were collected.

§ 14.—Arrear demand.

14. The total arrear demand, as finally adjusted, for revenue on the roll and not on the roll was Rs. 7,89,955. This sum, however, includes Rs. 6,87,871 suspended on account of the reductions in Bundelkhand, Rs. 2,178 out of the remissions of Rs. 35,618 brought forward for adjustment from the previous year, and Rs. 1,257, the amount of reductions granted in Naini Tál, which are shown as suspensions pending the revision of settlement. The real demand was therefore Rs. 98,649 only, of which Rs. 84,733, or 85·89 per cent., were realized. Of the balance of Rs. 13,916, Rs. 11,551 have been remitted in the dry tracts of Iglás, Mursán and Khair in Aligarh, which have suffered from a sinking of the water-level and a succession of dry seasons, and Rs. 371 in Naini Tál, leaving Rs. 1,994 to be recovered in the present year.

§ 15.—Current demand.

15. The year opened with a demand of Rs. 6,39,10,869 made up as shown in paragraph 15 of last year's report. To this was added, as revenue not on the roll, Rs. 2,46,566, chiefly due to enhancement on revision of settlement in Farukhabad (Rs. 74,602), Aligarh (Rs. 48,754), Azamgarh (Rs. 47,557), Pilibhít (Rs. 24,873), Bijnor (Rs. 10,064), and Bahraich (Rs. 9,477), and to an increase of over Rs. 10,000 on account of the villages annually assessed in Pilibhít. From the total of Rs. 6,41,57,435, there are large deductions to be made. Suspensions in Bundelkhand account for Rs. 7,41,694, and there was a nominal balance of Rs. 1,30,192; Rs. 70,264 being due to reduction of revenue at settlement, chiefly in the Farukhabad, Aligarh and Bijnor districts, and Rs. 36,900 to diluvion, for the most part in Ballia and Gházipur. The remissions adjusted, out of this demand, on account of arrears outstanding on 30th September 1901 amounted to Rs. 20,934, and there were several smaller sums also which should be treated as reductions in the demand. In Naini Tál, Rs. 8,000 were allowed to deteriorated villages in the Káshipur tarái, where cultivation has been falling off for many years. In Jhánsi, the ubári jama of the Gursarai estate was reduced by Rs. 5,000, and the revenue of some deteriorated villages by Rs. 687. Excluding these items, the real demand was Rs. 6,32,46,106 and the collections were Rs. 6,32,15,333, or 99·95 per cent. of the demand. The difference is Rs. 30,773, and as Rs. 9,663 were remitted, chiefly in Aligarh, the realizable balance was only Rs. 21,110.

§ 16.—Alterations in land revenue on the roll.

16. The land revenue on the roll on 1st October 1903 was Rs. 6,43,04,398, a net increase of Rs. 3,93,529 over the revenue on the roll twelve months before. The settlements of Aligarh, Farukhabad, Gonda, Bijnor and Pilibhít, which have just been concluded, and the settlment of Azamgarh, which is still incomplete, account for Rs. 3,38,568 of the difference, while other settlements completed a few years previously, contribute Rs. 1,49,953 by means of progressive enhancements. There were, at the same time, reductions of a lakh and a half, over a lakh of which were due to regular revision of settlement.

§ 17.—Malikana.

17. The accounts for the year of report show very little variation from those of the previous year. Of the demand of Rs. 1,93,814, Rs. 1,93,602, or 99·89 per cent., were collected, leaving a balance of Rs. 212, Rs. 170 of which are nominal. The total amount for disbursement, including arrears of the previous year, was Rs. 2,29,878, and payments amounted to Rs. 1,91,639. Of the undisbursed balance of Rs. 38,239, Rs. 18,000 relate to the Gorakhpur district.

§ 18.—Canal rates.

18. The demand for occupiers' rate was Rs. 3,14,541 less than in the preceding year. The figures in the Agra division do not show much variation; but in the Meerut division, where the rainfall was abundant, a fall of nearly five lakhs has occurred. The Collector of Aligarh ascribes the decrease in that district to the abnormal amount of irrigation in the previous year. In the Rohilkhand and Allahabad divisions, on the other hand, the rainfall was deficient and resulted in an increased demand for water. In Hamírpur, this could not be met owing to the insufficiency of water in the Bundelkhand lakes for irrigation purposes and to the supply from the Betwa Canal being all intercepted by the districts higher up its course. Of the total demand of Rs. 73,50,062, Rs. 73,26,075, or 99·67 per cent., were collected, and Rs. 9,227 are nominal. The balance in train of liquidation was Rs. 14,760, nearly the whole of which has been realized since the close of the year. For the greater part of this balance, the Allahabad and Mainpuri districts are responsible. Owing to the want of energy displayed by the tahsíldárs of Manjhanpur and Bhongaon, the amounts were not recovered till after the year had closed. The reduction in owners' rate is accounted for chiefly by the revision of settlement in the Aligarh and Farukhabad districts. The increase in the Allahabad division corresponds with that in the occupiers' rate. Of a total demand of Rs. 2,79,899, Rs. 2,78,943 were realized, and Rs. 706 are nominal. Of the balance of Rs. 250 in train of liquidation, the greater portion was collected after the close of the year.

§ 19.—Cesses.

19. The following table shows the demand and collections, current and arrear, of the various cesses:—

	Demand.	Collections.	Balance. Real.	Nominal or irrecoverable.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Twelve per cent. cess ...	52,65,013	51,60,280	87,862	16,871	1,04,733
Acreage cess, &c. ...	6,11,465	6,10,963	97	405	502
Consolidated local rate ...	12,68,129	12,67,759	44	326	370
Rural police rate ...	9,51,606	9,51,307	8	291	299
Village watch cess ...	23,680	23,680	...	...	...
Patwári rate	25,46,466	25,11,668	29,194	5,604	34,798

Here also the balances are misleading. In the year under report, Government approved the recommendation of the Board that rates and cesses in Bundelkhand should be reduced in proportion to the summarily reduced revenues. For the same reasons as in the case of land revenue, these reductions took effect for the time being as suspensions, and they are included therefore in the "real" balance of the table above. Under the orders of Government, the suspensions will now be converted into remissions, and as Rs. 85,839 on account of 12 per cent. cess, and Rs. 28,598 on account of patwári rate will, under these orders, be struck out, the actual realizable balance at the close of the year for the whole provinces was only Rs. 2,768.

§ 20.—Advances under the Land Improvement Loans Act.

20. Considerable sums have been advanced under this Act in Bundelkhand. A grant of Rs. 50,000 was sanctioned by Government free of interest, as a special case, for the construction of masonry wells in pargana Arail of the Allahabad district: Rs. 26,500 of this sum have already been advanced and the rest remains for distribution in the current year. In Bánda, Rs. 28,943 were advanced chiefly for the construction of field embankments, and the Collector requires additional allotments. There was an increased demand also in Hamírpur and Jhánsi, which is attributed by the Collectors to the activity of the subdivisional officers, Mr. Rose at Mahoba, Mr. Silberrad at Lalitpur. The amount of advances in the Allahabad division was Rs. 68,650, compared with Rs. 9,603 in the previous year. In Lucknow, also, there was a slight increase, but in the remaining divisions, advances fell from Rs. 51,244 to Rs. 33,631. The question of encouraging loans of this kind is a large one, and various suggestions have been made, which will have to be considered in connection with the recommendations of the Irrigation Commission. Apart, however, from any possible improvements in the rules on the subject, the popularity of advances must depend largely on the attitude of the district officer. Loans of this kind are not needed everywhere, but where they are necessary, the example of Bánda shows what can be accomplished; and much might be done, as the Commissioner of Benares suggests, if officers in camp could make inquiries themselves instead of referring applicants to the tahsíldár, and if cheques for advances sanctioned were issued at once. The Collector of Muzaffarnagar complains that the grant for his district is quite inadequate; but it does not appear that he has ever applied for an increase. The initiative must rest with district officers. It is impossible for the Board or for Commissioners to allot funds, unless there is reason to suppose that they will be employed; but the Board can remember no case in which an application for an additional grant has been refused, and they are confident that Government would provide the necessary funds even if such applications were to require an addition to the provincial allotment.

§ 21.—Advances under the Agriculturists' Loans Act.

21. These depend mainly on the character of the seasons, and it is not surprising, therefore, to find that they have fallen from Rs. 1,16,974 in 1901-1902 to Rs. 81,986 in the year under report. In the Allahabad division, however, advances were Rs. 40,654, or nearly half of the provincial total, and about Rs. 6,000 in excess of the advances made in the previous year. The reason for an increase does not appear from the district reports, but it is known that, in the west of Bánda, the rabí was unsatisfactory, and the Collector of Hamírpur states that the advances were made chiefly to the tenants of certain villages who are in poor circumstances and could get money from no other source. These two districts, accordingly, show an increase, but in Jhánsi and Jalaun there was a falling off. The results are of special interest, because the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act and Alienation of Land Act were in force during the last three months of the revenue year. This period, no doubt, was too short for the effects of the new legislation to show themselves, but, at least, it is clear that either it did not, at the start, materially affect such credit as is required in agricultural operations, or that proprietors and tenants were able to finance themselves, and the kharíf, at least, was sown in the ordinary way without any appreciable assistance from Government. The returns from other divisions call for no special remark, except that, in more than one instance, the transactions of agricultural banks are supposed to have influenced taqávi loans. The cause seems inadequate to produce any appreciable effect, but the sums in question are exceedingly small: thus, in Etah, it is reported that the transactions of agricultural banks increased from Rs. 2,490 to Rs. 4,152, while advances under Act XIX of 1883 fell from Rs. 2,065 to Rs. 530, and under Act XII of 1884 from Rs. 4,810 to Rs. 415. The Commissioner of Rohilkhand also suggests that if tahsíldárs are expected to foster the growth of banks advancing money at 9 per cent., they are not likely to favour the grant of advances at 6¼ per cent.

§§ 22—24.—Takavi accounts.

22. The accounts have been cleared to a great extent by writing off arrears that originated in the famine and were wholly irrecoverable or could not have been collected without a great deal of hardship; the results can be exhibited most clearly by abstracting a few of the figures:—

	Act XIX.		Act XII.
	Principal. Rs.	Interest. Rs.	Principal. Rs.	Interest. Rs.
Balance on account of instalments due up to the close of 1901-1902	34,324	...	1,45,171	...
Balance at the close of 1901-1902	...	17,735	...	29,339
Remissions	8,273	1,777	1,20,635	23,972
Balance on account of instalments due up to the close of 1902-1903	15,325	...	9,472	...
Balance at the close of 1902-1903	...	13,530	...	3,659

It will be seen that (remissions apart) the balances have decreased under all heads, and that there has been a considerable improvement in collections. The balances are now small everywhere, except in Aligarh and in some of the districts of the Allahabad division. In Aligarh, postponements had to be granted in the unfortunate tracts which have required mention more than once in this report. In Hamírpur, tahsíl Maudaha is chiefly responsible for the balance, and the Collector writes that, in view of the poor rabí and the long delay in the breaking of the monsoon he put a stop to all coercive processes for its recovery till the next kharíf harvest. In Jalaun there was a balance of Rs. 4,091 under Act XIX of 1883, of which Rs. 1,524 have been proposed for remission. In Bánda, Rs. 3,386 were suspended and Rs. 800 proposed for remission, but the Collector thinks the balances were unnecessarily large and is paying special attention to their recovery.

23. Of the balance of Rs. 582 in the Allahabad division, that remained to be collected at the close of the previous year under the head "Special partly recoverable advances for village relief works," Rs. 511 were recovered, leaving a balance of Rs. 71.

24. The following statement shows the result of the transactions under the Land Improvement and Agriculturists' Loans Acts from 1897-1898 to 1902-1903 :—

Including the outstanding balances under both the Acts at the beginning of 1897-98, the total advances made amount to Rs. 64,05,678. The collections and remissions during the period amount to Rs. 59,28,714. The total unrealized balance on the 30th September 1903 was, therefore, Rs. 4,76,964. The total demand for interest during this period was Rs. 6,61,501. The collections and remissions amounted to Rs. 6,44,312, leaving outstandings amounting to Rs. 17,189. The total amount remitted, from the commencement of the year 1897-98 to the end of 1902-03, is Rs. 4,25,159 on account of principal and Rs. 58,363 on account of interest. In addition, Rs. 1,761, the remission of which was sanctioned after the close of the year, will have to be written off, and a further sum of Rs. 6,239 has been proposed for remission. If the sums remitted or proposed for remission are deducted from the amount of interest actually recovered, the net profit to Government on the working of the last six years has been Rs. 1,69,979.

§ 25.—State properties.

25. Seventy estates were brought under the Board's supervision in the year under report, the total number of these estates being now 472. The total current demand for rent amounted to Rs. 3,27,955,* as compared with Rs. 3,18,316 in the previous year. The increase in the rental demand is chiefly due to the increase in the number of estates during the year. Including arrears, the total demand was Rs. 3,53,349, of which Rs. 3,28,295, or 93 per cent., were collected, as compared with 88 per cent. in the preceding year. In the Holagarh, Khargapur, and confiscated estates in the Allahabad district, 93 per cent. of the gross demand was realized. The outstanding balance was Rs. 25,054, of which Rs. 14,976 are classed as recoverable, Rs. 2,945 as nominal, and Rs. 7,133 as irrecoverable. Of the amount classed as irrecoverable, the Allahabad division is responsible for Rs. 6,071. After payment of land revenue and rates, the net income was Rs. 1,97,558, of which Rs. 43,972 were spent on establishment, contingencies and improvements, leaving a profit to Government of Rs. 1,53,586 as against Rs. 1,39,570 in the preceding year. The figures for special state properties in the Kumaun division and the Dudhi estate in the south of Mirzapur have been excluded from this report as they are separately reported upon.

§ 26.—Sale of waste lands, etc.

26. The total demand on account of confiscated, escheated and waste lands recoverable within the year was Rs. 32,795*, all of which was collected. A portion measuring 2,510 acres of Lord Masham's grant in the Eastern Dún was resumed by Government and sold for Rs. 25,100.

§ 27.—Miscellaneous Land Revenue.

27. Including outstanding arrears the total demand on account of miscellaneous land revenue was Rs. 1,46,332†, of which all but Rs. 81 was collected. Notwithstanding the grant of large concessions to the Allahabad-Fyzabad Railway, the receipts from the stone quarries amounted to Rs. 84,503 as against Rs. 76,236 in 1901-1902. The collections on account of the current demand for water-mill rents in the Kumaun division aggregated Rs. 14,606 as compared with Rs. 14,644 in the preceding year.

§ 28.—Coercive processes.

28. The general prosperity of the year is reflected in the return of processes employed in the recovery of land revenue, or other sums recoverable as land revenue, the figures comparing with those of the previous year as follows:—

	1901-02.	1902-03.
Writs of demand	31,817	26,627
Citations	...	2,163
Warrants	2,909	3,852
Attachments of moveable property ...	5,268	4,495
,, of immoveable property ...	394	147
Transfers	133	7
Annulments of settlement	4	Nil
Sales	30	1

There has thus been a decrease under every head except warrants; the number of processes of any description more severe than the attachment of moveable property is insignificant, and, on the whole, the figures are a striking proof of the ease with which a revenue of over 824 lakhs was paid. When the figures are examined in more detail, the variations appear in many cases to be due simply to difference of practice in the several districts, but a comparison leads to some curious results. A single writ was issued in Almora, 8 in Lucknow and 3 in Rae Bareli; while in the 3 districts constituting the Gorakhpur division, the writs totalled 6,943. There is a considerable increase in the number of processes issued in Sitapur, which the Deputy Commissioner is unable to explain, but Lucknow is still the division in which, after Kumaun, the fewest processes are employed. Next come Meerut, Fyzabad and Benares, which differ little except in the number of writs, and lastly Allahabad, Gorakhpur and Rohilkhand in the order named. It is noted in Allahabad that there were signs, at the beginning of the year, of a recusancy encouraged by the liberal remissions that had been granted, but the tendency was soon checked, apparently without much trouble, and it is satisfactory to find that, though writs and warrants have increased in this division, the number of attachments of moveable property has decreased from 1,289 to 943, and that attachments of immoveable property, transfers and sales have almost disappeared. In Gorakhpur, the excessive number of writs was mentioned in last year's report: the number of process-servers has since been reduced under the orders of the Board, and partly because of the increased attention paid to the subject, partly from greatly improved conditions, the number of processes has fallen off more in this division than anywhere else. The case of Rohilkhand is peculiar. The processes in this division generally have increased: in warrants in particular the increase was 1,028 above the number in the previous year, or more than sufficient to account for the total increase in the whole provinces; and, on the whole, more processes were issued than in any other division. The first result is attributed in the district reports generally to the discontinuance of unrecognised methods of coercion and to better reporting; but the same reason was given two years ago. Nor can the circumstance be explained with reference to the character of the seasons. In a prosperous year Rohilkhand was perhaps less fortunate than other divisions, but it is not alleged that the seasons in 1902-1903 were unfavourable or even less favourable than those of the preceding year. For the second result the Board can find no justification in the general circumstances of the division; and it seems remarkable that processes should be more numerous in Rohilkhand than in Allahabad or the crowded divisions in the east of the provinces. It is true that there is an absence of the severer forms of process, and it is certain that, in the last few years, the revenue administration of Sháhjahánpur, which used to be the most troublesome in the division, has greatly improved, but the anomalous results to which attention has been drawn still stand in need of explanation. The introduction, for the first time into the province of Agra, of the new citation to appear does not appear to have been generally appreciated. It was most largely employed in the Rohilkhand division, in which Bijnor is the only district where it was not used.

§ 29.—Estates under direct management.

29. The number of estates under attachment, including those that remained over from the previous year, was 227, of which 165 were released, leaving 62 under attachment at the close of the year. The total rental demand in these estates amounted to Rs. 51,611, of which Rs. 37,988, or 73·60 per cent., were collected, and Rs. 25,742 credited to the demand for land revenue and cesses. Of the 187 attachments made during the year, 147 were for recovery of land revenue or similar arrears; the remainder being under section 45 of the Revenue Act to enforce the appointment of lambardárs, or under section 115 in the course of partition proceedings. No estates were taken under direct management after annulment of settlement during the year; but the number remaining under management at the end of 1901-1902 was 34 and not, as stated in last year's report, 19. Nearly half of these were deteriorated maháls in the Naini Tál district, which have all been restored to their owners on reduced revenues, and in the whole provinces only two estates remained under management at the end of the year. Thirty-two estates were released during the year; of the two which remain, the owner of one cannot be found, and, in the other, the proprietor having refused to accept settlement, annulment was made for a period of five years from 1900.

Chapter III.—RENT LAW LITIGATION.

§ 30.—Litigation in the province of Agra.

30. The twelvemonth under report was the first complete year of litigation under the Tenancy Act, and the rent law returns from the Agra districts continue, therefore, to be of special importance. Briefly they will be found to indicate a return to more normal conditions. But if it is shown that, after the disturbance caused by the introduction of the new Act, conditions have merely reverted to those that prevailed before that Act was contemplated, the question will arise whether the new legislation is justifying itself, or shows any sign of ultimately succeeding in its objects. This question was discussed at some length by the Board in their report last year, and has since then been made the subject of special enquiries by district officers. The results of these enquiries appear to be somewhat indefinite, but, if so, the reason is that the popular conceptions of the new Act are very vague; it will be suggested, therefore, while recording these results as a true presentment of the conditions of the year, that the effects of the Act will not be known till the landholders have thoroughly grasped its principles, and made up their mind to a definite course of action. These matters will have to be discussed in connection with the ejectment work of the year, and with the grant of long term leases. But there are few branches of litigation that have not a bearing on the central problem for discussion, and the preliminary points which they suggest may first be considered.

§ 31.—Suits for arrears of rent.

31. A salient feature of the year is that suits for arrears of rent, which in Oudh have fallen off, have increased in the Agra districts from 102,647 in 1901-1902 to 117,095 in 1902-1903, or no less than 14 per cent. The increase has occurred in almost every district of the province, and is proportionately much the same in every division except Benares, where it is only 7 per cent., and in Allahabad where it is insignificant. Compared with the average of 1895-1896 to 1898-1899, which may be taken as the normal before the prospect of the Tenancy Act began to affect litigation, the increase for the whole province is 13,864, but its distribution is somewhat different. Allahabad shows an actual decrease, and the rise in Benares is only 10 per cent.; but the increase is distinctly greatest in Gorakhpur (37 per cent.) and Meerut (32 per cent.); while in Agra it is 27 per cent. and in Rohilkhand 14 per cent. It is difficult to account for these variations, but in Allahabad, where the effects of the famine were most severe, and subsequent improvement has been very marked, it is possible that natural conditions have affected the result more strongly than in other divisions. Ordinarily, no doubt, the increase would be attributed without hesitation to a period of bad seasons in which arrears had accumulated: but this reason is not suggested in a single district, except Bijnor, and as a general explanation it is rendered impossible by the character of the last few years. It is natural to suppose that the cause must be found in legislative changes, and the correctness of this theory is proved almost to demonstration by the decrease in Oudh. Distraint suits have not increased materially.

§ 32.—Ejectment for arrears of rent.

32. An examination of the applications under section 59 of the Tenancy Act, for ejectment on account of an unsatisfied decree for arrears of rent, throws some light on the increase in the number of suits for arrears of rent. On a comparison with last year's figures the increase in such applications has been no less than 53 per cent. in Rohilkhand, 40 per cent. in Agra, 37 per cent. in Meerut and 23 per cent. in Allahabad, while in Gorakhpur it is only 4 per cent., and in Benares there has been a decrease. The percentage of increase, for the province as a whole, was 18 per cent. compared with last year, and 14 per cent. compared with the average of 1895-1896 to 1898-1899. The reasons for the growing popularity of this process are not far to seek. It is a valuable means for enforcing the prompt realization of rental arrears. Under the former Rent Act, it could only be utilized against privileged tenants, or tenants holding under an unexpired lease. But, under the Tenancy Act, its action can be extended to all non-occupancy tenants—an alteration of considerable practical importance. It is not surprising that landholders should make full use of the weapon which the law has placed in their hands. It is now more difficult for them to prevent the acquisition of right of occupancy tenures, as leases for less than 7 years no longer bar the accrual of the right: and the ordinary procedure of ejectment of non-occupancy tenants has been rendered more difficult by the necessity of instituting formal suits at headquarters, and of keeping the tenant out of possession for a year. But as non-occupancy tenants are now liable to ejectment after a decree for arrears of rent has been obtained, it is probable that large recourse will be had to this process, and that suits for arrears of rent, as a means to ejectment, will increase perceptibly. The process operates as an immediate and absolute break in the tenancy, and in the great majority of cases the landholder need go no further than the tahsíl.

As far, however, as the year under review is concerned, the number of actual ejectments under the section has not been large, 7,747 being ordered in 30,963 cases for disposal. So far then the section has been useful chiefly as increasing the effectiveness of the legal procedure for recovery of rents, but the result is one that depends on the ability of the tenant to pay his arrears, and is, in this way, independent of the will of the landholder. It must be noticed, therefore, that the effect of the increased stringency in the provisions of the law, which is a feature of the Tenancy Act, will require to be carefully watched. It is well that tenants who default without reason should have short shrift given them, but it is certainly not intended that landholders should find, in unfavourable seasons, an opportunity for wholesale ejectments, and the discretion which courts still possess of granting time for payment will, in such circumstances, require to be freely exercised.

§ 33.—Enhancement of rent.

33. There was a further, though only a slight, decline in suits for enhancement of rent. The number of such suits ordinarily depends on settlement, and is naturally greatest immediately after the closing of settlement operations, and at intervals of 10 years after. The subject is mentioned only because enhancement proceedings were undoubtedly used as a weapon in the struggle, between tenants and landholders, that preceded the passing of the Tenancy Act. The figures of the year under report cannot be compared with figures under the old Act, for any number of tenants holding from the same proprietor, in the same mahál, can now be sued collectively. Thus in Bulandshahr, for example, there were 222 suits for enhancement compared with 797 applications in 1898-1899, but covering 2,511 holdings. It is clear, however, that the number was nowhere abnormal.

§ 34.—Surrenders.

34. The number of applications for service of a notice of surrender has risen from 9,140 in 1901-1902 to 10,376. The figures generally are very unequal. Thus in Moradabad, where surrenders are said to be induced by threats of ejectment, the number has increased from 207 to 567, while in the adjacent district of Budaun it has fallen from 692 to 3: the accuracy of the latter figures may well be doubted. In Allahabad there is a decrease ascribed by the Collector to better times: while in Bánda and Hamírpur there is a large increase. For the increase in Bánda, no satisfactory explanation has been found. In Hamírpur the Collector says the tenants, in view of the enhanced costs, do not think it worth while to contest ejectment suits on frivolous grounds, and prefer to relinquish their holdings. A similar tendency has been noticed in other districts, but it is only where the landholder is denied his costs in ex parte cases that the tenant saves much in this way. Compared with the average of 1895-96 to 1898-99, it is to be noted also that surrenders show a falling off of 65 per cent., and, with a decrease of 71 per cent., Allahabad is behind no division except Rohilkhand. On the whole, the Board conclude from the figures, first, that, as pointed out in last year's report, the change of the date prescribed by law for notices of surrender was unknown to the majority of tenants, and led, therefore, to an abnormally reduced number of surrenders: secondly, that the return for the year under report shows no intention to force surrenders in place of ejectments: and, finally, that the decrease, since the passing of the Tenancy Act, is due partly to better seasons, and partly to the tenacity of the tenants, which has certainly been increased by their expectations of what the new law would do for them.

§ 35.—Relations between landholder and tenant.

35. The relations between landholder and tenant will be referred to more fully in discussing the ejectment statistics. The question is of particular interest at the present time, but is inadequately dealt with in most of the divisional reports. The Commissioner of Meerut is silent on the subject. The Commissioner of Allahabad thinks that the exceptional struggle between landholders and tenants, which preceded the passing of the Tenancy Act, has not altogether ceased, but in this opinion he stands alone. The Board are inclined to agree with the Commissioner of Agra, that the relations of landholder and tenant are much the same as in former years before the agitation to which the Tenancy Act gave rise. There can be no doubt that the tenants, as a whole, formed exaggerated ideas of the benefits the new legislation was to confer upon them—ideas partly derived from the hostile attitude adopted by a section of the landholders in opposing the Act. The determined efforts of the landholders to break down the tenants' rights, which characterized the year 1899 to 1901, have now ceased.

§ 36.—Ejectments on other grounds.

36. The figures which were given in paragraph 33 of last year's report may be repeated, with the addition of figures for the year under report. It is more convenient to give the information in tabular form:—

§§ 37–39.—Examination of the results.

37. As compared with last year, there has been a very large decrease, amounting for the province, as a whole, to no less than 34 per cent. But the figures for 1901-1902 include the ejectments intended to take effect from 1st July 1902, as well as those from 1st July 1903. An endeavour was made in last year's report to separate the figures for the two periods, but it was tentative only. It is more satisfactory to compare the figures of the year under review with the average of the normal years 1895—1899.

38. To take first the divisional figures, the salient feature is the very large number of cases in Rohilkhand, where the two districts of Budaun and Moradabad alone account for 14,674 cases, or more than a fifth of the provincial total. It would appear that some special influence is here at work, but, if so, its nature is not explained in the district and divisional reports. The Commissioner attributes the excess of litigation in Budaun to antagonism between Hindu and Muhammadan occupiers of the soil and to the lightness of the old assessments, which, he thinks, added naturally to the keenness of the struggle for all rights in land. The accuracy and the relevance of these explanations may be doubted. The Muhammadan proprietary is not so influential in Budaun as it is in Bulandshahr and Aligarh, and racial or religious feeling has certainly not increased in intensity. Nor is it probable that the effects of a low assessment, even if it were supposed to foster litigation, should be felt with increasing strength seven years after the settlement had expired. The number of ejectment suits in Allahabad is much less than in Rohilkhand, but the proportionate excess above the normal is even higher. The great bulk of the cases comes from Allahabad, Cawnpore and Fatehpur, and the number in the Bundelkhand districts, except in Jalaun, is almost negligible. Still, even in the doáb districts of this division, there has hitherto been no marked tension between landholders and tenants, and the increase in ejectments has not been explained. The peculiarity of the results in Rohilkhand and Allahabad is emphasized on a comparison with Meerut. In both Meerut and Rohilkhand the number of ejectments during the normal period 1895—1899 was about 14,000 : in Allahabad it was only 5,759. In Meerut the number has diminished to 9,344 : in Allahabad it has risen to 10,859, and is now actually greater than in Meerut, while in Rohilkhand it is no less than 26,180. No satisfactory hypothesis for these widely different results can be put forward. The Board can only suggest, though the explanation cannot with any confidence be accepted as adequate, that these extraordinary divergences are due to the varying degree in which the effects of the Tenancy Act have been comprehended. The explanation is not, however, a mere conjecture. During his recent tour in Rohilkhand the Senior Member ascertained that even leading proprietors were curiously ignorant of some of the most important provisions of the new law. They thought, for instance, that if a tenant who had held for six years were given a seven years' lease, he would acquire occupancy rights before the term of his lease expired. He found that there was no misapprehension on this point in Meerut. There are other circumstances that point in the same direction. The number of seven years' leases, as noted in paragraph 44, is greater in Meerut than in any other division. The provisions of section 184 of the Revenue Act were more promptly and more largely taken advantage of in Meerut than elsewhere. It seems probable, therefore, that in Meerut, where the resistance to the introduction of the new Act was keenest, its provisions are now best understood, and that the excessive number of ejectments in Rohilkhand and Allahabad is due to the fact, not that the antagonism between landholder and tenant is greater than in Meerut, but that it is less guided by intelligence.

39. Dealing now with the figures of the Agra Province as a whole, the main fact is clear that, in the second year of the new Act, the number of ejectments is largely above the former normal. The returns show an excess of 12,118 ; but, as the 30th September and 1st October 1903 were holidays, 10,517 ejectment suits, instituted on the 2nd October, have to be added, as these suits, though not included in the appendices, really belong to the year under review. The total excess thus amounts to 22,635 : and this result requires explanation.

§ 40.—Suggested explanations.

40. The object of the Tenancy Act was to induce landholders to give their cultivators some fixity of tenure ; if they did not choose that their tenants should acquire occupancy rights, they were at least to grant them long term leases : and desultory ejectments, effected with the object of preventing the acquisition of occupancy rights, were to be rendered futile. In spite of provisions devised with these objects it was found last year that ejectments had not been effectively checked. As a basis of discussion the Board suggested three possible explanations: first, that the law was not understood; secondly, that ejectments had been found advisable as a preliminary to the grant of long term leases; and, thirdly, that landholders had devised some scheme in which ejectments were employed for the evasion of the Act. It is plain that the second explanation is not correct. The figures given in appendix XXC, which is an addition sanctioned by Government to this year's returns, is sufficient to disprove it. The area under seven years' leases is 415,477 acres, or only 3·8 per cent. of the non-occupancy area. But more than this, the area for which seven years' leases were granted during the past revenue year was only 57,027 acres: it was considerably less than the area protected by leases given in the nine months preceding, and the total number of leases given since the Act was passed is less than a half of the leases in existence before it came into force. There remain for consideration the first and third explanations, which will be considered in the light of the special inquiries which, under the orders of the Board, have been made on the subject.

§ 41.—Character of the ejectments.

41. Before stating the result of these inquiries, however, it is necessary first to make sure that no change has taken place in the character of ejectments which vitiates a comparison of the figures before and after the passing of the Act. It was suggested last year, for instance, that a large proportion of the ejectments now being made might be of sub-tenants in sír and occupancy land. Some figures on this point have been furnished this year, but in themselves they are inconclusive, and there are no corresponding figures under the old Rent Act. The only evidence on this point would be that ejectments of this kind had forced themselves on the attention of district officers as becoming unusually frequent, and this does not appear to have been the case. The provisions of the law, which aim at the restriction of subletting, have not been noticed in district reports, and it is plain from column 4 of appendix XXA that they have had practically no effect on ejectments. In the great majority of cases ejectment is sought now as it was sought under the old Act, on the ground that the tenant is a tenant-at-will, and the number of ejectment suits on other grounds is still negligible.

§ 42.—Probable ignorance of the law.

42. If, then, the character of ejectments has not altered, the question must be whether the persistence of landholders in ejecting their tenants is due to ignorance of the law, or to a belief that they can make ejectments effective? As far as actual evasions of the law are concerned, the matter has been examined very carefully by the majority of district officers, and the Board are condensing a considerable amount of information, when they say that, while devices for the evasion of the Act are far from unknown, and may become commoner as time goes on, there is no reason for the present to suppose that they are more frequently employed than they were under Act XII of 1881. But it may be suggested that, while conforming to the Act, landholders find themselves able to defeat its policy: in other words, that they recognise but are not deterred by the necessity of keeping an ejected tenant out of all land belonging to them for a year. On this subject the Board have very little information. The inquiries made by the Collector of Basti, which are mentioned in paragraph 43, seem to show that in most cases, the ejected tenant gets land from some other proprietor, but the data are insufficient for any general conclusion, and the Board think it will be advisable for the next few years to ask for returns similar to those formerly prepared in Oudh, showing what is done with land from which a tenant is ejected. If, however, a surmise may be based on the probabilities of the case, the principle that ejectment, to be effective, must be not from the holding but from the village or mahál, is one that will naturally take some time to establish itself, and the Bulandshahr tenant, whom the Collector describes as receiving the announcement of this principle with incredulous amusement, is typical doubtless of the majority of those living on the land. As to the knowledge possessed by landholders of the Act, the evidence, as it stands, is somewhat conflicting; but the reports which have been received from certain districts to the effect that landholders are familiar with the law, probably state a half truth. Every landholder presumably knows that, instead of issuing a notice from the tahsíl, he has now to file a suit at headquarters. But the question is, whether he understands how the legal effects of an ejectment have been curtailed? The ignorance of many landholders of the effect of a seven years' lease, and their misapprehension of sections 67 and 68 of the Act, are elsewhere noticed. It is not to be supposed that, persons so ignorant of the leading features of the law have thoroughly comprehended the effects of its provisions regarding ejectment, and all the circumstances point to this conclusion. Large allowance must be made for the persistence of habit. Under the old Act proprietors of land had come to look on periodical ejectments of non-occupancy tenants as a necessity. The abandonment of a custom so well established could not in the circumstances of the proprietary body, be otherwise than slow, and is further retarded by the complexity of the law to which the people have now to adjust themselves. It is to be remembered, also, that small proprietors, who predominate in the Agra province, depend for their knowledge of law on revenue agents and patwáris, and that it is not the interest of their informants to suggest the adoption of the policy favoured by the Act, which, by minimizing ejectments, would lead to a decrease in litigation. On a review of all the opinions expressed and all the statistics available, the Board consider it extremely probable, first, that landholders have not grasped that the change in the law is anything but a change in procedure; and, secondly, that even where they have understood their difficulties, no regular policy in zamíndári management has yet been developed.

§ 43.—The question of seven years' leases compared with ejectments.

43. These conclusions embody the sum of present experience. To go further is to venture on prophecy, but a statement of present opinion may be recorded. It may be assumed that landholders will be no more willing in the future to permit the acquisition of occupancy rights than they have been in the past. The law offers them alternative methods of preventing such acquisition: they must either from time to time eject their tenants or they must give them seven years' leases. The second method is the more advantageous to the tenant, whom it relieves from the extreme uncertainty of his present tenure. If, as may well be hoped, it induces the tenant to greater energy of cultivation, it is favourable also to the landholder, and, as it diminishes litigation, it is a boon to the courts. This, therefore, is the method favoured by the Act, at the expense of the first, which it is sought to render more difficult by providing that ejectments to be effective must be by suit instead of by notice; and, secondly, that they must remain in force for at least a year. The Board doubt whether the increased trouble and cost of ejectment proceedings will diminish ejectments. The landholder will recover his costs either from the tenant he ejects, or as a fine from the new tenant to whom he lets the land. In this respect the results of the Act so far have not been fortunate, as tenants continue to be ejected as frequently as before, and they have to pay much heavier costs. So much, indeed, were the Board impressed by the weight of the burden thus cast on tenants, that they made special inquiries, as a result of which they are able to say that an ejectment usually costs a tenant 20 or 30 per cent. of a year's rent. It is unfortunate that a tenant, who does not contest ejectment, should have so much to pay, but the Board thought it inadvisable to issue general orders interfering with the discretion of courts in awarding costs, and they can only suggest that landholders should be encouraged to give their tenants notice of their intention to sue for ejectment. If, on receiving such notice, a tenant surrendered his land, a suit for ejectment would be unnecessary and the expedient would be a convenience to both parties, though it is true, no doubt, that, in many cases, the landholder will prefer the method of ejectment through the courts, as a more certain proof of a break in the continuity of the holding. The main check on ejectments, however, is the rule that the ejected tenant must be kept out of possession for a year, and it is on the decision of landholders with regard to this matter that the success of the Act will greatly depend. So far it is probable, if the conclusions of the preceding paragraph are accepted, that no definite decision has been reached, but some considerations that influence, and will no doubt continue to influence, the decision can be noted. In the first place it may be observed that there seems to be a very considerable objection to seven years' leases, and that this objection is shared both by tenant- and landholders. The objection, on the part of tenants, is not altogether easy to unders stand. It is true that many tenants had an idea that as a result of the new Tenancy Act they were to acquire occupancy rights, and that they have, in consequence, demurred to taking terminable leases. Apart from this feeling, it is reported that, frequently they do not desire to bind themselves down for even seven years to pay a specific rent on a specific holding. This can be understood in Bundelkhand, but it is reported from Meerut, as well as from Jalaun, that tenants on Government estates have refused to accept long term leases except on impossible terms. The objection of landholders is more easily understood. It is reported, from one district after another, that they resent the provisions of sections 67 and 68 of the Tenancy Act. Under those sections, as they understand, a tenant holding under a seven years' lease is no longer liable to ejectment, but only to periodical revision of his rent by the revenue courts, and what kind of rent the courts are likely to fix, they know already from their experience of enhancement suits. This view, it is hardly necessary to say, is incorrect; but it is true that there is a certain risk of further litigation in the grant of a seven years' lease. If ejectment is sought on the expiry of the lease, the tenant may plead that the ejectment is, in fact, sued for, because he has refused to agree to an enhancement of his rent: he can easily find some evidence to support his plea, and the landholders fear that the courts may accept the tenant's story and grant an extension of the lease. As regards ejectments, the problem with which landholders are confronted has yet to be solved by experience. No landholder can afford to eject permanently a large proportion of his tenants, and, unless he sues those tenants only whom he wishes to get rid of altogether, he must arrange to maintain his ejected tenants during the year of dispossession, which is necessary to make ejectment effective. It is presumed that this difficulty will force the landholder to grant his tenants some stability of tenure, but it may be doubted if this presumption does not ignore the resources at the disposal of most landholders. The inquiries made by Mr. Gracey, in Basti, into the results of ejectment cases may be quoted. He found that, of the tenants ejected, about 10 per cent. were zamíndárs, about 3 per cent. abandoned agriculture, 12 per cent. retained their holdings, and the remainder already held other, or were given fresh lands, mostly belonging to other landholders. There is, in fact, a margin of available land in the sír or occupancy holdings, which the ejected tenant could cultivate as a sub-tenant; or he may get land in another village; or he may become for the time being an agricultural labourer. In one way or another it will be possible for him in ordinary circumstances to pass his year of legal dispossession. Where the landholder is a large proprietor, whose land is held principally by tenants-at-will, the difficulty of keeping tenants out of cultivation for a year will certainly be great. Even here it is possible that he may succeed. With a proper rotation of tenants it is evident that he need only eject one-twelfth of his tenantry each year, and a margin of agricultural labourers may supply him with all that he needs.

§ 44.—Probable results.

44. The obstacles to be surmounted, before the new legislation can succeed are admittedly serious, but it may be hoped that they are not insuperable. It is possible that the dislike of seven years' leases may diminish with experience of their working, and there are indications that large owners are beginning to recognise the advantage of granting them. Bulandshahr is pre-eminently the district of large estates in the province of Agra, and Bulandshahr returns 104,878 acres protected by seven years' leases out of a provincial total of 415,477. For this, it is well known to Government, there are special reasons, as the landholders are under the necessity of justifying their release from short term settlements, but the Collector of Aligarh reports that two of the largest owners in his district have resolved on the wholesale grant of seven years' leases, and a similar report has been received of one or two other important zamíndárs. It must be added that out of a provincial total of 8,517, the number of seven years' leases executed in the Meerut division was 5,093, and the area protected by seven years' leases was 322,514 acres. It would not be wise to push too far the conclusions to be drawn from the figures of a single division, but it is certainly remarkable that the largest decrease in ejectments and the freest use of seven year leases should both be found in the division where the Tenancy Act was most bitterly opposed, and where its provisions appear to be best understood. The conclusion of the matter must be left indefinite, but there are, at least, grounds for hoping that landholders will eventually find the balance of advantages to be on the side of long term leases, and that especially in large estates the Act will be successful.

§ 45.—Litigation in Oudh.

45. Regarding litigation in Oudh there is fortunately little to be said. Special attention was directed last year to ejectment suits and applications. It had been suggested in two successive years that a large increase under these heads was due to apprehensions of a change in the Oudh rent law, but this explanation, which was deemed sufficient in 1901-1902, became less plausible in 1902-1903, and a comparison with previous years showed an increase that called for careful consideration. The Board remarked, however, that any conclusions to which the figures lent themselves might require to be greatly modified by the results of the year now under report, and they are glad to find that the present returns are more satisfactory. The number of notices of ejectment under section 55, Act XXII of 1886, has fallen from 27,278 to 22,669, and the decrease is shared by every district except Hardoi. Hardoi (4,533 notices), Unao (3,440) and Bara Banki (2,637) are now the only three districts where ejectments are much above the district average, which is not more than 1,500. Suits for ejectment and recovery of possession, also have fallen off from 11,313 to 9,034. Ejectment proceedings, taking suits and applications together, are still twice the average of the years 1895-96 to 1898-99, but they are considerably less than in the last two years; and there is reason to hope, since all fear of possible changes in the law must now have disappeared, that, for some time at least, the number of ejectments will remain at a lower level. In the case of relinquishments the position is reversed. There is a slight increase since last year, the whole of which practically has occurred in Bara Banki and Bahraich, but the number is only 2,919 compared with an average in 1895-96 to 1898-99 of 12,468; this average was raised unduly by the excessive number of relinquishments in 1895-96, but the normal was at least 8,000. Litigation, in general, shows the effect of prosperous seasons, uninfluenced by legislative changes. Suits for arrears of rent have again decreased in every district, except Hardoi, Kheri and Bahraich, and are now 2,093 less than last year, or 6,487 below the normal. There is also a drop in the number of ejectments for arrears of rent, and in suits for arrears of revenue and profits. The total of suits and applications entered in appendix XIXB is 49,658 compared with 59,503 in the previous year, and though a part of the difference is due to the exclusion from the present returns, of application under section 82, for sale of distrained property, the real decrease is substantial. The reports from Fyzabad and Gonda, where leases granted by one of the principal taluqdárs, on very onerous terms, had a marked effect on litigation, are satisfactory. The tenants have met with considerable success in resisting the endeavours of the lessees to enhance rent; many of the lessees have been ejected, or have absconded, and there is every hope that the abnormal conditions that have been noticed in the last two years are passing away.

§ 46.—Recovery of under-proprietary rents.

46. There were 2,060 applications for recovery of arrears of rent under section 185 of the Land Revenue Act. As usual, these applications were confined almost entirely to the Fyzabad division, the district of Fyzabad itself accounting for half the total. With 172 cases carried forward from the previous year, there was a total of 2,232 cases for disposal. The statement now prescribed shows number of applications filed, while in the two previous years the return gave the number of applications admitted, but for the purpose of comparison it is sufficient to note that Rs. 3,11,248, the amount for recovery, was much the same as in the previous year. Rs. 2,63,549 were collected, leaving a balance of Rs. 46,524. The outstandings were large only in Sultánpur, a district which had nearly as much to collect as Fyzabad, and in Bara Banki.

§ 47.—Litigation in Kumaun.

47. The total number of suits under the Kumaun rules fell by 125—from 726 to 601—the decrease being chiefly in suits for arrears of rent and ejectment or recovery of possession. The number of cases for disposal was 687, of which 114 were left pending at the close of the year.

§ 48.—Work in courts of original jurisdiction.

48. In Agra (excluding Kumaun) the total number of cases for disposal in courts of original jurisdiction last year was shown as 358,115, but, if cases under sections 39 and 40 of the old Rent Act are excluded, as they should be for purposes of comparison, the number was 312,260, and has risen this year to 321,130. The fact that the number of cases for disposal shows a considerable increase, in spite of a falling off in the number of institutions, requires some explanation. It is due to the fact that ejectment suits under section 58 must now be instituted during the last quarter of the revenue year. Comparatively few of these cases can be decided before the year closes: and the undecided cases appear as cases for disposal in the returns of two successive years. The year under review is the first year in which the returns are so affected. In Oudh, the total for disposal, including 2,232 cases under section 185, Act III of 1901, was 79,455, or 14,444 less than in the previous year. But, as already observed, applications for sale of distrained property under section 82 of the Oudh Rent Act, which are not made to a court at all, have been excluded for the first time this year from the returns. The number of such applications last year cannot be exactly stated, as they were not shown under a separate head, but was probably about 4,000, and it may be assumed that the total number of cases for disposal was about 10,000 less than in the previous year. It was still 8,265 above the normal, a result due to the increase of ejectment suits and applications.

§§ 49—51.—Disposal of work.

49. In Agra details of the work under section 59 of the Tenancy Act are not given; and all that can be said is that of the 30,963 applications for disposal under that section, ejectment was ordered in 7,747. But of 290,167 cases, the total of suits, applications and miscellaneous proceedings, entered in appendix XIX, 219,196, or only 76 per cent. were decided, and the pending file, which was 60,268 at the beginning of the year, rose to 70,971 at the close. The increase is due chiefly to the number of ejectment suits which were instituted in the last quarter, and remained undecided at the close of the year. In suits and applications under other heads, there was a slight rise from 15,490 to 16,384. The pending file has grown heavier in every division, and there are not more than half a dozen districts that show a reduction, but the increase is largest in Rohilkhand; it is considerable in Gorakhpur and Agra, and least in Benares and Meerut. Excluding ejectment and enhancement cases, Mirzapur, Muzaffarnagar and Sháhjahánpur, for some reason, show the largest increase: there are considerable increases in Etah, Allahabad, Ballia, Cawnpore, Gorakhpur and Azamgarh, while Jaunpur is the only district that has succeeded in materially diminishing its file of such cases. The number of cases pending over three months was reduced, however, from 4,696 to 1,065, and, at the end of the year, was large only in Muzaffarnagar, Bulandshahr and Budaun. There were still 43 cases pending, that had been instituted under Act XII of 1881.

50. In Kumaun, though there were fewer cases for disposal, the pending file increased somewhat; the proportion of pending cases in the Naini Tál district being unduly large.

51. In Oudh the number of cases not disposed of at the end of the year was almost exactly the same as twelve months before, but the number pending for more than 3 months increased from 127 to 249.

§§ 52—53.—Effect of the Tenancy Act on the work of the courts.

52. The question how far the Tenancy Act has affected the work of the courts is of great practical importance. It is hardly necessary to say that, so far as the clerical staff is concerned, there has been a distinct shifting of the burden; tahsíl subordinates have no longer to deal with ejectment notices, while ejectment suits have added greatly to the work of the clerks at headquarters. The result is unfortunate, as the tahsíl staff cannot be reduced, and there is no compensation for the additional work thrown on the sadr establishment. The Board have had to sanction the employment of extra clerks in the most heavily worked districts, and it will probably be necessary to make arrangements, in future, to give assistance while ejectment suits are being tried. As to the work of the courts themselves, opinions differ. It is pointed out that tahsíldárs have gained little by the abolition of ejectment notices: they have to try more suits for arrears of rent, for the limit in such cases is now fixed by law at Rs. 100, whereas, under the old Act, it was generally fixed by executive order at Rs. 50: and they deal with the majority of applications under section 59. The courts at headquarters have gained where the tahsíldárs have lost, but they have a great deal of entirely new work, as they have to try ejectment suits in lieu of the notices under section 36 of the Rent Act, which issued from tahsíls. Contested ejectment suits may be taken as equivalent to applications under section 39 of the old Rent Act, but uncontested ejectment cases, which number 38,743, are a very serious addition, as in the great majority of such cases some evidence has to be recorded. That work is accumulating in some districts is undoubted. Budaun, with 9,885 cases pending at the close of the year, stands almost by itself, but the Commissioner of Rohilkhand expresses an opinion that the existing staff is insufficient in many districts to cope with the work. In half a dozen districts, partly on account of partition work, but partly also because of ejectments and enhancements, additional deputy collectors have had to be appointed. The Board are far from suggesting that these results are to be ascribed solely to the Tenancy Act. Apart from any changes in the law, there is a general tendency to a gradual increase in litigation. But the figures, for a series of years, show that the increase that has taken place, is larger than can be accounted for on general grounds. The changes in procedure, introduced by the Tenancy Act, make an exact comparison of the work of recent and former years impossible, but the figures given below are approximately correct :—

1897-98 ...	268,728	47,144
1898-99 ...	274,090	48,284
1899-00 ...	323,992	53,055
1900-01 ...	428,030	64,591
1901-02 ...	312,260	62,062
1902-03 ...	321,130	54,870

53. Work has decreased, on the whole, since last year, but the opinion generally expressed, that it is still excessive is justified. This conclusion is supported also by the figures given in paragraph 56, which show that appeals to Collectors and Commissioners are still some 25 per cent. above the former normal. Not only has the volume increased, but, owing to the application of the Civil Procedure Code, the complexity of rental litigation is much greater than it used to be. It was hoped that the Act would diminish work. Whether this hope will be realized, depends on the attitude of the landholders on the question of ejectments, and it is still too early to judge what that will be. But if the number of ejectments does not decrease, the Board must repeat that some of the results due to the changes in ejectment procedure will be most unfortunate. The press of ejectment work now falls in the very season when officers should have ample time for their executive duties. The advantage of hearing cases in camp, as the Collector of Benares points out, is illusory, for it is impossible to arrange a tour to correspond even roughly with a cause list. And, during the months when field work is of special importance, patwáris are now called away from their circles, in a multitude of cases, in which, under the Rent Act, the expedient of a simple notice to the tenant made their attendance unnecessary.

§§ 54—57.—Work of appellate courts.

54. The number of appeals to Collectors filed during the year was 5,395, as compared with 5,197 in the previous year. Including arrears the total number of appeals for decision was 5,839, as against 5,589 in 1901-1902, of which 5,206, or 89 per cent., were disposed of during the year. The percentage of decisions confirmed was 58, the same as in the preceding year. The number of appealable cases was 32,068. The figures may be compared with those of the period 1895-1896 to 1898-1899, which has been taken as one of normal litigation. Appeals to Collectors, and appealable cases decided by subordinate courts, then averaged 4,215 and 25,553, respectively; and the corresponding figures for the year under report show increases of 28 and 25 per cent.

55. Appeals to Judges rose from 1,826 to 2,022, and the pending file from 861 to 1,183. The total number of appeals for disposal was 2,883, of which 1,700, or 59 per cent., were decided. Of the pending cases, 67 were under Act XII of 1881 in the Agra province, 62 of which were over three months old.

56. Appeals to Commissioners show a substantial decrease, the number of cases falling from 8,804 to 6,173, or by 30 per cent., while the number of appealable cases, decided by subordinate courts, also fell by 11,085 from 39,922 to 28,837, or by 28 per cent. These figures are still 24 per cent. and 37 per cent. above those of 1895-96 to 1898-99, when appeals to Commissioners and appealable cases decided by subordinate courts averaged 4,960 and 21,118 respectively. It may be taken, therefore, that the total of appeals in Collectors' and Commissioners' courts together, is about 25 per cent. above the former normal, a fact already noted. Of a total number of 9,437 appeals, 6,964 were disposed of by Commissioners and 314 were transferred to Collectors. In Meerut, where the heavy appellate work necessitated the appointment of an additional Commissioner, only 50 cases were left pending at the close of the year; but in Agra (668) and Fyzabad (841), the pending file is still very heavy, and, in these two divisions, extra assistance of some kind appears to be needed to bring the work up to date. It is possible that a remedy may be found in strengthening the vernacular staff of Commissioners' offices, a question that has been raised by the Commissioner of Rohilkhand and is now under the consideration of the Board. In Agra the accumulation of arrears is attributed by the Commissioner to the change in procedure effected by the new law, under which dates have to be fixed, and parties heard now in all cases, and he advocates a return to the old procedure, which, he says, was quite as satisfactory, less expensive and more expeditious. The decisions of the lower courts were upheld in 67 per cent. of the appeals, as against 73 in 1901-02, the worst results being in the Benares and Meerut divisions, where the percentage of orders upheld were only 57 and 61 respectively. In the Rohilkhand division the percentage of orders reversed, which was highest last year (22) has dropped to 17, the percentage (27) this year being highest in Benares. The percentage of remands rose from 8 to 12, remands in the Meerut division (20 per cent.) being abnormally high. In Rohilkhand, where the percentage was 13 per cent., the Commissioner observes that the number of remands was due to press of work, resulting in incomplete inquiry. Including arrears, Collectors in the Meerut division had 479 appeals, received in transfer, to dispose of, 50 of which were left pending at the close of the year. No appeals were transferred to Collectors in the Benares division.

57. The number of appeals for disposal by the Board under Acts XII of 1881 and II of 1901, and under the Oudh Rent Act was 977, of which 802 were disposed of, the average duration being 3 months and 4 days. In revision, they dealt with 1,108 cases under the North-Western Provinces Rent and Tenancy Acts, 1,047 of which were disposed of, the average duration being 1 month and 27 days. The orders of the lower courts, were disturbed in 18 per cent. of the cases in appeal, and in 16 per cent. of those in revision. There were 19 cases for disposal under the Kumaun rules, 16 of which were disposed of, the average duration being 1 month and 20 days. In no case was the order of the lower court interfered with.

Chapter IV.—SETTLEMENT.

§ 58.—General remarks.

58. During the year under report, the settlements of Sháhjahánpur and Meerut were formally closed. Operations continued in 11 districts, in 7 of which work has been finished and the final reports received. Of the 4 remaining districts, the work is still in full swing in Azamgarh, Mainpuri and Etah, but in Hardoi it is all but completed.

§ 59.—Oudh settlements.

59. In Hardoi, Mr. Cox held charge of the operations till the end of March when he was relieved by the Deputy Commissioner. The last remaining tahsíl of Sháhabad was inspected and assessed. The revised revenues of this tahsíl and of Bilgrám were declared and resulted in a decrease of Rs. 15,377, or 2·2 per cent. Over the entire district, the revision has led to a decrease of Rs. 46,714, or 2·89 per cent. in the demand previously assessed. The preparation of a separate report has been dispensed with, and the only work that remains to be done is in connection with the distribution of the revised revenues in tahsíl Sháhabad and a portion of tahsíl Bilgrám.

In Gonda, the assessments of the remaining four parganas—Mánkapur, Sadullanagar, Bamhnipair and Burhapar—were sanctioned. These, and the revised revenues of pargana Gwarich, which were declared during the year, have resulted in an enhancement of Rs. 92,261 or 25·89 per cent. on the expiring demand. The final report has been received and the settlement has been declared to be closed. With this district is brought to a conclusion the regular revision of settlement in Oudh, which commenced in 1889 and continued without interruption till the end of the year under report.

§§ 60—68.—Settlements in the Province of Agra.

60. In Bareilly, Pilibhít, Bijnor, Farukhabad, Almora and the hill pattis of Naini Tál, settlement work has been completed. The revised assessments of tahsíls Baheri of Bareilly and Bisalpur of Pilibhít were declared during the year; and record work has been closed in the other two tahsíls of the latter district. In Bijnor, settlement has been closed in parganas Nagína, Chándpur, Burpur and Bashta and 56 forest villages. The revised assessments, which were all declared during the year, have enhanced the revenue from Rs. 3,58,200 to Rs. 3,99,093 or by 11·42 per cent. In parganas Afzalgarh and Burhapura, a partial revision, which was undertaken in consequence of the deterioration of certain villages, resulted in a decrease of Rs. 11,845 or 25·18 per cent. on the revenue fixed at the regular revision. The final report is awaited. The revised revenues of five out of six tahsíls of the Farukhabad district were declared during the year. These, and some alluvial assessments in tahsíl Aligarh, which did not expire till 1311 fasli, have raised the revenue fromRs. 9,52,804, inclusive of owners' rate, to Rs. 9,98,562 or by 4·8 per cent. The final report has been received.

61. In Almora, the revised assessments of the remaining five parganas were sanctioned, resulting in an increase in the revenue over that of last settlement of Rs. 27,983 or 19·8 per cent. A combined report for Almora and for the hill pattis of the Naini Tál district, which were assessed by the same officer and on the same principles, has recently been submitted to Government with the Board's review.

62. In Aligarh, the faired records have been made over to the Collector. The rent rate reports of the two remaining tahsíls of Háthras and Sikandra Rao were received and disposed of. The revenues declared during the year are given below :—

Tahsíl.	Old revenue.	New final revenue.	Increase.
			Amount.	Percentage.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Iglas	2,83,001	2,96,125	13,124	4·63
Khair	3,98,594	4,11,530	12,936	3·25
Hathras	4,16,173	4,45,330	29,157	7·01
Sikandra Rao	3,89,544	4,35,025	45,481	11·67

The final report has been received since the close of the year.

63. In Azamgarh, the work of attestation progresses slowly, but the circumstances of the district are peculiar and the greatest care and patience are necessary to secure an accurate record. Besides the portion of tahsíl Ahraula unfinished at the close of last year, the records of parganas Sagri, Gopálpur and two-thirds of Ghosi, comprising 1,039 villages, were attested during the year. The outturn of work is less than in the previous year, but it has been found necessary to devote the services of a Deputy Collector to distribution of revenue and supervision of the fairing office, in which work had been at a standstill. This duty will, it is expected, take up the time of one officer till the close of the operations, and there is little prospect of attestation being completed before the end of 1904. An area of 635 square miles was inspected during the year, 319 square miles by the Settlement Officer and the rest by Mr. Smith, his assistant. Since the close of the year, parganas Chiriakot and Kiriat Mittu, with an area of 98 square miles, have been inspected and their assessments will be completed as soon as the records are attested. The rent rate reports of parganas Bela Daulatabad, Kauria and Atraulia were received and disposed of, but the assessments were sanctioned after the close of the year. The revised revenues of parganas Deogaon, Nizamabad and Belhabans were declared, resulting in an enhancement of the revenue from Rs. 4,46,898 to Rs. 4,95,700, or by 10·92 per cent. The rent rate report for pargana Mahul, which was received after the close of the year, has been disposed of.

64. In Mainpuri, attestation of pargana Ghiror of tahsíl Mainpuri and of tahsíl Karhal has been completed, and the fairing of records commenced in tahsíls Bhongaon and Mainpuri. Tahsíl Bhongaon, comprising 4 parganas and an area of 401 square miles, was inspected during the year, and orders were passed on the rent rate reports. The Settlement Officer did not join his appointment till December 1902, and found it difficult therefore to complete his first year's work in time. Special arrangements were made, however, and the assessments, which were received on various dates between 7th September and 3rd November, were examined by the Board and declared, subject to the sanction of Government, in time to admit of the revised revenues being collected with the kharíf instalment, which fell due on 15th November. Since the close of the year, Maulvi Muhammad Ahmad joined the district as Assistant Settlement Officer.

65. In Etah, the attestation of records is almost finished, but the fairing work remains to be done. An area of no less than 1,000 square miles was inspected; tahsíl Aliganj and pargana Sonhar of tahsíl Etah, with an area of 554 square miles, by the Settlement Officer, and parganas Etah, Sakit and Marehra, covering 446 square miles, by his assistant, Mr. Cassels. All the rent rate reports were received and dealt with during the year, but the assessments, with the exception of those of parganas Sonhar and Marehra, were not received till after its close. Towards the end of the year, Mr. Cassels' health broke down, and the assessments of the two parganas inspected by him were completed by the Settlement Officer. The work of assessment had thus to be carried on at very high pressure, and it is creditable to Mr. Robarts that the revised revenues were declared in time to be collected with the kharíf instalment, which fell due on the 1st November. In Sonhar, the only pargana of which the revised revenues were declared during the year, the enhancement was Rs. 1,604, or 9·3 per cent. on the old demand.

66. In the three trans-Jumna tahsils of Allahabad, no general suvery was required, but defective maps were corrected by the patwáris after they had undergone a preliminary training in measurement. The whole tract, aggregating 1,207 square miles, was inspected in one camping season and the rent rate and the assessment reports were submitted within the year. The only areas, of which the assessments remained to be received after its close, were the alluvial maháls and a small tract known as tappa Pál of pargana Khairagarh. In pargana Arail and the northern part of pargana Khairagarh, which are not specially precarious, the settlement has been made for 30 years. The remainder of the tract has been settled quinquennially under the fluctuating system. The revised revenues of the three parganas, which were declared within the year, amounted to Rs. 5,54,686. This sum was Rs. 67,387, or 10·83 per cent. below the revenue on the roll, and Rs. 21,635, or 3·75 per cent. less than the demand fixed by recent summary reductions.

67. In Jalaun, attestation has been completed in parganas Orai and Kálpi and commenced in pargana Jalaun. In Cawnpore, which will be settled under the special rules sanctioned by Government, there will be no attestation of records. Both the districts have been brought under settlement since the close of the year, and Mr. Hailey has been appointed Settlement Officer in Jalaun and Mr. H. K. Gracey in Cawnpore.

68. In Jhánsi, the current settlement of which does not expire till 1912, sanction was accorded to the extension of the fluctuating system of assessment. There will be no revision of the records, but, in order to prevent delay when the Settlement Officer joined the district, the Collector was asked to begin the preparation of the necessary statistics. A deputy collector has since been posted to the district to supervise this work, and towards the close of December Mr. Pim took over charge as Settlement Officer. It has also been decided to introduce the new system of settlement in the districts of Bánda and Hamírpur before the expiry of their current term (1907-1911). But, as the khewats were found to require revision and attestation, the appointment of Settlement Officers has been deferred till October 1905; and since the close of the year both the districts have been placed under survey and record operations and the Collectors have been appointed record officers.

§ 69.—Forecasts.

69. The only prospective settlements which were dealt with during the year were those of Agra and Moradabad. The term of the current settlement of the former district has been extended for 10 years. In Moradabad, a re-assessment and partial revision of the records have been sanctioned by Government, and portions of the district, where the maps were very defective, have already been placed under survey.

§ 70.—Work of settlement courts.

70. The number of cases instituted in settlement courts was 43,661. Including 24,574 cases outstanding at the close of last year, the total for disposal was 68,235, of which 50,602 cases were decided. The balance of 17,633 is composed chiefly of record-of-rights cases, which, in Azamgarh alone, number 7,622. There were 2,995 appeals to Settlement Officers, of which 2,008 have been disposed of. Commissioners disposed of 1,137 out of 1,257 appeals filed before them.

§ 71.—Cost of settlement operations.

71. The total cost of settlement operations during the year amounted to Rs. 4,67,427. In Aligarh and Hardoi, some further expenditure will be required. In the other districts, in which the work of assessment is complete, the accounts have been closed, and the cost of settlement per square mile can be given as follows :—

District.	Cost per square mile. Rs.
Farukhabad	153·33
Bareilly including Bisalpur	142·10
Bijnor	74·3
Allahabad	25·97
Almora and Naini Tál hill pattis	384·16
Gonda	76·37

Chapter V.—GENERAL.

§§ 72—73.—Mutations in the revenue registers.

72. The total number of mutations made in the proprietary registers during the year exhibits a further increase of 33,395, the number being 199,103 as compared with 165,708 in 1901-1902. The most striking feature of the return is the increase of nearly 19,000 in succession cases, which follows an increase last year of 13,830; no less than 40 per cent. more cases being reported than in 1900-1901. Apart from increased mortality, which is given as a reason in several districts, it seems certain that this remarkable increase is due to several concurrent causes. In the first place, settlement has recently been concluded in many districts, and the patwáris naturally find a large number of cases to report which have escaped attention during their absence from their circles. Secondly, a great deal of trouble has been taken to improve mutation work. In Basti the inquiry into unreported cases, which was noticed last year continued, and with such effect that the staff of the registrar's office had to be strengthened. In Rae Bareli the Deputy Commissioner gave notice that overdue reports would be accepted without comment up to a certain date, after which late reporting would be severely punished, and the result was a rush of reports in cases that had been overlooked. In Bara Banki the orders issued resulted in the discovery of " several thousand " old cases, and in Sultánpur a determined effort was made to bring the khewats up to date. Finally, district officers were assisted in their endeavours by changes in the law, and in the patwári and qanúngo rules. It is natural to suppose that section 34 (5) of the Revenue Act has already had some effect, and the usefulness of rule 63, Circular 4—VII has been noticed in several districts.

73. The inferences to be drawn from the figures under heads other than successions are generally favourable. The number of sales is very much the same as in the previous year, but the value of the property sold, as indicated by the revenue, was considerably less. Mortgages increased everywhere, except in Gorakhpur, Kumaun and Rohilkhand, but there was a large increase also in redemptions. The figures for Fyzabad are throughout extraordinary. An increase of nearly 9,000 succession cases in this division is accounted for by the remarks in the preceding paragraph, but there has been an increase, confined, it may be said, to Sultánpur and Bara Banki, of some 5,000 cases both under mortgages and redemptions, which has not been explained. On a comparison with the previous year, Gorakhpur shows the greatest improvement ; between the results in other divisions there is no great difference. It is somewhat remarkable that, except for a fall in the revenue of properties sold, the figures in Allahabad are very much the same as in the previous year. Since the Alienation of Land Act took effect, the number of transfers has been very small, and it would appear, therefore, that there was some increase in the first nine months of the year, but, on the whole, it is evident that no attempt was made to forestall the effects of the new legislation.

§ 74.—Partitions.

74. Partition work has developed on very much the same lines as in the previous year. The number of applications for perfect partition has again fallen off, and the decrease is general in all divisions, except Benares. Applications for imperfect partitions have increased from 1,161 to 1,947, or 68 per cent., and the total under both classes is 24 per cent. higher than in the previous year ; it is 44 per cent. above the average of 1896-1897 to 1898-1899, which may be taken as the normal before the passing of the new Land Revenue Act. The variations in divisional results, however, are extraordinary. In Kumaun, there has been a large decrease. In Oudh, Allahabad and Benares the new law has made little change, but in Meerut, Rohilkhand and Gorakhpur, the number of partition cases has doubled or trebled.

§ 75.—Amount of partition work.

75. The increase in partition work in the three divisions last mentioned is a serious matter. In the provinces, as a whole, the pending file, at the beginning of the year, was 16 per cent. higher than at the beginning of 1901-02, and the increase in the number of applications filed brought up the number for disposal to 5,937, or 20 per cent. more than 4,938, which was the number for disposal in the previous year : in Meerut, Rohilkhand and Gorakhpur, the numbers were 3,471 against 2,319. The number of partitions carried out increased 25 per cent., and, to this extent, the hope expressed last year that, with a lighter general file, the courts would be able to devote more time to this work, has been fulfilled. Cases otherwise disposed of decreased, however, for some reason, and, altogether, the outturn of work by no means kept pace with the increase in the amount of cases for disposal, so that the pending file, at the close of the year, was 29 per cent. higher than at the beginning. A sensible reduction was effected in Meerut, though the file was very heavy, and, in several of the Oudh districts, the number of pending cases diminished. There was a very large increase in Budaun, Moradabad, Basti and Gorakhpur, the first three districts having more than 200, while Gorakhpur had 384 cases undisposed of at the end of the year. On a smaller scale, there were considerable increases in Jaunpur, Gházipur and Saháranpur. The results have been such as to necessitate the adoption of special measures. It is easy, when partition work accumulates, to increase the staff of amíns, but little good can follow if the courts are unable to take up cases promptly. It was, therefore, more particularly for the sake of partition work, that Government sanctioned, in six districts, the appointment of extra deputy collectors, to which allusion has already been made. But, as partition work moves slowly, it is improbable that these officers will be able to effect much in the six months to which, in the first place, their appointment has been limited, and if the arrears are to be reduced satisfactorily, an extension of their deputation will probably be necessary.

§ 76.—Partition staff and accounts.

76. These subjects have engaged the attention of the Board, and several alterations of system have been proposed or effected during the year under report. A proposal to abolish special partition funds, and to deal with partition receipts and charges under general revenues, has been approved by the Government of India, and will take effect from the 1st of April this year. The fixed salary system, which was in force only in 21 districts, has now been extended to all districts, except Mirzapur and Dehra Dún, and will, it is hoped, lead to an improvement in the class of men employed. It has been suggested, also, that the quality of the work would be improved, if cases were made over more frequently to patwáris, and the Board have under consideration the possibility of favouring their employment by charging a lower scale of fees. No system, however, will work automatically. Amíns will not work without supervision, and the new system under which they are paid by the month and not by the job, renders close supervision of their work necessary. Unless arrangements are made to prevent delays, much time may be wasted. The courts again are apt to defer partitions to other work, and there is a tendency, noticed in several of the district reports, to grant unnecessary postponements. Partitions, therefore, continue to require the vigilant attention of district officers.

§ 77.—Cases under section 184 of the Land Revenue Act.

77. The number of applications by lambardárs for recovery of arrears paid on behalf of cosharers, rose from 204 to 847, the amounts claimed being Rs. 21,329 and Rs. 62,274 respectively. The Meerut division is again easily first with 509 cases for the recovery of Rs. 29,626, the Rohilkhand and Oudh divisions following next in order. Out of a total number of 928 cases for the recovery of Rs. 7,54,61,211 for the recovery of Rs. 22,613, were left pending at the close of the year. It is evident, from these figures, that lambardárs are learning to take advantage of the new provisions of the law, and a considerable increase in the employment of this section may be looked for in future years.

§ 78.—Lambardars.

78. An improvement in the position of lambardárs, consequent on the new privilege conferred on them by section 184, is noticed in several districts. It is reported also that the provisions of section 45 of the Revenue Act have facilitated appointments. It is certain, therefore, that the new Act has done much to preserve, if not to restore, the lambardári system in those parts of the provinces where it still possesses some vitality. It cannot be said, however, that there is any hope of improvement in the eastern districts. In the Gorakhpur division, for example, where the system probably never was indigenous, and has long been defunct, the local officers write gloomily of the difficulties attending the revenue administration. The steady increase of work, following on the constant subdivision of property, is a familiar theme. But it is pointed out that there is an unfortunate divergence between the official revenue accounts, which are based on what is described as the fiction of the lambardári system, and the unauthorized accounts which, disregarding the lambardár, are based on the actual distribution of cosharers in revenue-paying groups, and which alone are consulted in the actual work of collection : that this divergence opens a safe and easy way to fraud, and that the danger of extortion is greatly increased by the necessity of employing unpaid assistants without whom the work could not be carried through at all. The picture, as the Commissioner observes, is not a pleasant one, but it does not appear to be overdrawn. More than one case of fraud has been detected within the last year, and so much fraud is possible, as the Collector of Basti points out, with absolutely no fear of detection, that the evil may be widespread. The system described by Mr. Gracey is, briefly, that the small cosharers are made to pay a little more than their proper share : it is then possible to reduce the amount paid by one of the larger proprietors, between whom and the collecting establishment the difference is divided. As each cosharer gets a receipt in full for the money he pays, it is practically impossible to prove fraud : the only remedy is a suit, and in the circumstances a suit is impossible. The scheme can be worked successfully only in ignorant communities, but it is in operation in Basti, and the Collector writes that the imperfections of the system of collection are steadily tending to nullify the care and trouble spent by the Settlement Officer in adjusting the revenue to each cosharer's capacity, and to place in the hands of low-paid subordinates the power of shifting the burden at their will within wide limits.

§ 79.—The use of money orders in payment of Government dues.

79. The number and value of revenue money orders rose from 227,316 and Rs. 50,57,093 in 1901-1902 to 251,726 and Rs. 52,76,073 in 1902-1903. Various reasons, such as the reduction in commission charges, have been assigned, but a reference to paragraph 74 in the Board's report for last year will show that the increase has been no more than normal. Miscellaneous money orders also show an increase, the figures being now 38,005 and Rs. 7,78,707 against 36,774 and Rs. 7,42,844 in the previous year.

§ 80.—Rental money orders.

80. The amount of rent remitted by money orders shows a further increase from Rs. 12,35,241 to Rs. 13,71,184, or 11 per cent. in the Agra province, and from Rs. 78,107 to Rs. 1,02,539, or no less than 31 per cent. in Oudh. The increase is contributed to by all the divisions, with the exception of Allahabad, in which there was a slight decrease following an exceptional rise last year. The largest increases are in Fyzabad (41 per cent.) and Benares (38 per cent.), due to a substantial rise in the districts of Fyzabad and Jaunpur respectively. In individual districts, the largest increases are in Muzaffarnagar (Rs. 36,498), Jaunpur (Rs. 26,486), Meerut (Rs. 22,882), and Bareilly (Rs. 22,732). Remittances are very much more common in the three western divisions of Meerut, Agra and Rohilkhand, than elsewhere, and both in Bulandshahr and Bijnor, tenants remit more than a lakh a year through the post office. In Bulandshahr, the value of the remittances has declined Rs. 19,014; in Bijnor, on the other hand, it has increased Rs. 17,488, and is larger now than in any other district. The continued and rapid increase in Oudh is remarkable. The value of rental money orders, issued in 1898-99, was rather less than it had been 10 years before; since then it has more than doubled, while, during the same period, the increase in Agra has been about 55 per cent.

§ 81.—Work of appellate courts under the Land Revenue Act.

81. Appeals to Collectors, under the old and new Land Revenue Acts, aggregated 4,626, or 589 more than in 1901-1902. The total number for decision was 5,053, against 4,434 in the previous year, of which 4,566 were disposed of. The largest number of appeals, for disposal, was in Meerut (417), Gorakhpur (374), Bulandshahr (254) and Basti (235). The cases pending at the end of the year, and those pending over three months, were nowhere numerous.

Appeals to Commissioners also rose from 2,176 to 2,539, the number being highest in Meerut (684), Agra (436) and Gorakhpur (334). The total number for disposal was 3,147, of which 503 remained pending at the close of the year. The heaviest pending file was in the court of the Commissioner of Agra (101). The number of cases pending for more than 3 months declined from 228 to 125.

Appeals to the Board under the old and new Land Revenue Acts numbered 417, of which 363 were disposed of, the orders of the lower courts being disturbed in 32 cases. The average duration was three months. In revision the Board had 378 cases to deal with, 351 of which were disposed of, the average duration being 2 months and 8 days. Appeals under the regulations of the Family Domains of the Mahárája of Benares numbered 38, all of which were disposed of, the average duration being 4 months and 3 days. The orders of the lower courts were disturbed in 2 cases.

§ 82.—Acquisition of land.

82. Seven thousand one hundred and eighty-three acres of land were acquired for public purposes during the year, for which Rs. 7,39,092 were paid as compensation. The area restored by Government during the same period amounted to 962 acres, and the price realized to Rs. 28,219. In 12 cases land was acquired without recourse being had to the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act.

§ 83.—Jhansi Encumbered Estates Act.

83. Of the 14 cases which were left open at the commencement of the year, in six the accounts were closed. The instalments that fell due during the year were collected in full. No advance was made during the year.

§ 84.—Territorial changes.

84. There were no territorial changes of any importance during the year.

§ 85.—Maps.

85. During the year of report the maps of the Jánsath, Maudaha, Chandauli, Muzaffarnagar, Chakráta, Hamírpur, Kulpahár, Bhognipur, Derapur, Ráth, Nakúr and Bulandshahr tahsíls and the Partábgarh district were published, and, when the year closed, the Roorkee College Press had on hand, for reproduction, 20 tahsíl maps, including four sent by this office during the year 1902-03, and five district maps. Since the year closed the maps of the Khurja, Muhammadabad, Zamaniah, Dehra, Saháranpur, and Benares tahsíls have been received from the Roorkee College Press.

§ 86.—Total work in district offices.

86. The registered receipts and issues in the revenue department of English district offices show a further falling off, the figures being 336,590 against 375,991 in the previous year. The decrease of 39,401 is satisfactory, and indicates that the recommendations made by Mr. Impey are still operating towards the curtailment of work. The total receipts and issues of the Board's office also decreased from 47,428 in the previous year to 43,523 in the year under report. The total number of revenue cases for disposal was 1,687,226, and shows an increase of 40,197 as compared with the figures of 1901-02. Outside the cases that are included also in the rent law appendices, the most important class in this return is execution of decrees and orders: under this head there has been an increase of 21,080. The number of cases disposed of amounted to 1,513,222, and the number pending at the close of the year was 174,004, or 4,544 more than at the beginning of the year. The pending file diminished in the Fyzabad division, especially in Bara Banki and Fyzabad. In other divisions, there was an increase, but it was large only in Allahabad, where numerous applications under the Encumbered Estates Act were filed in the last quarter of the year, and in Rohilkhand, where it has occurred in every district but Bareilly. In the districts of Muzaffarnagar, Mirzapur and Gorakhpur also there was a marked increase in the pending file.

§ 87.—Assignment, &c., of land in favour of grantees.

87. The total value of the property assigned or alienated up to the close of the year under report is Rs. 6,22,817 as against Rs. 5,68,901 in the previous year.

§ 88.—Economic.

88. The most important economic change of the year was the introduction of special laws in Bundelkhand with the object of relieving proprietors of their debts and, by a restriction of their powers of transfer, preventing their dispossession; the subject is dealt with in separate reports. Otherwise, the history of the year is very similar to that of its predecessor. Indigo continues to decline in importance, a matter for regret, as not only is a valuable crop disappearing, but the soil is impoverished by the loss of the nitrogen which the plant transmits to the soil. The sugar industry also suffered from a poor crop and low prices, and in Bareilly and Jaunpur it is noted that many refineries have been closed. There is reason, however, to suppose that prices have affected the refiners more than the cultivators, and in Rohilkhand especially there are signs of a revival. As noted last year the area under cane has not contracted. In some districts, on the contrary, there is an increase; in Bijnor, for example, the area has doubled in the last ten years, and the Commissioner of Rohilkhand thinks the expansion of cane cultivation is itself responsible to some extent for the low prices of sugar. Cotton continues to receive much attention, and many districts report the opening of new factories. In the Agra division, where exceptional activity has been shown, the Commissioner thinks there is a danger of such enterprizes being overdone.

Village banks are not reported on with any greater enthusiasm than in the previous year, except in Fyzabad, where the Deputy Commissioner says that they are doing well without any official fostering. It is impossible to forecast the future of these institutions; but the delay in legislation is injurious to their chances of success. The seed depôt at Sultánpur continues to do good work. This year in Fyzabad also a beginning has been made in the importation of wheat seed from Meerut, and the operations are extending.

External trade was slack, and prices, as shown in the first chapter of this report, were low. It is remarkable that wages were high, but there are several circumstances that partially, at least, explain the fact. In the first place, the year was exceptionally unhealthy, not only on account of plague but from other causes. The undoubted effects of plague in raising wages, especially at Cawnpore, were due chiefly to the dispersion of the labourers, but, to a certain extent, the increased mortality must have diminished the supply of labour. More important is the influence of large public works and increased manufacturing activity. Thus the new railway to Fyzabad increased wages in Allahabad, and there are several other lines under survey or construction. In many districts new metalled roads are being made, and in Cawnpore as well as Agra the growth of new factories seems to have been sufficiently important to have a distinct effect on the labour market. It is to be remembered also that the large increase in the cultivated area must give employment to a considerable number of labourers. And, finally, it seems probable that, as crops have been good and wages high for some little time, labourers have been induced and enabled to venture on cultivation and take land for themselves. However this may be, it is certain that, with high wages and easy prices, the labouring classes have done very well. Landholders and tenants have not had the same double advantage; they have reaped good crops, and their surplus of grain has probably been larger, but it has sold at a cheaper rate. The result, however, is not open to doubt. In Benares the Commissioner writes that the evidences of prosperity are many, and it is a matter of congratulation that the eastern districts should have done so well. Oudh has had two excellent years in succession. The improvement in Bundelkhand has been great. Every where the condition of the agricultural classes is described as good, and in many cases as excellent. Public dues have been collected with ease and success. Litigation, except in Rohilkhand, has not been excessive. But for the prevalence of plague and a higher mortality the record of the year is one of unusual prosperity.

§ 89.—Conclusion.

89. In conclusion the Board desire to express their acknowledgments to revenue officers of all grades for the manner in which they have discharged their duties:

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

R. W. GILLAN,

Secretary.

ORDERS OF GOVERNMENT.

No. $\frac{1018}{\text{I—367-1904}}$ OF 1904.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Naini Tal, the 18th April 1904.

READ—

Letter from the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces, No. $\frac{1170}{\text{XII—163A}}$, dated 12th March 1904, being the Board's report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces for the year ending 30th September 1903.

OBSERVATIONS.—The report reached Government on the 21st March, or more than one month earlier than in the previous year.

2. The monsoon of 1902, like those of the two preceding years and that of 1903, was much delayed, and the rainfall of the year was unequally distributed. But the character of the seasons was on the whole favourable to agriculture. There were no serious calamities. The cultivated area exceeded that of the preceding year, which was the largest on record, by nearly 450,000 acres, and the crop area rose by over 600,000 acres. In Bundelkhand, which had suffered severely in the recent famine, the recovery was very marked. The year was unfavourable to rice, and to a less extent to cotton and sugarcane; but this was counterbalanced by a large expansion of the area under wheat.

3. Collections were again good, and there was a decline in the number of coercive processes issued. During the year there were only seven cases of transfer and one of sale. Out of a total real demand of some 827½ lakhs, the arrears at the end of the year were a little over one lakh. Under Land Revenue the balance left uncollected of the current demand was in round numbers only Rs. 21,000; and of the arrear demand only Rs. 2,000. The revenue on the roll, which on 1st October 1902, was Rs. 6,39,10,869, rose, owing to new settlements and to progressive enhancements, to Rs. 6,43,04,398 on 1st October 1903.

4. The deficient rainfall of the previous year had led to a great increase in the demand for water in the Meerut, Agra, and Allahabad divisions. A further increase took place during the year in the Allahabad division; and Rohilkhand also shows a rise, but the amount of irrigation in that division is comparatively unimportant. In Agra the variation was small; but in Meerut, owing to the abundant rainfall, the decline in canal rates amounted to nearly five lakhs.

5. The outstanding balance of loans under the Land Improvement Act amounted at the close of the previous year to Rs. 3,80,961, and Rs. 1,09,936 were advanced during the year. The corresponding figures under the Agriculturists' Loans Act were Rs. 2,64,299 and Rs. 81,986. Under the former Act more than three-fourths, and under the latter Act nearly one-half, of the year's advances were made in the Bundelkhand districts of the Allahabad division. In spite of the large sums which have been remitted owing to famine and other causes the working of the Acts during the last six years has resulted in a profit. The Lieutenant Governor trusts that all arrears due on account of advances during the famine which cannot be recovered without hardship have now been remitted.

6. The third chapter of the report deals with rent law litigation, and the most interesting portion of the chapter is that which discusses the effect of the new Agra Tenancy Act. This Act came into force on the 1st of January 1902, and the year under report was therefore the first full year of its operation. One difficulty in gauging the effect of the new Act is the want of a suitable standard of comparison. The statistics for the three preceding years of fierce agitation may be left out of account; and the average for the years 1895-96 to 1898-99, which the Board have accepted as normal, was probably affected by the disturbing influence of the famine.

7. The increase of suits for arrears of rent in Agra—there was a decrease in Oudh—was clearly due, as the Board state, to the alteration in the law of ejectment. Under the old Act (section 34) a tenant from whom an arrear of rent was due on the last day of the agricultural year was liable to be ejected from the land in respect of which the arrear accrued. By some unaccountable oversight, however, the framers of the Act, though they made special provision to meet the case of privileged tenants and tenants holding under leases against whom decrees for arrears of rent had been obtained, omitted to prescribe any procedure for the ejectment of defaulting tenants-at-will. In consequence of this omission it came to be accepted by the rent courts that tenants-at-will were not liable to ejectment for rent default. Whether this interpretation of the law was correct or not need not now be considered; and the only reason why landlords quietly acquiesced in such an apparently intolerable state of affairs was that they had full powers of arbitrary ejectment of tenants-at-will under sections 36 &c. of the Act. That this power was abused cannot be questioned; but in considering the statistics it must be remembered that it was only by action in the form of arbitrary ejectment that a landlord could get rid of a defaulting tenant-at-will.

8. The new Act has altered the law. It has aimed at curtailing the power of arbitrary eviction, and provides a procedure for ejecting tenants of every class who fall into arrears. An increase in suits for arrears was therefore to be expected. The distribution of the increase is, indeed, peculiar and difficult to explain in detail. But in the Meerut division, where, as the report shows, the new law is best understood, the increase was as much as 32 per cent. The number of cases in which tenants have actually been ejected for default in paying their rent is still comparatively small; but, as the Board point out, the working of the new law will have to be carefully watched. It is impossible to lay down any general rule as to the reasons which would justify a court in allowing further time for payment to a tenant; but it must not be forgotten that the landlord is responsible for the payment of the revenue, and he cannot be expected to discharge this obligation unless his tenants are reasonably punctual in paying their rent.

9. When the necessity of legislating for the protection of tenant right first attracted attention, there were two distinct classes of tenants whose interest had to be considered. The first class consisted of the old hereditary cultivators—known under various names—who had certain prescriptive, if not well defined, rights in their holdings. The other class had no such rights. The distinction between the two classes, however, was not always clear, and some suitable method of deciding to which class a particular tenant belonged had to be devised. The solution of the difficulty which was finally adopted was to select 12 years' occupation subject to certain conditions as proof that a tenant belonged to the privileged class; and in one form or another this rule has been in force in the province of Agra for forty-five years.

10. Whether the decision to give this rule prospective as well as retrospective effect was a wise one, and whether it would not have been better, while maintaining existing privileges, to have aimed at securing reasonable treatment for the whole body of tenants-at-will, are matters on which opinions may differ. In favour of the rule as adopted is the fact that under it has grown up a large body of new occupancy tenants. Against it may be urged that those landlords who objected to the acquisition of such privileged rights were compelled in self-defence to eject their tenants periodically. The extent to which this right of arbitrary ejectment was pushed is well known. Agriculture has suffered; ill-feeling has been fostered between landlord and tenant; and for a considerable portion of the year the rent courts have been congested with an enormous amount of litigation which benefited nobody except a not very desirable class of legal practitioners.

11. The object of the present Act was, as the report says, "to induce landlords to give their cultivators some fixity of tenure; if they did not choose that their tenants should acquire any rights, they were at least to grant them long-term leases." To what extent this object will be attained it is not at present possible to say. It is clear that the general body of the landlords have not as yet mastered the provisions of the Act; and until those provisions are understood by both parties it will not be practicable to judge how the Act will work. So far the results can hardly be described as encouraging. The number of suits filed under section 58 (a) was 68,501—the average of the four years from 1895-96 to 1898-99 being only 57,767,—and the number of seven-year leases granted was only 8,517. Taken in connection with the increase in the number of suits for arrears of rent, this increase in ejectment suits is a matter of grave concern.

12. The small number of long-term leases executed is perhaps not surprising. Throughout many parts of the province written leases have always been unpopular with the tenants. Part of the prejudice is doubtless a survival from the old Rent Acts of 1873 and 1882, under which the execution of a written lease barred the acquisition of occupancy rights. It is clearly desirable that long-term leases should be encouraged, and if the provisions of sections 67-68 of the Act are found to deter landlords from granting such leases, the policy of those provisions will have to be re-considered, as well as the policy of section 58*(a)*, which allows ejectment of tenants not holding under a lease.

13. Another important question under the new Act is, what becomes of the evicted tenant? Where under the old law a tenant on eviction simply exchanged one holding for another, not much harm was done. But under the present Act eviction to be effective must be for at least a year. If such dispossessions take place to any considerable extent, the state of the tenant will be worse than it was before the Act was passed. Careful enquiries must continue to be made into this matter, and evidence collected to show how the law operates.

In Oudh it is satisfactory to find that the number of ejectment suits has fallen.

14. Some serious aspects of the effect of the new Act on the work of the courts are discussed in paragraphs 52 and 53 of the report. In spite of a fall in the number of contested cases, work in the headquarters courts has not only become heavier and more complicated, but also falls at an inconvenient season. In several districts the staff had to be temporarily strengthened; and, unless litigation diminishes, some permanent increase not only in the district but also in the clerical staff may have to be given. The pending files in the courts of the Commissioners of Agra and Fyzabad were very heavy.

15. The progress made with settlement work was satisfactory. Operations were formally closed in two districts, and completed or nearly completed in eight. Work is still in hand in three districts, and is about to commence in a fourth. The delicate task of introducing the new system of fluctuating assessments into the Bundelkhand districts has also to be undertaken. Except in Almora and the Naini Tal hill pattis, where conditions are peculiar, the incidence of expenditure was low. His Honour agrees with the Board that the new assessments have been framed with moderation.

16. The question of the prompt disposal of partition work, which tends to increase, is an important one, and requires unremitting attention. A certain number of special officers can as a rule be deputed for this work during the cold weather, but, now that the strength of the cadre of deputy collectors has been fixed, these extra officers may have to be withdrawn during the hot weather for ordinary district duties to fill leave vacancies. This is unfortunate, as in partition work continuity of handling is essential. Transfers of officers are, however, being avoided as far as possible. The new system under which amins will receive fixed salaries will, it is hoped, work well. Under the old system of payment by fees in instalments at long intervals of time the emoluments of the post were very unequal. The Board's proposals to permit patwaris to take up partition work will be awaited.

17. The measures adopted with a view to securing the correct maintenance of the register of proprietary rights have been attended with considerable success. Under the Revenue Act no person who succeeds to or acquires such a right can now institute a suit or application in a revenue court until he has reported the fact of succession or acquisition to the tahsildar. When this change in the law becomes generally known, omissions to report will probably become rare. Much still remains to be done, however, especially in the eastern districts, to bring the official revenue accounts into accord with the actual distribution of the Government demand among the co-sharers. The subject is one of great difficulty and complexity. The interests at stake are not merely those of the administration but of the classes who pay land revenue. There is no administrative convenience in maintaining a fictitious system of accounts, and the present accounts only facilitate fraud. In the case of complex mahals Government has now, under section 135 of the Revenue Act, power to direct their division into suitable simple mahals. No time should be lost in giving effect to this section where action is desirable. But Government understands that the difficulty is not confined to complex mahals. The authorized register gives the demand only by mahals and lambardars. This system is convenient and suitable where the lambardari system exists, and where the various co-sharers pay through or on behalf of a particular lambardar. But where there is no real lambardar, and where the co-sharers either pay direct or through the unofficial representatives of groups into which they have for private convenience arranged themselves, the official accounts are useless and misleading. This divergence between the official accounts and the actual system of payment should not be allowed to continue. The Board should now take the subject up and suggest a remedy. A suitable form of demand register must be devised, and a sufficient staff provided to maintain it. The existing staff is in some districts admittedly insufficient to cope with the work.

18. As remarked by the Board, the most important event of the year was the introduction into Bundelkhand of the special laws for relieving proprietors of their debts, and restricting their powers of transfer. What the ultimate result of this legislation will be cannot at present be foreseen, but the start so far has been promising. The continued decline in indigo is to be regretted, but this crop has for some years ceased to be of any great importance. On the other hand, cotton is receiving increased attention. The condition of the sugar industry is not altogether satisfactory; but certain improvements in the method of manufacture, which have been introduced by Saiyid Muhammad Hadi, Assistant Director of land records and agriculture, may help to revive the trade. The low prices and high wages benefited the labouring classes; but, in spite of the slackness of external trade, there can be no doubt that other sections also of the community shared in the general prosperity. There are indications that the relations between landlord and tenant are returning to a more satisfactory condition. The one sombre feature in the landscape is the dark shadow of the plague.

19. The acknowledgments of the Lieutenant Governor are due to the Board for their efficient administration during the year.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces, for the information of the Board.

FROM

R. W. GILLAN, ESQ., I.C.S.,
SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF REVENUE,
UNITED PROVINCES OF AGRA AND OUDH,

To

THE CHIEF SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,
UNITED PROVINCES OF AGRA AND OUDH,
REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Allahabad, the 28th February 1905.

SIR,

Present:
HON'BLE MR. R. G. HARDY, C.S.I.,
HON'BLE MR. J. HOOPER, C.S.I.,
AND
J. B. THOMSON, ESQ.

§§ 1—3.—Introductory.

I AM desired by the Board to submit their report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh for the year ending 30th September 1904. The early submission of the report has been greatly facilitated by the care and promptitude of the Government Press in supplying proofs, which the Board are glad to acknowledge.

2. For a short time in October the late Mr. Roberts was a Member of the Board, and Mr. Hooper was placed on special duty. After the death of Mr. Roberts, which took place but a very few weeks before the date of his retirement, and up to the close of the year, the Members of the Board were the Hon'ble Messrs. R. G. Hardy and J. Hooper, and Mr. J. B. Thomson.

3. The Commissioners' divisional reports were received more punctually this year. The only exception was, as last year, in the case of Allahabad, the report for which division did not reach the Board till the 7th January 1905.

§§ 4—9.—Rainfall and harvests.

4. The monsoon of 1903 brought more than the normal amount of rain to the provinces, but the excess was due to a few storms of exceptional character: the total was not well distributed, and though in the end the results were not unfavourable, the variations both in the direction of defect and excess were such as gave rise at the time to considerable anxiety. As in the two preceding years, the commencement of the rains was long delayed. Towards the end of June rain was received in the eastern districts from a cyclonic storm in Behar, and in the Gorakhpur division the amount was little below the normal. In all other divisions the rainfall was very light, and except in a very few districts did not suffice for sowing. Throughout the provinces the monsoon really broke only in the third week of July, and the first burst of rain was followed immediately by another period of dry weather. At the end of the month the defect, which was least in Meerut and Agra, was for the provinces, as a whole, no less than 60 per cent. With the beginning of August, however, a change set in, and during the next three months the rainfall was unusually heavy. In August it appears to have been somewhat capricious: while Allahabad for example got 6 inches and Lucknow 4·3 inches more than the normal, Cawnpore was 3·5 inches in defect. In all divisions except Meerut, however, there was an excess, which in Gorakhpur and Fyzabad was very large. In September the distribution was similar, the excess being largest again in the same divisions; but Agra and Lucknow showed a slight defect. The second week of October was distinguished by a storm of exceptional character which, accompanied by high winds, swept over the whole of the provinces except a very few of the submontane and western districts. The normal for October is nowhere more than 3 inches, and in many places it is less than an inch; but while Kumaun received only 2·48 inches and Meerut 2·05, in no other division was the rainfall less than 9 inches, and 19 districts received more than a foot. The cold weather months were generally dry. November and December were almost rainless. In January, to judge from the meteorological returns, the best rain was received in two tracts, the first in the north from Meerut and Saháranpur to Bareilly, the second running east from Fatehpur to Benares. From February to May the Meerut and Kumaun divisions had over four inches, Gorakhpur and Rohilkhand had more than two inches and the other divisions about an inch.

5. The effect of the season thus described was naturally to favour the rabi at the expense of the kharíf, and some attention will have to be paid to the damage done to the autumn crops. It is all the more necessary, therefore, to lay stress on the generally favourable results of the year, which are brought out very strikingly by a consideration of the area figures. For the third year in succession the cultivated area was the largest on record: it exceeded the figure for the previous year by 314,006 acres, or nearly one per cent., and the figure for 1899-1900 by no less than 2,689,674 acres or 8 per cent. Muttra shows a decrease of 5,626 acres, due to the predominance in that district of the kharíf, and in Naini Tál there was a decrease of 9,732 acres which, as the Director says, indicates a certain amount of depression. Elsewhere there was an increase, amounting in each of the divisions of Rohilkhand, Allahabad, Lucknow and Fyzabad to 50,000 acres or more. In Bundelkhand, owing to settlement operations, a complete comparison is unfortunately impossible; but by taking representative tahsíls for which figures are available, the Director has estimated that the cultivated area increased by about 2·2 per cent., equivalent to an increase of 70,000 acres in the whole tract; in the two preceding years the increase was at least 250,000 acres.

6. The crop area increased by 1,010,861 acres, or 2·4 per cent., of which 729,501 acres were contributed by Oudh and the divisions of Gorakhpur and Benares. In Saháranpur, Muzaffarnagar and Meerut, on the other hand—districts that were not reached by the storm in October—there was a substantial decrease, as well as in Fatehpur and Naini Tál, where there are large areas that cannot in any case be sown with rabi. The variations in the areas of individual crops are accounted for by the peculiar distribution of the rainfall. Thus it is not surprising to find that the kharíf area fell by 1,026,932 acres, while the rabi area increased by 2,021,767 acres. In the kharíf again, owing to the delay in the rains, the earlier sown crops gave place to those that can be sown later, and rice, cotton, small millets and arhar all occupied much smaller areas than in the preceding year; while the area of juár, bájra and pulses increased. The decline in the area under rice has now been continuous for some years, and compared with 1899-1900 amounts to 19 per cent. The area under sugarcane, which declined 62,000 acres, is the smallest on record since 1889-90. In the particular year under report some of the decrease must be attributed to the character of the season: and it is remarked, in Bijnor for example, that in the long-continued hot weather much of the cane dried up, and the land had to be ploughed and sown with another crop. For the continuous decline, however, it is necessary to seek some other cause, and the Director finds it in the persistent low prices of sugar and the favourable results of other crops. That a very considerable change is in progress is plain from the figures published of "area and yield," which show that since 1898-99 the area under cane has declined from 1,227,881 to 1,070,606 acres, while wheat has risen from 6,348,688 to 7,884,970 acres; and in view of the great importance of the subject in districts where sugar is largely grown, it would be interesting to know what are the effects of the substitution of other crops. In the rabi the results of the October storm were to delay sowings and at the same time to make available much land of an inferior kind that can only be sown in a wet autumn. To the first result is due a falling off in the area of gram, to the second a large extension of the inferior rabi crops. It is remarkable, however, that nearly half the increase was under wheat (nearly 900,000 acres) and poppy (50,000 acres). The continued expansion in wheat is specially noted by the Director as a clear proof of the prosperity of the provinces.

7. The outturn of the crops can only be stated in very general terms. As pointed out last year a good crop is under-estimated, because there is a reluctance to admit that the outturn is normal. On the other hand, the Director adds, it is difficult to estimate the extent of sudden injury such as befell the kharíf in the year under report. The district results, however, are sufficient at least to show, as might have been expected, that the kharíf was poorer than in the previous year, but that the rabi was at least as good. In the kharíf some of the earlier sown crops suffered from the delay in the rains. During August and September those that were sown later came on with exceptional rapidity, and it was hoped that the juár, bájra and pulses would be much above the normal; but the promise of a fine harvest was ruined by the October storm. Rice on the whole was a very fair crop, and even juár, bájra and the small millets are returned as giving for the whole provinces an 80 per cent. yield compared with 85 to 95 per cent. last year; the outturn of maize and cotton is given as 75 per cent. and of the autumn pulses as 60 per cent. compared with 80 and 85 per cent. It is probable, however, as already suggested, that these percentages are too high, and the Director calls special attention to the case of cotton, the yield of which according to his correspondents was 60 per cent. instead of 75; it appears from district reports also that this crop suffered severely. On a comparison of results it is clear that the four western divisions did better than the four divisions to the east. Rice was much the same everywhere, but under all the other crops there is a marked difference. Among the eastern divisions, on the other hand, Benares was the best; and Gorakhpur and Fyzabad, where the rainfall was exceptionally heavy, showed the worst results. In the last-named divisions even on the published returns the kharíf was not more than an eight-anna crop; and it is remarkable that in the district of Fyzabad, where the estimates were carefully checked, the outturn of maize was reported to be only 50 per cent., of juár and small millets 25 per cent. and of pulses 10 per cent.

Relatively to the previous year the divisional results are much the same. It was observed last year that the general outturn did not vary much throughout the provinces, but that it was poorer in Gorakhpur than in other divisions and exceptionally good in Meerut and Rohilkhand. The advantage is still with the west of the provinces. The rainfall was most normal, the defect in June and July and the subsequent excess being least marked in Meerut, and it is in that division accordingly that the results of the year are found to be equal, if not superior; to the results of its predecessor. In every other division the results are poorer; but the stages of inferiority are clearly marked, being least in Agra and Rohilkhand, somewhat greater in Allahabad and Benares, and at a maximum in Fyzabad and Gorakhpur. The kharíf in Kumaun appears to have been good, and the outturn of mandua, which is the staple food of the poorer classes, was very much above the normal.

8. In the rabi the conditions were altogether different, as the October rain, which damaged the kharíf, not only allowed an exceptional area to be sown, but provided a store of moisture which scarcely needed replenishing; thus the presence or absence of winter rains appears to have had little effect. In the circumstances, indeed, there was nothing so much to be feared as a wet season: and Mr. Moreland has remarked that the continuance of cloudy weather at the end of February and beginning of March induced a rapid spread of rust on cereals; fortunately, however, the crops by that time were far advanced and the resulting loss was not great.

For some reason the crops appear to have been somewhat better in the centre of the provinces (Allahabad, Agra, Lucknow and Fyzabad) than in the extreme east or west. On a comparison with the previous year again, the four western divisions, including Allahabad, show an improvement, while in the eastern divisions, where the outturn in 1902-1903 was quite exceptionally good, there was some falling off. All round, however, there can be no doubt that the rabi was excellent. The outturn of wheat and barley was 90 per cent. compared with 95 per cent. in the previous year, of oilseeds 95 per cent. Arhar was poor in Meerut and Gorakhpur, but on the whole it gave an 85 per cent. yield and was very much better than in the preceding year. Cane had suffered in some districts from the long hot weather, but the outturn was 85 per cent. of the normal compared with 80 per cent. in the previous year. The only crop that really was not suited by the season was gram: perhaps because it was sown too late or in too cold a seed bed, it seemed to be peculiarly susceptible to the attacks of insects, and in many of the districts of Oudh half the crop was destroyed.

9. The monsoon of 1904 was much earlier than the monsoons of recent years, and for about two months the rain was incessant and in places excessive. Unfortunately also it ceased in places too soon, but in the third week of October there was a storm which did much good. The Director reports that the three western divisions and the whole of Oudh had a satisfactory yield, but the other divisions were somewhat less fortunate. Bundelkhand suffered both from excessive rainfall, and for the most part from the premature cessation of the monsoon, and considerable remissions of revenue were found to be necessary.

§ 10.—Hailstorms, floods and other calamities.

10. The year was not so free from serious calamity as its predecessor. The heavy rain in the autumn of 1903 caused floods in several of the eastern districts, and in places a good deal of damage was done to property. Generally speaking from the revenue point of view the damage done was fully made up by the spring crops; but in part of Bánda, where bájra and cotton were not more than a six-anna crop, Rs. 26,245 of revenue and in one tahsíl of the Jhánsi district Rs. 2,792 were remitted.

In February and March also there were some severe hailstorms in Bundelkhand, in Bulandshahr and Aligarh. Bánda and Hamírpur escaped with little damage, but in Jhánsi Rs. 2,755 and in Jalaun Rs. 9,626 had to be remitted. In the Meerut division the remissions amounted to Rs. 2,948 and suspensions to Rs. 2,377.

§ 11.—Prices.

11. The question of prices was carefully examined last year, and it was shown that a remarkable fall had been going on, which took prices back to the level of 15 or 20 years before. In continuation of what was then said, it is sufficient to remark that during the year under report the downward tendency continued. The fall was most marked in the case of barley, which was about three seers cheaper all through the year: gram and rice on the other hand varied very little; generally each kind of grain was cheaper each quarter than in the corresponding quarter of the previous year, but the differences at the end of the year were slight.

An examination of the figures for this year as in previous years seems to show that prices are very sensitive to local influences: thus a fall in the price of gram at the time of harvest was confined to Allahabad and the three western divisions, while in Oudh, where this crop was severely damaged, there was a rise. It is interesting, therefore, to compare the history of prices by divisions. At the beginning of the year the kharíf grains were cheapest in Allahabad and Fyzabad, dearest in Gorakhpur and Meerut. The fall in December, after the harvest, was most marked in Meerut and Rohilkhand, and smallest in Benares and Fyzabad, so much so that (except for rice) at the end of the year these grains were actually cheapest in Meerut, and dearest in Fyzabad and Benares. At the beginning of the year the price of wheat, barley and gram was lowest in Oudh, and highest in Meerut and Benares: the fall at harvest (June 1904) was greatest in Allahabad, and at the end of the year the rabi staples were cheapest in Rohilkhand. It is unnecessary to go into further detail. These general results agree with what has been said about seasons and crops, and show that the year was more favourable to the west than to the east of the provinces.

§§ 12—13.—Holdings and rental statistics.

12. These statistics, which used to be printed as an appendix to the Board's report, were transferred two years ago to the report on the operations of the department of Land Records and Agriculture, but it has now been decided to restore them to this report. They have been supplied by the Director, who has forwarded a note discussing the figures.

The first noticeable feature, as he points out, is the continued expansion of the total area included in holdings, a result of favourable seasons which is most marked in Oudh, but is to be seen also in all the divisions of Agra except Kumaun.

Class.	Area in acres.	Percentage (approximate of total).
Sír	3,723,714	13
Khudkásht	2,506,865	9
Rent-free grants	348,600	1¼
Permanent tenure-holders and fixed-rate tenants	706,626	2½
Ex-proprietary tenants	299,511	1
Occupancy tenants	9,156,700	33
Non-occupancy tenants on 12 years or more	3,551,884	13
Non-occupancy tenants on 7 years' leases	410,115	1½
Ditto ditto others ...	7,157,751	25½
Total ...	27,861,766	...

The distribution of the area of holdings in Agra as shown in the margin is, briefly, that landholders cultivate (or, in the case of sír, sublet) 22 per cent. of the whole and have granted 1½ per cent. free of rent. Practically half the area is held by fully protected tenants, including in this term the permanent tenure-holders and fixed-rate tenants of the eastern districts, ex-proprietary tenants, recorded occupancy tenants, and those tenants who have held for twelve years or more but whose occupancy rights have not yet been formally recorded. The area held under long leases is relatively very small, and the balance, one quarter of the whole, is held by tenants with the minimum of protection afforded by the law.

The changes that occur during a single year are as a rule too small to affect the distribution over the whole province, and they are mainly due to periodical revision of records. Thus the sír area naturally decreases with the growth of ex-proprietary rights, but the revision of records in Aligarh and Pilibhít has resulted in large transfers from khudkásht to sír, so that this head shows an increase for the province as a whole; khudkásht increased in most districts with the extension of cultivation, but the new record of sír just mentioned results in a decrease in the khudkásht area of the province. The increase in ex-proprietary rights is normal. There is a relatively large apparent decrease under the permanent tenures, which is due to wrong returns from a few districts last year. Recorded occupancy rights naturally decrease from year to year as there is no regular machinery for recording these rights as they arise; but revision of records in certain districts has increased the provincial total by over a quarter of a million acres. The question of the area protected by long leases will be considered in a subsequent chapter, and for the present it is sufficient to note that the Director's figures, being for a different period, cannot agree with the figures in statement XXD. In future it will probably be sufficient to compare the returns for successive agricultural years, and the separate appendix at present prescribed for long leases may be abolished.

In Oudh the classification of holdings is simpler, and there are no questions of special interest arising from the figures. The distribution of the area is given on the margin. There have been few marked changes during the year, but the returns received from Gonda (after the interruption due to settlement operations) result in a decrease in khudkásht and a corresponding increase in tenants' land, which has been further increased by extended cultivation.

Sír	471,927	5
Khudkásht	539,066	5
Rent-free grants ...	234,725	2
Under-proprietors ...	439,470	4½
Ex-proprietary and occupancy tenants	125,449	1½
Other tenants	7,957,301	82
Total...	9,767,938	...

13. The rental figures for the provinces do not call for a detailed discussion, but a few words may be said regarding the proportion of the demand that is returned as collected. In Oudh, where the collections are recorded with a close approach to accuracy, 95 per cent. of the demand is shown as collected, as compared with 98 per cent. in the previous year. The Director thinks that the seasons were slightly less favourable, and adds that this year there were very few arrears to collect, as practically all outstandings had been cleared off during the preceding years. In Agra, on the other hand, the record of collections is the most unsatisfactory part of the whole series of agricultural statistics, and the fact that the proportion returned as collected is 90 per cent., or the same as in the previous (and more favourable) year, indicates only that some slight progress is being made towards greater accuracy in the record. The whole question of the rental returns for the Benares division, which show as usual a much lower percentage of collections than the rest of the province, is under consideration.

Two changes, it may be observed, have been made in the forms of the appendices; the column showing corrected rent-roll has been omitted, as it was of no practical value, and land held by tenants on which no rent has been fixed has been separated from land held free of rent by grant from the landholder.

Chapter II.—FINANCIAL.

§ 14.—Total demand and collections.

14. The total demand from all sources of income during the year of report was Rs. 8,57,71,941 compared with Rs. 8,44,84,950 in the previous year; but, as explained in subsequent paragraphs, the amount actually capable of realization was only Rs. 8,32,28,152, of which Rs. 8,30,94,925 were collected.

§§ 15–17.—Land revenue.

15. Regarding the collection of land revenue there is very little to say. The statements at the end of this report, however (appendices I—III), not only give a wrong impression of the proportion of collections, but they exaggerate the real demand. What has happened is that numerous reductions have been granted, to many of which it has not been desirable to give immediate effect in the revenue roll.

The most important of these are the summary reductions in Bundelkhand, which, if given effect to in the usual way, would have been a direct inducement for creditors to foreclose, and, till the passing of the Alienation of Land Act, were treated therefore as suspensions. As these reductions, amounting annually to more than 7 lakhs, were granted from the revenue year 1901-1902, they account for more than 14 lakhs nominally under suspension in the arrear demand, and 7 lakhs in the current demand. The reductions, it may be observed, are being fully justified by the revisions of settlement now being made. It was necessary to give relief only when the revenue was substantially in excess of half assets, and it is natural, therefore, to find that the new revenues are below the revenues as summarily reduced. But the difference is not great and the result is to prove not only the necessity of the relief, but the suitability of the methods by which it was distributed. The ordinary reductions, that is the reductions made in order that the demand might represent a fair assessment at half assets, have now been removed from the roll; but the special reductions, being a personal concession made to old proprietors as a set-off against their losses in recent years, are still liable to be withdrawn if a transfer takes place, and must continue to be shown as suspensions.

In Jhánsi a further adjustment is on account of progressive revenues falling due under the terms of the current settlement. In the case of villages that had been granted a reduction it was obviously impossible that they should be imposed, and as a revision under the Bundelkhand rules was very shortly to begin, the Government directed their general suspension.

16. Orders affecting the revenue in a smaller degree were found also to be necessary in Bulandshahr, Aligarh, Muttra and Naini Tál. In Bulandshahr a number of large estates in which assets were concealed or the tenants were rack-rented have, since the time of Mr. Stoker's revision, continued under a series of short-term settlements. In 1903-1904 these estates again came under revision, and the Board are glad to say that a satisfactory solution has been reached. Long-term leases have been granted, rents, where necessary, have been reduced, and, in all but a very few cases, reversion to normal conditions has become possible. As a consequence the revenue which, under the system of short-term settlements, was a full demand on an excessive rental, has been reduced.

In the three other districts the changes are due to deterioration. In Aligarh a tract was noticed in last year's report in which the water-level has sunk, and during a series of dry years the villages have suffered severely. Last year considerable suspensions of revenue on this account were reported, and in the year under report Rs. 13,000 of the suspended arrears had to be remitted. In Muttra the term of regular settlement which expires in 1905—1908 has been extended for 15 years. But it was known that the old assessment in places was very high, and a promise was made that the case of villages requiring relief would be investigated. During the year under report, accordingly, proposals for two tahsíls were submitted, and summary reductions amounting to Rs. 6,282 were sanctioned. The revenue of the Káshipur pargana in the district of Naini Tál also has been under consideration. Like other parts of the Tarai, this pargana has deteriorated during the last 10 years; cultivated area and population have fallen off greatly, and in many villages it was found that the revenue was out of all proportion to the assets. In October 1902, therefore, Government sanctioned reductions of Rs. 8,028. In June 1903 a further reduction of Rs. 3,218 was granted in villages the settlement of which had been annulled for arrears of revenue. In the latter case the villages were then restored to their proprietors, but the same considerations applied as in the case of Bundelkhand, and it was ordered that the difference between the old and the reduced demand should be treated as a suspension pending the revision of settlement. Subsequently, the Deputy Commissioner submitted proposals for other villages, but the Board thought that, as the time of revision was drawing near, the necessities of the case would be met by postponements, which, therefore, the Deputy Commissioner was empowered to grant to the extent of Rs. 5,982. As stated in chapter IV, the pargana was, during the year under report, brought under settlement, and the suspensions and postponements will now, where necessary, be remitted.

17. The demand and collections can now be exhibited most clearly in a tabular form. As shown in paragraph 16 of last year's report, the revenue on the roll on 1st October 1903 was Rs. 6,43,04,398. To this must be added no less than Rs. 1,55,450 as revenue not on the roll. It was impossible for the settlement officers concerned to report and obtain sanction to all the revised revenues before the beginning of the year, and enhancements of Rs. 70,460 in Etah, Rs. 30,977 in Mainpuri and Rs. 27,350 in Azamgarh had, therefore, to be shown as revenue not on the roll; Rs. 10,491 also were added after the beginning of the year for villages annually assessed in Pilibhit. The account then stands as follows :—

	Arrear.			Current.
	Rs.			Rs.
Gross demand	14,75,470			6,44,59,848
Deduct—			Deduct—

		14,55,855	Progressive revenues in Jhánsi suspended	1,655
			Miscellaneous items ...	7,343
					8,20,589
Real demand	19,615		... ...		6,36,39,259
Collected	17,978		... ...		6,35,86,591
Balance	1,637		... ...		52,668

This balance further included Rs. 45,260 remitted and Rs. 2,377 suspended on account of the damage to crops described in paragraph 10, and Rs. 1,663 postponed, chiefly in Rae Bareli, so that the actual amount for collection within the year was only Rs. 6,36,09,574. The percentage of collections to the real demand was 99·91, to the amount for collection 99·99, and the realizable balance at the end of the year included only Rs. 5,005 ordinary, and Rs. 4,040 suspended or postponed, arrears. Of the ordinary arrears Rs. 2,484 belong to the Hamírpur district, where the balance is due to the inquiry into the withdrawal of summary reductions in the case of certain transfers being terminated too late in the year for the demand as ascertained to be recovered.

§ 18.—Alterations in land revenue on the roll.

18. The growth of revenue on the roll which in recent years has averaged 6½ lakhs was checked by special causes in the year under report. Revision of settlement in Mainpuri, Etah and Azamgarh, and to a less degree in Bijnor and Almora, resulted in an increase, but there was a diminution in Cawnpore of Rs. 4,878 and in Allahabad of no less than Rs. 73,549 : so that the net result was an addition of only Rs. 49,444. Progressive enhancements brought in Rs. 88,401, of which Rs. 47,506 were in Meerut and most of the balance in Oudh. Additions other than those due to regular revision of settlement amounted to Rs. 84,034. The items of which this sum is composed are distributed very equally over a large number of districts, and it is probable that the majority of them are due to a marked improvement in riverain lands which, the Board has noticed, has led to a general increase in quinquennial assessments. There is, on the other hand, a decrease from causes other than regular revision of settlement amounting to Rs. 5,60,007. The nature of most of these reductions has already been explained in paragraphs 15 and 16. Considerable sums were taken off the roll in Bulandshahr and Muttra, but the bulk of the decrease is accounted for in Bundelkhand, where the ordinary reductions, removed from the roll in accordance with G. O. No. 149/I—716F., dated 15th January 1904, amounted to nearly five lakhs of rupees. As a result of these changes the revenue on the roll was reduced by Rs. 3,38,128.

§ 19.—Malikana.

19. The demand was collected, all but Rs. 2. The amount for disbursement, including arrears, was Rs. 2,32,880, and payments amounted to Rs. 1,90,722, leaving a balance of Rs. 42,158 undisbursed, of which over Rs. 17,000 are in Gorakhpur and Rs. 9,000 in Allahabad.

§ 20.—Canal rates.

20. The period for which canal dues had to be recovered during the year under report extended from 1st April 1903 to 1st April 1904, and is the same, therefore, as that described in paragraph 4 of this report. The most important circumstances affecting the amount of irrigation were the delay in the arrival of the monsoon, the heavy rain in October and the scarcity of the winter rains. The first led to a decrease in the area under rice, the second resulted in the rabi being sown generally without paleo. But on the whole the seasons were favourable to irrigation, and the irrigated area was the highest that has ever been secured in an ordinary year. Further increases were due to the extension of the Mát branch and to increasing use of canal water on extensions in Fatehpur and Allahabad, which have not long been open. Finally, in Dehra Dún the rates were enhanced under notification No. 3008I., dated 17th September 1902, with effect from 1st April 1903. Thus the total demand for occupiers' rate for collection during the year, amounting to Rs. 77,08,625, was Rs. 3,58,563 above the demand of the previous year. In a few districts, such as Saháranpur and in the Rohilkhand division, there is a falling off which is due to the restriction of the rice area. Elsewhere there is a general increase. The Board are glad to see that the Betwa canal did very much better than in any previous year excepting the famine year of 1896-97: the popularity of canal irrigation is growing and the demand in Jalaun increased by Rs. 28,805.

As regards collections, Rs. 76,70,877, or 99·51 per cent., were realized, and of the balance, Rs. 30,039 being nominal, Rs. 7,709 remained to be collected, of which Rs. 7,196 were in the Allahabad division. The greater part (Rs. 5,541) of this is in the Jalaun district, where it is accounted for by the order of the Collector postponing collections in villages affected by hail pending the disposal of the question of remission, which was not effected by the Irrigation Department till the end of September. In Fatehpur the balance (Rs. 1,460) is due to the late receipt of corrected jamabandis. Owing to revision of settlement in Etah and Mainpuri there was a further decrease in owners' rate from Rs. 2,79,899 to Rs. 2,64,153.

21. The demand shown on account of the different cesses in appendices VII to XI was Rs. 1,08,30,504, but for the same reason as in the case of land revenue, and chiefly on account of reductions in Bundelkhand, a considerable sum was nominal. The real demand was Rs. 1,05,87,850, of which all but Rs. 4,263 were recovered. Of the balance Rs. 3,081 belongs to Mirzapur, where the Collector was under the impression that the new assessments of patwári rate required sanction and deferred collection.

During the year the revision of the patwári rate in the permanently-settled districts was completed. The term of the last settlement, which by Notification No. 1686A—I-505, dated 14th November 1889, was one of 15 years, expired on the 31st March 1904, and the revised assessment was introduced with effect from the 1st April 1904. The result has been an increase of Rs. 6,446 in Benares, Rs. 3,844 in Mirzapur, Rs. 8,709 in Jaunpur, Rs. 5,663 in Ghazipur, but a decrease of Rs. 2,698 in Ballia.

§ 22.—Advances under the Land Improvement Loans Act.

22. During the year under report large sums have again been advanced under this Act in Bundelkhand. In Bánda Rs. 25,680 were given, mainly for field embankments, against Rs. 28,943 in the previous year. In Allahabad special advances of Rs. 33,500 were given free of interest during the year, Rs. 23,500 representing the balance of the special grant of Rs. 50,000 sanctioned last year for masonry wells in pargana Arail, and Rs. 10,000 a special grant given for the construction and repair of embankments in tahsíl Meja. One hundred and nine wells were constructed in Arail, which appear generally to be successful, and it is a matter for regret that there is still very little inclination on the part of the zamíndárs to sink wells at their own expense. The total amount advanced in the Allahabad division was Rs. 79,542 as compared with Rs. 68,650 in the previous year. In Aligarh the need of pakka wells in the dry tracts of Iglás and Mursán necessitated advances of Rs. 13,430 compared with Rs. 7,134 in the previous year. Among other divisions the advances were largest in Lucknow (Rs. 10,790) and Agra (Rs. 8,835). The distribution by districts is curiously uneven. Thus in Lucknow three-fourths of the divisional total was advanced in Lucknow and Rae Bareli. In Fyzabad, Partábgarh accounts for Rs. 2,450 out of a divisional total of Rs. 3,834. In the district of Fyzabad advances decreased in the year of report, but the Deputy Commissioner is instituting inquiries with the Director of Land Records and Agriculture, which he hopes will increase the demand for taqávi for wells. Similarly in Benares and Rohilkhand advances were almost confined to Gházipur and Budaun. As the Board remarked last year, advances of this kind are not required everywhere; but it is evident from the returns that similar districts show considerable variations, and this result can only be ascribed to the idiosyncrasy of the district officer.

§ 23.—Advances under the Agriculturists' Loans Act.

23. In a year of prosperity and cheap prices it was natural to expect that advances under this Act would be few in number, but they actually increased from Rs. 81,986 to Rs. 1,24,421, or 51 per cent. Meerut, Rohilkhand and Benares are the only divisions in which advances decreased or were insignificant in amount. Elsewhere there was an increase which it is not altogether easy to account for. It is known that the increase in Bahraich from Rs. 610 to Rs. 6,659 was due to floods in August and September 1903 which necessitated liberal advances to tenants in the low lands bordering on the Sarju and Rapti. But no reason has been given for example in the Lucknow division for the increase from Rs. 12,350 to Rs. 18,403, and it is not plain why the Agra division should have required Rs. 13,572, while Meerut took only Rs. 2,290 and Rohilkhand Rs. 482. The Collector of Mainpuri, however, attributes a rise in his district to the damage done to the kharíf, and it is probable that this is the general explanation. From this point of view the advances were no more than a temporary accommodation which assisted the tenants in sowing a rabi which more than made up for their losses in the kharíf. The explanation certainly holds good in the Bundelkhand districts, where the bulk of the advances and much the greater part of the increase are to be accounted for. In Jhánsi the amount advanced was Rs. 12,903, or very much the same as in the previous year; in Hamírpur the amount increased from Rs. 11,223 to Rs. 15,435; but the figures are much the largest in Bánda, where the increase was from Rs. 10,287 to Rs. 29,991. It has been suggested that the results have been affected by a contraction of credit due to the Bundelkhand Acts. In certain directions the effect may have been to diminish credit, but not appreciably, the Board think, in transactions of the kind for which taqávi loans are required. That the increase was not common to all the districts is an argument in favour of this opinion, and Bánda, which shows the largest amount of advances, was precisely the district which required the largest remissions of revenue. The connection between taqávi advances and the character of the seasons is clearly established, and there can be no doubt, as the Commissioner says, that the variations are due to local causes.

§ 24.—Taqavi accounts.

24. The collections during the year under report on account of principal and interest under both Acts show a continued improvement, the demand having been collected in full in most districts. For instalments falling due before the close of the year the unrealized balance under Act XIX was Rs. 5,241 and under Act XII Rs. 4,398, of which Rs. 3,046 and Rs. 2,585 were in the Allahabad division. By districts they were considerable under Act XIX only in Jalaun (Rs. 1,424) and Naini Tál Rs. (1,000), under Act XII in Bánda (Rs. 1,321) and in Basti (Rs. 865). The interest balances were Rs. 11,033 under Act XIX and Rs. 2,870 under Act XII, about half of which belonged to the Allahabad division. These balances include interest calculated up to 30th September 1904, which was not recoverable during the year; but the outstandings in Muttra (Rs. 2,292) and Fatehpur (Rs. 1,126) are abnormal and ought to have been explained.

The following statement shows the result of the transactions under the Land Improvement and Agriculturists' Loans Acts from 1898-99 to 1903-1904 :—

Including the outstanding balances under both the Acts at the beginning of 1898-99 the total advances made amount to Rs. 42,74,537. The collections and remissions during the period amount to Rs. 37,67,674. The total unrealized balance on the 30th September 1904 was, therefore, Rs. 5,06,863. The total demand for interest during this period was Rs. 5,07,080. The collections and remissions amounted to Rs. 4,93,177, leaving outstandings amounting to Rs. 13,903. The total amount remitted from the commencement of the year 1898-99 to the end of 1903-1904 is Rs. 4,26,181 on account of principal and Rs. 60,925 on account of interest. If the sums remitted are deducted from the amount due for interest and the remainder treated as recoverable, the net profit to Government on the working of the last six years has been Rs. 19,974. This result is due to the remissions, which again diminished the interest demand, and is attributable, therefore, to the years of scarcity in which large advances had to be made which afterwards could not be recovered.

§ 25.—State properties.

25. There were 464 estates under the Board's supervision at the close of the previous year, to which 28 were added during the year under report, bringing the total number under management up to 492. The total current demand for rent amounted to Rs. 3,31,078* as compared with Rs. 3,27,955 in the previous year. Including arrears the total demand was Rs. 3,43,953, of which Rs. 3,32,355, or 97 per cent., were collected, as compared with 93 per cent. in the preceding year. In the Holagarh and Khargapur estates in the Allahabad district 98 per cent. of the gross demand was realized against 93 per cent. in the previous year. Of the outstanding balance of Rs. 11,598, Rs. 7,218 were recoverable. After credits to land revenue and rates there was a net income of Rs. 1,98,129, of which Rs. 53,690 were spent on establishment, contingencies and improvements, leaving a net profit of Rs. 1,44,439 as compared with Rs. 1,53,586 in the previous year. The figures for special State properties in the Kumaun division and the Dúdhi estate in the south of Mirzapur form the subject of separate reports.

§ 26.—Miscellaneous land revenue.

26. The increase in the current demand from Rs. 1,46,320 to Rs. 1,62,202† was due chiefly to the rise in the receipts from the Mirzapur stone quarries, which have more than doubled in the past seven years.

* For district details see statement XII. | † For district details see statement XIII.

§§ 27—28.—Coercive processes.

27. The number of processes employed in the collection of land revenue and other dues recoverable as land revenue compared with the numbers of the previous year is as follows:—

	1902-1903.	1903-1904.
	Rs.	Rs.
Writs of demand	26,627	20,700
Citations	2,163	6,753
Warrants	3,852	3,437
Attachments of moveable property	4,495	4,991
Ditto immoveable property ...	147	70
Transfers	7	29
Sales of immoveable property	1	1
Total ...	37,292	35,981

In the preceding year the process of citation was not familiar to tahsíldárs. It is now being recognised as more effective than the ordinary writ of demand and its use is extending everywhere, though it is still most common in Rohilkhand.

Taking writs of demand and citations together there was a very large decrease of 2,221 processes in Gorakhpur, and a smaller decrease in Rohilkhand and Benares; for the provinces as a whole the decrease was 1,337. The number of warrants fell off greatly in Rohilkhand and to a less extent in Agra and Benares. Attachments of moveable property, on the other hand, increased in these divisions as well as in Allahabad and Fyzabad, but decreased in Meerut, Gorakhpur and Lucknow.

In drawing any inference from the figures of this appendix, some caution is necessary. It is useless for instance to enter into any detailed comparison of district results, for these depend to a great extent on the idiosyncrasies of the district staff, and it is impossible to account for the peculiar variations in the number of warrants and attachments. Even in the same district it would be unsafe to base any conclusion on a comparison of successive returns. There has been an increase in the number of processes employed in Muttra, but it does not follow that the district is any less prosperous. A period of unfavourable seasons had led to a habit of unpunctuality in payment which, in view of the excellent rabi, the Collector determined to stop and the rise in the number of processes was the result. It is necessary, then, to take a broad view of the figures; but, if this is done, there can be no doubt that the inference is satisfactory. The number of processes has fallen year by year from 53,180 in 1898-1899 to 35,991 in the year under report. The number of processes against immoveable property is insignificant. Finally, it may be observed that while warrants were issued for the arrest of 3,437 defaulters, only 471 were actually detained in custody, and that while moveable property was attached in 4,991 cases, there were only 116 cases in which sale took place. These facts are an excellent proof of general prosperity.

28. There are two further matters in connection with processes to which reference may appropriately be made. The first is the use of writs of demand. The Commissioner of Gorakhpur reiterates his opinion that writs are issued merely in order to justify the maintenance of a separate staff, and it may be observed that the Collector of Basti attributes in part the decrease of the number of writs in his district to a reduction of staff. The matter deserves attention. Writs should be made effective, as the rules now prescribe, severer measures being promptly adopted, if they are not attended to, and care should of course be taken that extra establishment is not employed to serve unnecessary writs. The second matter is punctuality of payment and the use of irregular methods of collection. Dilatoriness in ordinary years is no kindness to the people, neither is the avoidance of legal processes. The Board are glad to accept the assurance of several Collectors that in their districts indirect coercion is not ordinarily exercised by their tahsildárs. But in some districts the case admittedly is otherwise, and in practice not only the process-servers, but most of the tahsíl staff are employed in pursuing defaulters to their villages. The system is demoralizing and oppressive. In view of the extensive powers conferred by the law it cannot be necessary, and even if the result should be a temporary excess in the number of the severer processes, the Board will see that it is stopped. Meantime the bearing of these remarks on the figures here dealt with may be made clear. "There is nothing," to quote from the Collector of Muttra, "that conduces so much to the use of irregular methods of collection as the fear that tahsíldárs entertain of adverse criticism for utilizing too many processes. The return of coercive processes becomes worth the paper on which it is written only when tahsíldárs are made to understand that a cheap reputation for efficiency is not to be earned by faking the returns, and that the district officer is prepared to support them if a free use of processes is not exaggerated into an abuse." These remarks have the entire approval of the Board, and it is on these principles that they would examine the statistics.

§ 29.—Estates under direct management.

29. The number of estates under attachment has, like the number of coercive processes, been rapidly diminishing for some years. It decreased from 2,472 in 1899-1900 to 1,843 in 1900-1901 and to 1,156 in 1901-1902. In 1902-1903 there was an abrupt fall to 227, and last year the number was 145, including 62 estates remaining from the previous year. Out of these 145 estates, 103 were released and 42 remained under management at the close of the year. The rental demand in these 42 estates amounted to Rs. 55,643, of which Rs. 46,921, or 84·32 per cent., were collected, and Rs. 25,798 were paid as land revenue and cesses. The cost of management was Rs. 10,290. Of the 83 estates attached during the year, 70 came under attachment for arrears of revenue and the remainder under sections 45 and 115, Act III, 1901. There were three estates under direct management after annulment of settlement, one of which was released during the year.

Chapter III.—RENT LAW LITIGATION.

30. As an index of the working of the Tenancy Act, the returns of litigation for the province of Agra continue to be of special importance. The questions involved demand the most careful attention, and since the last report was written inquiries have been made and statistics collected to show if possible the direction in which matters are tending. It is much to be regretted that the results continue to be unfavourable, and that the prospect of the ultimate success of the Act appears to be more doubtful the more the subject is considered.

§ 31.—Suits for arrears of rent.

31. The number of suits for arrears of rent continues to rise, and now stands at 128,319, or 10 per cent. above the figure of the previous year; the increase is largest in Allahabad (16 per cent.) and in Agra (13 per cent.), but the differences between divisions are not very great. By districts the rise is most marked in Aligarh, Farrukhabad and Benares, while the only districts that show a substantial decrease are Meerut, Muttra, Agra, Mirzapur and Gorakhpur. On a comparison with the average of the years 1895-96 to 1898-99, which has been taken as the normal before the agitation consequent on the introduction of the Tenancy Bill, the increase is now 24 per cent. for the province as a whole; it is about 40 per cent. in the divisions of Meerut, Agra and Gorakhpur, about 20 per cent. in Rohilkhand and Benares, and only in Allahabad is there a slight decrease of 3 per cent. In a few districts a special explanation is given. Thus in Farrukhabad the increase is attributed to attempts to secure enhancements after settlement, in Bareilly to enhancements not paid which had to be sued for, and in Azamgarh, to suits instituted to make good claims which were in dispute at attestation. The Commissioner of Allahabad thinks that the variations depend on the number of cases at any time in which the recovery of rent will be barred if not sued for; but this explanation merely emphasizes the fact that the extent of arrears is not determined by the conditions of a single season. The Commissioner of Meerut says rent suits multiplied before the new Act was thought of, and attributes the continued increase to the same causes that have led to the development of litigation of all kinds during the last 50 years. This observation, however, ignores the character of the seasons as affecting the rent-paying capacity of the tenants. It is natural to suppose that after a series of good seasons suits for arrears should fall off. This has been the case in Oudh, and it is reasonable to infer that in Agra the increase is in some way a result of recent legislation. This subject can be examined conveniently in the following paragraph.

§ 32.—Ejectment for arrears of rent.

32. Last year the number of applications under section 59 was 14 per cent. above the normal of 1895-96 to 1898-99, the increase being 44 or 45 per cent. in Meerut and Agra, 6 to 12 per cent. in Rohilkhand, Allahabad and Gorakhpur, while there was a small decrease in Benares. This year there is a further increase of 9 per cent., the addition being confined, curiously enough, to the three western divisions, where it is about 20 per cent., while Allahabad, Benares and Gorakhpur show a slight falling off. By districts the changes appear to be almost haphazard; thus Etah, Etáwah and Farrukhabad report large increases, while there is a distinct diminution in Muttra and Agra; in Benares and Gházipur again the number is going up, but in Jaunpur and Azamgarh there is a decrease. These applications are still much more numerous in the Benares division than elsewhere.

The view generally expressed is that the increase in the number of suits for arrears of rent is due to their growing use as a means to ejectment, and that this again is an effect of the Tenancy Act which allows applications for ejectment on the ground of arrears against non-occupancy as well as occupancy tenants. This view, however, is only in part supported by the figures. The Board this year have had a return made showing the areas from which the ejectment of occupancy and non-occupancy tenants respectively has been ordered. The divisional variations are great, the percentage of non-occupancy area from which ejectment has taken place in Allahabad being 27 per cent. of the total area and in Meerut 14, while in other divisions it varies from 4 to 9 per cent. The number of districts again in which this area is anything but inconsiderable is very small : Aligarh with 1,017 acres is easily first, and it is remarkable to find that Bánda and Hamírpur come next with 736 and 646 acres. Excluding Moradabad, where the figures are not available, it appears that for the province as a whole out of a total area of 44,624 acres the non-occupancy area affected was only 4,624 acres or about 10 per cent. At the outside, the increase in suits for arrears, attributable directly to the Tenancy Act cannot exceed this figure, and is in all probability considerably less. There must also have been a substantial increase in the number of applications against occupancy tenants, for which it is difficult to account. It is true that the provisions of the new Act are slightly more stringent than those previously in force, but it is not clear why these should have had any marked effect, and the Board can only suggest that the increase is due to the existing antagonism between landlord and tenant being quickened by the new Act. This view finds some support in the fact that the increase is greatest in the western districts, where the tension is most acute. What is evident is that so far ejectment for arrears is not used to any considerable extent as a substitute for the ordinary ejectment by suit of tenants-at-will. This circumstance has been ascribed to ignorance of the law, but the explanation cannot with any confidence be accepted. Ejectment for arrears has no doubt the advantage of being an absolute break in the tenancy, but it is a process that cannot be directed with any certainty, as the landholder's intention may be frustrated by the tenant paying up the arrears.

Out of 33,082 cases for disposal ejectment was ordered in 7,496 : the numbers last year were 30,963 and 7,747. The results depend on the ability of tenants to discharge their obligations, and in the present case are generally considered to indicate the continuance of good seasons. Roughly it may be said that in every fourth suit for arrears an application was filed for ejectment, and in 6 per cent. of the rent suits ejectment was ordered. The Collector of Sháhjahánpur remarks that he has noticed a tendency among tahsíldárs to be too rigid in their application of this section, and as the Board pointed out last year, this is a matter that will require to be very carefully watched. It is noticeable that conditional ejectments are practically confined to the divisions of Meerut and Agra.

33. The number of these suits has risen from 7,619 in 1900-1901 and 7,411 in 1901-1902 to 7,927 last year and 8,657 in 1903-1904. It might naturally have been supposed that with the introduction of the provisions of section 184 of the Revenue Act the number would decline, and the subject deserves consideration. The Board are inclined to accept the explanation given in Mainpuri, that the increased use of proceedings for recovery of arrears of revenue is due to greater stringency under the impulse of the new legislation in enforcing the responsibilty of the lambardár, and that the whole of this increase has not been taken up by the summary procedure of section 184. The explanation accords fairly with the detailed figures. Suits are most numerous in Meerut, in Bijnor, Moradabad and Aligarh, and in Sháhjahánpur and Saháranpur. The divisions of Meerut, Agra and Rohilkhand return from 14 to 20 per cent. more cases than in the previous year; in Benares the percentage of increase is 15 per cent., but the number of cases is insignificant, and in Allahabad and Gorakhpur there is a decrease. It has to be remarked, however, that in Oudh also the number has fallen off.

§ 34.—Suits for resumption.

34. These cases require some mention, as the number, though still small, has increased 62 per cent. For this increase the improvement of the law on the subject is no doubt responsible, but so far its provisions have not been made use of to any great extent except in Benares, a division which accounts for 335 out of the total increase of 436 cases.

§ 35.—Enhancements.

35. The number of enhancement suits has increased 51 per cent. The increase is general in the Meerut division (49 per cent.) where it is largest in the Muzaffarnagar district. It is quite exceptional in the Agra division (161 per cent.). These two divisions account for 2,494 out of a total increase of 3,062 cases, and the only districts elsewhere in which the rise has been great are Sháhjahánpur and Allahabad. In Aligarh and Farrukhabad the explanation is no doubt that the settlements have recently been closed, and in Agra the extension of settlement for 10 years may be the cause. In Bulandshahr the increase is not real, as 116 cases filed because of holidays on the 2nd October 1903 properly belong to the previous year. Still the fact remains that in the two years 1902-1903 and 1903-1904, 15,058, or on an average 7,529 suits, were filed against an average in 1895-96 to 1898-99 of 6,788; and when it is remembered that a suit can now be instituted against any number of tenants holding under the same landholder in the same mahál, it is certain that the increase must be very large. It does not appear that the number of enhancement suits is now, as in the days before the passing of the Tenancy Act, an incident in a general campaign against tenant right, for the figures of the year under report, which on the whole are 33 per cent. above the normal, show a decrease of 18 per cent. in Rohilkhand and only an insignificant increase in the Meerut division. The Collector of Muttra ascribes the general features of the litigation in his district, which include a large increase of enhancement suits, to favourable seasons and the extension of the canal. Similar reasons are given, though, so far as the canal is concerned, with much less cogency in Muzaffarnagar, and it is natural to suppose that landholders are taking advantage of prosperous times to work up, as far as possible, the rents of the tenants who are protected against arbitrary enhancements.

§ 36.—Surrenders.

36. The number of surrenders has fallen from 10,376 to 9,522. It is therefore very nearly the same as in 1901-1902, and represents only a fraction of the number in any other year since 1895-96. The changes since the previous year are important only in Allahabad and Rohilkhand. In Allahabad there is a decrease of 1,966 cases, chiefly in Bánda (1,239 cases) and Hamírpur (547 cases); and as these are the districts which last year showed an abnormal increase, the falling off is natural. It is still remarkable however, as the Commissioner points out, that these two districts should have between them 1,786 cases, while Jhánsi returns only 27 and Jalaun 15. In Rohilkhand there has been an increase of 1,341 cases and in Moradabad the number of cases has risen from 207 in 1901-1902, and 567 in 1902-1903, to 1,286 in the year under report. In other divisions the only large increase is in Aligarh.

As an index to the prosperity of tenants the figures are most interesting in the Allahabad division. In Bundelkhand, as the Board remarked two years ago, the number of surrenders depends chiefly on the condition of the tenants who can always get land when they want it, and do not hesitate to give up what they do not require. Though it is remarkable, therefore, that the number of surrenders in previous years was as large, and the subsequent diminution as strongly marked, in the doáb districts as in the districts of Bundelkhand, it is most satisfactory to note that for the division as a whole the number in the year under report was only 2,901 compared with the average (in 1896-97 to 1898-99) of 13,150. In other divisions the number of surrenders depends rather on the pressure brought to bear on tenants by their landholders. In Aligarh it is said that surrenders were effected with a view to enhancement, and in Moradabad there can be no doubt that they have been forced on the tenants, in many cases, the Collector says, by threats of criminal charges.

§ 37.—Ejectments on other grounds.

37. At first sight the statistics of this subject appear to be startling, for the appendices show that the number of suits for ejectment increased from 69,885 in 1902-1903 to 90,520 in the year under report. The actual results are disappointing, but they are by no means so serious as these figures would show. The fact is that the 30th September and 1st October 1903 were public holidays and on the 2nd October no less than 10,517 suits were filed which belong properly to the revenue year 1902-1903. The corrected figures are therefore for 1902-1903, 80,402, and for 1903-1904, 80,003 cases, and wherever the number of institutions is compared, these figures will be adhered to in the following discussion.

For the sake of clearness it is essential to display the figures for the normal period 1895-96 to 1898-99, for the period of agitation before the passing of the Act, and for each year since the Act became law, in a tabular form as follows :—

On a comparison with the normal the number of suits in the previous year had increased by more than 100 per cent. in Allahabad and Rohilkhand; in Agra and Gorakhpur there was an increase of about a third, and in Meerut and Benares there was a decrease. The relative position of divisions has been little disturbed by the results of another year's working. The number of suits has increased by 22 to 26 per cent. in Meerut, Benares and Gorakhpur: it has fallen off 6 to 13 per cent. in Allahabad, Agra and Rohilkhand. But compared with the normal the excess is still much the largest in Allahabad and Rohilkhand; Meerut and Benares still show a decrease, while in Gorakhpur the excess has just doubled. For the provinces as a whole the number of institutions is still 38 per cent. higher than the normal before the passing of the Act, and the question has again to be asked why it shows no tendency to decrease.

38. From the character of the ejectments there is little encouragement to be gained. In the first place it is to be remarked that out of a total of 90,520 suits no less than 89,503 were under section 58(a) for the eviction of year-to-year tenants, and the number of suits in which ejectment was sought on other grounds is insignificant. It is doubtful, as has been suggested, whether the landholders as a body are acquainted with the provisions of the law, and the fact that out of 657 suits brought under section 58(b) and (c), 424 were instituted in the Meerut division, where the provisions of the Act are best understood, lends colour to the suggestion. A large increase in the number of suits brought under section 57(d) is not to be anticipated until after the Act has been in force for five years, that being the period for which subletting by right of occupancy and ex-proprietary tenants has been declared legal. It is clear in any case that the general character of the ejectments has not been altered by the new law. Nor is it possible to maintain the suggestion made last year that the results are due in any great degree to the ejectment of sub-tenants. This is one of the points on which the Board have called for statistics (appendix XXC). On the basis of the area from which ejectments in 1902-1903 actually took effect, the percentage of sub-tenants to the total number ejected was 11, of tenants who were also proprietors 5, and of ordinary tenants-in-chief 84. As this is the first occasion on which statistics of this kind have been prepared, it is impossible to say whether ejectments of sub-tenants have increased as a consequence of the new law. Probably an increase has taken place, and the hypothesis is supported by the fact that the percentage of ejectments of sub-tenants is largest (27 per cent.) in Benares, which is the very division in which the provisions relative to sub-letting should have the greatest effect. In any case, however, the percentage is small, and the fact remains that the great bulk of the ejectments are still directed, as they were no doubt under the old law, to getting rid of ordinary tenants-in-chief holding from year to year.

39. If, then, there is no diminution, but, on the contrary, an increase in the number of ejectments, and if the character of those ejectments is unaffected, the question arises what has become of the difficulties with which under the new Act the dispossession by suit of a year-to-year tenant has been surrounded? The substitution of suits for applications and the increased cost of the procedure will be referred to elsewhere. Undoubtedly the most important provision of the law in this respect is that an ejectment to be effective must be continued for at least a year, and the main practical question is how this provision is working. The figures that have been compiled for the second part of the new appendix (XXC) are, therefore, of great importance. It need not be pointed out that the preparation even of the form of such an appendix involves considerable difficulties. It would be interesting to know for example what becomes of the land from which a tenant is evicted—whether it is given to a relative of his or to a stranger, and still more so what becomes of the tenant after his eviction—whether he continues in fact to be a cultivator or is reduced to the status of a labourer. But such information could not be supplied without a degree of complexity in the return which it was necessary to avoid. The Board, therefore, drew up a return merely to show the class of tenants ejected and the legal effect of the ejectments, and it is only for these purposes that the figures should be used. It is not to be inferred, for example, that the tenants represented in the statistics given in column 12 are men who have given up agriculture altogether. Before this conclusion could be drawn, it would be necessary to ascertain that the area from which the tenant had been ejected represented his entire holding. All that the figures in this column can be taken to mean is that, so far as the patwári of the circle knows, the tenant has received no fresh land in lieu of that from which he has been ejected. Even as it stands the chances of error in the return are great, and though instructions were given that the figures should be carefully checked, they should not perhaps be accepted without a good deal of caution. If, however, there is no serious mistake, the result is to show that only 24 per cent. of the evicted tenants were readmitted to the whole or to a part of their previous holdings, and 12 per cent. were given new land by the landholders who ejected them. In other words in two-thirds of the cases the ejectment was under the law effective. From this result there are two conclusions to be drawn. The first affects the question which has been much debated, whether the landholders understand the law. It is to be remembered that a tenant can often be retained without risk after an ejectment suit has been brought against him: the term required for the acquisition of occupancy rights may be far from complete, and the landholder's object may be accomplished by the tenant accepting an enhancement of rent. Allowance being made for cases of this kind, it seems probable from the figures that, when it is desired to break the continuity of a holding, landholders generally are well aware of what action is necessary. The second inference is concerned with the efficacy of the proviso requiring a year's dispossession to render ejectments effective. It is obvious that no landholder could afford to make ejectments wholesale if the tenants in consequence of ejectment left the village for good and their place were not supplied by others. The efficacy of the proviso, therefore, which was designed to put an end to nominal ejectments, depends on the inability of the landlord to arrange for the cultivation of the land from which tenants have been ejected. But there is nothing to show in the first place that ejectment is followed in any considerable number of cases by the disappearance of the tenant from the village. It is true no doubt that on the showing of the statistics only 10 per cent. of the evicted tenants got land from other landholders and 4 per cent. became sub-tenants, while 50 per cent.

got no new land at all. It is obvious, however, in the first place that it is precisely at this point that the return may be expected to be most erroneous ; it is easy for the patwári to ascertain whether the tenant has got back his previous holding or another holding under the same proprietor, but many cases in which a tenant gets land in some other village must be beyond his knowledge. Possibly also the return does not show the full extent to which ejected tenants obtain land as sub-tenants ; at least there is direct evidence to show that this method of providing for ejected tenants should be borne in mind. A large proprietor in Aligarh told the Collector that his ejected tenants were being given land by tenants with occupancy rights, and the Collector of Moradabad reports that the demand for sub-leases is growing and tenants are enhancing the rents of their sub-tenants. Apart from this, in a large number of cases the ejected tenants have occupancy as well as non-occupancy holdings, which ensure their remaining in the village. Further, even if they are left with no land of their own, they can generally share the cultivation of a relative living in the village, and if, as not unfrequently happens, the relative is given the land from which they have been ejected, the tenant, though dispossessed in law, is not in fact disturbed. Finally must be noted the difficulty which a tenant experiences in making a fresh start in a new line or in a new place. "If," says the Commissioner of Meerut, "some of the evicted tenants have settled as workmen at Háthras or Khurja, so much the better for themselves and for the country." With this sentiment no one will quarrel, but openings of this kind are far from common. Land is as difficult to get in one village as in another. Not only by sentimental but by these practical reasons the tenant is attached to his village, and it is precisely this attachment that plays into the hands of the landlord and lies at the root of the whole agrarian difficulty. Thus the landholder finds that he has merely to arrange for the temporary cultivation of the land during the year of dispossession and the reports do not indicate that he has any trouble in doing so. As the Board remarked last year, even in the case of a large proprietor the whole of whose land is held by tenants-at-will, it is necessary only to eject a twelfth of them every year, and a margin of agricultural labourers may supply him with all that he needs. The possibility must be emphasized this year. The Senior Member has been struck by the fact that wherever he marched he found the landlords referring to the disappearance of the old line of distinction between the tenant and the village labourer. Every labourer, they say, either has, or is anxious to secure, a piece of land for his own cultivation, and it is clearer than before that the landlords can draw on a large reserve of potential cultivators. The Board are therefore forced to the conclusion that the landholders are still masters of the situation. The difficulties placed in their way are by no means insurmountable, and it is clear that the policy of the Act can be defeated by resort to effective ejectments, not only for the dispossession of undesirable tenants, but for the purposes of enhancement.

40. The case of tenants who, though formally ejected, continue to cultivate their former holdings in partnership with relatives to whom those holdings have been transferred, has been mentioned in several reports, and deserves special notice as it has given rise to considerable misapprehension. Apparently this case is thought to be similar to the case in which a tenant asserts that he has held for 12 years continuously, and it is found that a relative of his is recorded as tenant at some time during that period. It is distinguished, however, from the case with which it is compared by the formal ejectment which precedes the change of the tenant's name. Undoubtedly there have been numerous decisions to the effect that where the name of a relative has been inserted in the course of what has otherwise been a continous tenancy the entry was fictitious, and does not bar the accrual of occupancy rights. But where the tenant has been formally dispossessed and a fresh contract entered into by the landholder with a relative, the contractual relations of the old tenant with the landholder terminate, and a breach of tenancy is established which no agreement with the incoming tenant for joint cultivation can affect. This has not in all cases been clearly understood. Referring to the lease of holdings to relatives of the ejected tenants, the Collector of Sháhjahánpur says that among the most ignorant of the zamíndárs a belief that the Act can be evaded in this way is not uncommon, and the Collector of Moradabad writes that when the action now being taken is reviewed by the courts, they may hold that nominal transfers do not break the continuity of the tenure. A decision on the lines suggested as possible in these remarks would not only be an incorrect interpretation of the law, but would be hard on tenants, as it would result in landholders placing the land with outsiders. In the districts just referred to inquiries have been made into the disposal of the land from which tenants were ejected, and show that in Sháhjahánpur 10 per cent. was given back to the original tenants, 20 per cent. to relatives, while in Moradabad, 15 per cent. was given back to the original tenants, only 8 per cent. to relatives and 75 per cent. to strangers. It is to be regretted that the plan of leasing the land to relatives, which obviously secures to the evicted tenant the minimum of hardship, should in these districts have been preferred by the landholders in so small a percentage of cases; but the Board consider it probable that, if the misapprehension of its legal effects were removed, it would become more common. In ordinary cases, while the landholders are determined to prevent the accrual of occupancy rights, they have no wish to take the land out of the cultivation of the family, and it is undesirable that, owing to a misapprehension of the law, they should be practically compelled to do so.

§ 41.—Long-term leases.

41. The statistics of this subject show some improvement. The area protected by long-term leases subsisting at the beginning of the year was 372,701 acres, and it increased during the year by 115,973 acres, the largest figures in both cases being in the Meerut division. It will be observed, however, that outside that division the only districts that show a substantial increase are Gorakhpur and Basti. The point has not been noticed by the Collectors concerned; but the Commissioner says that in Gorakhpur the increase is due to the action of the Bridgman estate, and in Basti probably to the action of the grantees in the north of the district. In Bulandshahr it was made a condition of the reversion to ordinary settlement conditions noticed in paragraph 16 that the proprietors should give long leases to 80 per cent. at least of their tenants-at-will: hence no doubt the continued increase in that district which now has 120,725 acres protected, 39·4 per cent. of the non-occupancy area of the district or nearly a fourth of the provincial total. Why leases should comparatively be so common in this division, or why considerable areas should have been given on long leases in Saháranpur, Aligarh and Etah (where nearly 10 per cent. of the non-occupancy area is protected) and very little in Muzaffarnagar, are questions that cannot definitely be answered. It would be interesting to know what landlords are giving leases, and the facts should be ascertained. But on the whole the conclusion is obvious that leases are not favoured, and it must be admitted that the provisions of sections 67 and 68 are not calculated to recommend them to the landlords.

§§ 42—43.—Examination of the results.

42. The results stated in the preceding paragraphs must now be examined; but first it is relevant to enquire how the relations stand between landlord and tenant. The reports received show a full appreciation of the fact that these relations are the result of an inevitable opposition of interests, which, in the eastern districts at any rate, may well be described as a struggle for existence: the landholders there require the land more and more for themselves to meet their growing necessities, and it will be hard if they are prevented in any way from getting it into their own hands. Opposition of this kind legislation cannot remove, but it may embitter; indeed it is natural, as the Commissioner of Rohilkhand remarks, that the parties concerned should think that whatever benefits one should to the same extent injure the other. The mere apprehension of a change in the law is therefore sufficient, as in the case both of the Tenancy Act and long before it of the Oudh Rent Act, to accentuate the divergence of interests. The question is whether this disturbing effect continues or not. No doubt the abnormal agitation which was caused by the introduction of the new Act has disappeared, and except in a few districts the opinion is expressed that the relations of landlord and tenant are very much the same as before the Act was heard of. Without suggesting a doubt of this conclusion, the Board think that the increase in the number of ejectments may be described as the sequelæ of the agitation which preceded and accompanied the new legislation. But this is not a complete explanation, and it is suggested, in the second place, that the excess of ejectments above the normal is partly to be accounted for by the run of good seasons, which naturally has led proprietors to think of enhancements of rent. In the Bundelkhand districts the number of ejectments is small, but the fact that it is 64 per cent. above the normal certainly supports this view: the increase is ascribed to the efforts of landholders to enhance the rents which during a long succession of bad years had fallen unduly low, and in this part of the country no other reason is plausible. In any case whether the increase is due to the Act or not, the Act has at least been powerless to prevent it. But the real problem after all is not why ejectments have increased, but why, contrary to the intention of the Act, they have not greatly diminished. Under this Act ejectment was to be a process employed only in exceptional circumstances, and it was with this expectation that the Act was passed. It is a matter of extreme importance to judge how far this expectation is likely to be fulfilled. So far as the tenants are concerned it may be granted that the outlook is still uncertain. They had exaggerated ideas, which may not yet have been dissipated, of what the Act was going to do for them. The expedient of seven years' leases was a means of avoiding the accrual of occupancy rights. But, as the Commissioner of Agra remarks, it so happens that the tenants have understood this as well as anyone else: this after all is their old objection to leases, and it is little wonder that it persists. But if they come to recognise that a long lease gives them advantages that are only less than those of an occupancy tenant, and on the other hand to appreciate the inconvenience of a year-to-year tenure which subjects them to an unrestricted power of ejectment, it may well be that in the long run the prejudice will disappear. This is a part of the problem that is still indeterminate. The position of the landlord seems to be much clearer: the more a long lease is appreciated by the tenant, the less will it be liked by his landlord. The question, it may be observed, is obscured somewhat by speaking of the desire of landlords to prevent the accrual of occupancy rights. It seems to follow that any expedient which is effective for that purpose will in their eyes be equally desirable. But it is scarcely necessary to point out that to accept this conclusion is to be misled by a phrase. To put aside minor matters, the great objection that a landlord has to an occupancy tenant is that his rent can be enhanced only through the courts: and legal enhancements are certainly of a nature to account for the landlord's dislike. His great object, then, is to have a tenant whose rent he can enhance at will. The matter has been noted again and again. It is admitted, as the Commissioner of Rohilkhand says, by the zamíndárs. The power of enhancement lies at the root of the whole question. Now the law says that in the case of a tenant holding from year to year the power of ejectment shall be absolute, and the power of enhancement therefore unrestricted. But if a landlord gives his tenant a seven years' lease, his powers are at once circumscribed, for the tenant may plead at the end of his term that his ejectment is being sued for because he has refused to agree to an enhancement of his rent, and, if the issue is decided in his favour, the rent is left to the arbitrament of the court. It cannot be questioned that in the great majority of cases ejectment is merely a means of enhancement. If, then, on such a plea the courts decide in favour of the tenant, they are after all not only acting in accordance with the probabilities of the case, but fulfilling the requirements of the law. It becomes increasingly plain that the objection of landlords to long leases is from their point of view exceedingly well founded. Nor does there seem to be any hope that increased familiarity with the law will induce them to give such leases. They will keep to the year-to-year tenant, liable to unlimited enhancement, unless they find that the obstacles in the way are insuperable; and, so far as can be judged at present, this is very far from being the case.

43. In conclusion it is necessary to consider the bearing of these results on a possible amendment of the Act, and specially on the proposal to abrogate sections 67 and 68. It does seem that this proposal would remove most of the difficulties that have been noticed, and if the matter were being discussed de novo, there is much that could be said in its favour. It leads, however, to a wide field of controversy which it seems unnecessary at present to enter. For it must be remembered that the deliberate intention of the Act was to restrict not only the power of ejectment, but the power of enhancement. The ejectment of a year-to-year tenant was hedged about by difficulties, so that it should be resorted to only when the landlord wished to get rid of his tenant. The great bulk of the non-occupancy tenants would, it was hoped, get long leases, and the ejectment of long-lease tenants with a view to enhancement was forbidden. It does not appear that there was any misapprehension as to the effect of this last provision.

Clearly it was unpalatable to landholders; but it was thought they would be forced to accept it because they would find the alternative impossible. It is because, as experience has shown, the alternative is not impossible that the Act so far has failed. The Board cannot pretend that they see any signs of its succeeding. But the scheme of the Act must stand or fall as a whole. The sections which it is proposed to abrogate cannot be omitted unless Government is prepared to surrender a vital principle of the Act, and this is a step which, on a three years' trial the Board are unable to recommend. It is only in matters of procedure that they consider an amendment of the Act immediately practicable.

§ 44.—Litigation in Oudh.

44. Litigation in Oudh showed very little change, the number of suits and applications entered in appendix XIXB and of applications for ejectment in appendix XXB being 48,952 and 24,689 against 49,658 and 25,660 in the previous year. Such variations as are noticed are due to local causes. Thus a very considerable decrease in the number of cases in Fyzabad and Gonda is accounted for by the disappearance in the Ajudhya estate of the abnormal conditions which have been noticed in the reports of the last two years. On the other hand, it happens that in the Nánpára and Kapurthala estates the terms for which most of the villages have been leased are expiring at the same time; the proprietors are clearing up their accounts and making new arrangements, and consequently there is a large increase in case work in Bahraich. In Partábgarh the Court of Wards had to institute an exceptionally large number of rent suits in the Patti Saifabad estate. There was a considerable increase in the number of cases in Sítapur and Bara Banki, and a large falling off in Hardoí, for which no special reasons have been given.

On the whole the number of suits for arrears of rent is practically the same as last year, and still therefore very much below the average of 1895-96 to 1898-99. The number of applications for ejectment on the ground of arrears of rent declined still further, and the area from which ejectment was ordered was exactly half the corresponding area of the previous year. Suits for arrears of revenue and profits also declined. There was an increase of more than 50 per cent in suits for resumption. For this the action of the Court of Wards in Partabgarh is chiefly responsible; but the Deputy Commissioner says that landlords generally are beginning to recognise the facilities given them by the new law.

The number of suits relating to ejectment has fallen off greatly, and the number of notices under section 55 is slightly less than in the previous year. It is a matter for congratulation that the great increase in the number of ejectments, the possibility of which certainly was suggested by the return for the year 1901-1902, has not been realized. At the same time it must be oberved that if the notices under section 55 numbered in 1901-1902, 27,278, they have been steady ever since at a little over 22,000, and that the average for 1895-96 to 1899-1900 was only 10,845. It is generally reported, and there seems to be little doubt, that ejectments are used here as elsewhere in order to secure enhancement of rent. The only suggestion the Board can make is that good seasons have given unusual scope as in Agra for rent enhancements and that the increase in ejectments is to a large extent a reflex of the number of cases in which landlords think that rents can be raised.

§ 45.—Litigation in Kumaun.

45. The number of suits instituted during the year in Kumaun was 593 as compared with 601 in the preceding year, the decrease being chiefly in suits for arrears of revenue and profits, and in miscellaneous suits and proceedings.

§ 46.—Recovery of under-proprietary rents.

46. Including 270 cases pending from the preceding year, there were 3,086 applications for recovery of arrears of rent under section 185 of the Land Revenue Act, or 854 more than in 1902-1903. Of these all but 84 were in the Fyzabad division, the great majority of cases as usual being in the district of Fyzabad. The outstandings were again heaviest in the Sultánpur and Bara Banki districts, in which the balances for recovery together totalled Rs. 35,796, or 76 per cent. of the provincial total. It is satisfactory to note that in Fyzabad not a single case was pending at the close of the year, and the Board desire to acknowledge the unremitting attention which Mr. Hose has given to this part of his duties.

§§ 47—50.—Work in courts of original jurisdiction.

47. The tale of work in courts of original jurisdiction in the province of Agra increased considerably. The number of institutions (including applications under section 59 of the Tenancy Act) rose from 256,664 to 289,986 —an increase of 33,322 cases, of which 11,224 were suits for arrears of rent, 3,062 for enhancement and 20,635 for ejectment. It has been explained that the excess under suits for ejectment was due entirely to the cases filed on 2nd October 1903; but in the present connection any adjustment on this account would merely increase the number of suits pending at the beginning of the year, which was 10,365 higher than on 1st October 1903. The total number of cases for disposal was thus 364,817, or 43,687 more than in the previous year. In Oudh, if applications under section 185 are added to cases under the Rent Act the total for disposal was 78,593 compared with 79,455 in 1902-1903.

48. Regarding the disposal of applications under section 59 of the Tenancy Act it has already been said that of the total number of 33,082 cases ejectment was ordered during the year in 7,496. Of 331,735 other suits and applications 246,524 were decided, 62,802 with contest and 183,722 without contest. The corresponding figures for the previous year were 54,870 and 164,326, so that there has been a very considerable improvement in the outturn of work; but it was not sufficient to overtake the increase in the number of cases for disposal, and the pending file rose from 70,861 to 85,211 cases. The increase of 14,350 cases is nearly all accounted for under the head of ejectment suits, the number remaining undecided at the close of the year being greater by 12,244 cases than at the beginning. The pending file of enhancement cases increased from 5,383 to 7,269, and of all other suits and applications from 10,891 only to 11,111. The increase was contributed to by every division, but was proportionately greatest in Meerut, Benares and Gorakhpur. The pending file was still much the heaviest in Rohilkhand, where it accounted for 35 per cent. of the provincial total, but the increase from 27,513 to 30,005 cases was comparatively small. Special inquiries have been made, but no special reason has come to light to explain the excessive litigation in this division. Budaun, with 10,329 cases pending out of the provincial total of 85,211, is still easily first; but the largest increase in the pending file occurred in Moradabad, which is second now, with 7,271 cases. In Meerut, Muttra and Basti also the increase was large and only seven districts succeeded in reducing their files. Variations in the result depended, however, entirely on the number of ejectment suits, and the only districts that showed an appreciable increase in the number of cases other than for ejectment or enhancement pending at the close of the year were Meerut, Benares and Azamgarh. That cases were on the whole promptly disposed of is shown by the number pending for over three months. It is true that Budaun had 2,274 cases of this description: of these 2,122 were ejectment cases which must have been filed in July—October 1903. The Collector reports that more than half the arrears accrued in a single tahsíl which for six months was under an officer in bad health who eventually had to retire from the service, and that the work was interrupted a good deal by transfers and leave; but it is plain that, in spite of the help that was given, an additional officer having been employed for nine months and two for the last three months of the year, the work has for the time being entirely outstripped the capacity of the staff to deal with it. For the whole of the rest of the provinces the number of cases that had been pending for more than three months was only 504, and in no single district, except Benares and Mirzapur, did it exceed 50. The reason for the excess in these districts is not apparent.

49. In Kumaun 618 cases were decided and the pending file reduced from 114 to 89.

50. In Oudh the disposal of notices and applications for ejectment under sections 55 and 61 cannot be stated. Of 50,802 other cases under the Rent Act, 18,101 were decided with contest and 31,238 without contest. The amount of work done was very nearly the same as in the previous year, and the pending file decreased from 1,850 to 1,463 cases. The details do not call for any remarks.

§ 51.—Effect of the Tenancy Act on the work of the courts.

51. The increase of work under the Tenancy Act cannot but be a matter of grave concern. Except in a couple of districts complaints are general. The Collector of Moradabad writes that the disposal of the great mass of ejectment suits was made possible only by an increase in the staff and by continual working at high pressure.

The Commissioner of Rohilkhand speaks of the intense labour of years, which is still unabated. From more than one district there are warnings that the quality of the work is suffering. There appear to be good grounds for these complaints. It has been stated in previous reports that a completely accurate comparison with years before the passing of the Tenancy Act is not possible; but the figures given in paragraph 52 of last year's report are correct enough for practical purposes. They show that in 1897-98 and 1898-99 the total number of cases for disposal was about 270,000, and the number of contested cases about 47,000. The corresponding figures are now 364,817 and 62,802. The pending file is gradually increasing; it was 60,715 at the end of 1901-1902, in 1902-1903 it was 70,971, and now it is 85,211. Not only is there more work than formerly, but it is more intricate and difficult, and the bulk of it falls at an inconvenient time, interfering with the proper discharge of executive duties. There can be no question of the extreme desirability of lightening the work, if this can be done without prejudicing the operation of the Act. Last year the Board suggested that landlords should be encouraged to give their tenants notice of their intention to sue for ejectment, so that the tenant might have an opportunity of surrendering his land and obviating the necessity for a suit; but they said that the expedient might not recommend itself to the landholders. To go a step further, it is pointed out that of 78,276 ejectment suits disposed of only 22,624, or 28 per cent., were decided after contest, and it is urged that in the remainder the procedure by suit is merely a trouble to the courts and to all concerned. Hence it is suggested that a return should be made to the old procedure of ejectment by notice. It is said, further, that the period within which ejectment suits under section 58 of the Tenancy Act can be filed is not only inconveniently timed, as it necessitates the work being done in the cold weather, but that it is unnecessarily long: a month, it is considered, is long enough, and if ejectment suits could be filed only in July, a great number could be decided before the beginning of the cold weather. Finally, it is urged that ejectments should take effect before the 1st July, for by that date the tenant can often sow a crop, and further trouble and litigation are the result. The most important of these proposals is the suggested reversion to ejectment by notice. The Board have already expressed their opinion that the increased trouble and cost of ejectments result merely in laying an additional burden on tenants without operating to diminish the number of ejectments, and they do not think that the action taken by some courts of refusing costs in uncontested cases will have much effect, for the landlord will recover his costs from the in-coming tenant. Still the matter is open to argument, and the Board are not prepared to advocate the proposal until they are convinced that it involves no risk of still further increasing ejectments. They propose to consult officers, and will reserve their recommendations till the opinions called for are received.

§§ 52—55.—Work of appellate courts.

52. Appeals to Collectors during the year numbered 5,947 as against 5,395 in the preceding year. Including arrears the total number of cases for disposal was 6,580, of which 5,766, or 88 per cent., were decided during the year. Fifty-four per cent. of the decisions disposed of were confirmed. The pending file was heavy only in Azamgarh, where there were 280 cases undecided at the end of the year. The number of appeals filed in this district reached the exceptional total of 626, of which 484 were new institutions, and the Collector's time was much occupied by the Mubarakpur riot case. Last year it was noticed that compared with the years 1895-96 to 1898-99, as a period of normal litigation, there had been an increase of 28 and 25 per cent. respectively in the number of appeals to Collectors and appealable cases decided by subordinate courts. For the year under report the comparison is still more unfavourable, the percentage of increases being 41 and 44 respectively.

53. The number of appeals to Judges fell from 2,022 to 1,899, and the pending file from 1,183 to 949. The total number of appeals for disposal was 3,082, of which 2,133 were decided. The pending file was for some reason exceptionally heavy not only in Meerut, but in Gonda, these districts accounting for more than a third of the provincial total of cases undecided at the close of the year.

54. Appeals to Commissioners show a slight increase, the number being 6,239 as against 6,173 in the preceding year, and they are now 26 per cent. above the normal of 1895-96 to 1898-99. Of a total number of 8,386 appeals 7,033 were disposed of by Commissioners, and 292 were transferred to Collectors. The figures regarding disposal of cases attract attention. In Fyzabad, where the pending file (841) was heaviest last year, and seemed to call for assistance of some kind to bring the work up to date, no fewer than 1,611 cases were decided, and there were only 43 cases left pending at the close of the year. But in Agra, which came next with 668 cases, the pending file has increased to 734. For this the Commissioner refers to his previous remarks, and says that with the change in procedure under the new law it is difficult to decide more than 800 appeals in the year. It is not easy to see why this should be the case in Agra, in view of the Fyzabad figures, and of the fact that the Commissioner of Rohilkhand decided 1,333 and the Commissioner of Meerut 990 cases. It is obvious, however, that there are considerable differences in procedure, as 166 appeals were rejected in Rohilkhand and none in Agra. The only other divisions that call for remark are Gorakhpur and Lucknow. For the file of 122 cases in Gorakhpur there were special reasons; but the balance in Lucknow of 204 cases, including 116 cases which had been pending for more than three months, out of a total for disposal of only 630 cases, requires explanation. The decisions of the lower courts were upheld in 71 per cent. of the appeals as against 67 in the preceding year, the worst results being in the Kumaun and Benares divisions, where the percentages of orders upheld were only 42 and 51 respectively. In Meerut there is a marked improvement from 61·33 to 80·30. The percentage (22·39) of reversals is highest in the Allahabad division, Benares, which was highest (27) last year, coming next with 21. For the provinces generally the percentage of remands was 9, but in Benares it was 24. The Commissioner of Rohilkhand remarks that the high percentage of remands (18·75) was due chiefly to the press of work which drove deputy collectors to get rid of many cases without any real inquiry.

55. In appeal the Board had to deal with 638 cases under Acts XII of 1881 and II of 1901 in Agra, and 356 cases under the Oudh Rent Act. Of the total of 994 cases, 659 were disposed of, the average duration being three months and 22 days. In revision they dealt with 923 cases under the North-Western Provinces Rent and Tenancy Acts, 768 of which were disposed of, the average duration being one month and 19 days. The orders of the lower courts were disturbed in 24 per cent. of the cases in appeal and in 8 per cent. of those in revision. Eighteen cases under the Kumaun rules were decided, in three of which the orders of the lower courts were disturbed.

Chapter IV.—SETTLEMENT.

§ 56.—General remarks.

56. During the year under report the settlements of Gonda, Farrukhabad and the trans-Jumna tahsíls of the Allahabad district were formally closed. Operations from the previous year continued in five districts in one of which the work was completed and the final report received, and three new districts and part of a fourth were brought under settlement.

§ 57.—Oudh settlements.

57. As remarked in the last report the completion of work in Gonda brought the series of settlements in Oudh to a close. The final report for this district was during the year submitted to Government and the settlement confirmed for 30 years. Work in Oudh was confined, therefore, to the revisional operations in Hardoi. The distribution of revenue and determination of under-proprietary rents were all but completed and such miscellaneous work as remained at the close of the year was to be cleared off in a couple of months.

§§ 58—63.—Settlements in the Province of Agra.

58. The final reports of Aligarh, Bareilly and Almora were submitted to Government, and in the first two districts the settlement has now been closed. In Almora and the hill pattis of Naini Tál matters have been delayed by a question concerning the record of a cess that is levied in order to provide supplies for travellers in out-of-the-way places, and the settlement of Almora had to be reopened for this purpose. The Deputy Commissioner of Naini Tál has also made a report about the condition of the revised papers in the hill pattis which is being investigated by a special officer.

59. In the same district the pargana of Káshipur came under settlement. In view of the great deterioration in this pargana which has already in chapter II been alluded to, Government decided that though summary reductions had been granted, a general revision was desirable. There was no necessity, however, for any elaborate procedure. It was found that with little alteration the soil and circle classification of Mr. Smeaton's settlement could be adopted as the basis of the present revision, and that the standard rates were still suitable in nearly all the circles. The whole of the work, therefore, was carried out by the Deputy Commissioner with the assistance of a deputy collector, and the cost has been inconsiderable.

60. Work on the ordinary lines continued in Mainpuri, Etah and Azamgarh. In Mainpuri, the records of Mustafabad and Shikohabad, the last two tahsíls, were attested. The revenues of tahsíl Bhongaon were declared and distributed, and the fairing of its records completed. With the help of an assistant appointed during the year the tahsíls of Mainpuri, Karhal and Mustafabad were inspected for assessment. In Mustafabad the preparation of the papers was delayed by plague; but the assessments of the other two tahsíls were sanctioned and declared very shortly after the close of the year.

61. In Etah the attestation of records was finished and the greater part of the fairing work was done. The remaining two tahsíls, Kásganj and Jalesar, comprising eight parganas and an area of 721 square miles, were inspected: five parganas with an area of 351 square miles by the Settlement Officer, and three parganas, covering 370 square miles, by his assistant, Mr. Sherring. All the assessments have now been received and sanctioned.

62. The circumstances of the Azamgarh settlement again call for particular notice. The total number of villages attested during the year was 797 against 1,039 in the previous year; but the year was a very unhealthy one and work was seriously retarded by the prevalence of plague. The Settlement Officer points out also that the attestation of partitioned villages is peculiarly troublesome, because it is generally necessary to compare the papers field by field and biswa by biswa with the partition record before the parties are satisfied: and that the villages attested during the year contained 2,048 maháls or 273 more than the maháls in the villages attested during the previous year. The slow progress of the work is not in any way the fault of the settlement staff. Every paragraph, indeed, of the interesting review of the year's work submitted by Mr. Crawford bears witness at once to the complexity of the task and to the care and thoroughness with which arrangements are made to provide for its satisfactory completion. Hurry in attestation means delay in fairing, and the Board entirely agree with the Settlement Officer in thinking that deliberation in the earlier stages of record work is not only essential to accuracy, but means saving of time in the end. At the same time as the work of assessment is nearing a close, it is desirable that the records should be completed as soon as possible. The Board have therefore obtained the sanction of Government to the appointment of a sixth deputy collector, and it is hoped that attestation will be finished by the end of May next.

The inspection of the district for assessment is now complete. The Assistant Settlement Officer was on leave for six months, and the reports on his parganas, the papers of which were not complete, have not yet been received. The assessments of four parganas with an area of 485 square miles, inspected by the Settlement Officer have all been disposed of either during the year or shortly after its close.

63. In Cawnpore the revision of settlement is being carried out under special rules. It was undertaken with no hope of any enhancement, but to remove the inequalities of the present assessment, and the procedure has been simplified as far as possible. There has been no attestation of papers nor revision of maps: the soil areas of the old settlement are generally accepted, though for the sake of simplification they are often combined in a smaller number of classes: and a detailed valuation is worked out only for those maháls in which after inspection the Settlement Officer estimates by the use of an all-round incidence that the present assessment should be varied by more than 10 per cent.

Mr. Gracey took over charge as Settlement Officer by the end of October 1903. Two tahsíls, Bilhaur and Sheorájpur, comprising an area of 595 square miles, were inspected. The submission of separate rent-rate reports had not been contemplated, but the Board were of opinion that it would be much more satisfactory if they had an opportunity of examining the rates before the actual work of assessment was carried out, and the Settlement Officer was instructed to send demi-official reports which were received and disposed of. The assessments have also been received. Of a total of 1,545 maháls about two-thirds, with an area of 338 square miles, actually came within the scope of the revision.

§§ 64—67.—Bundelkhand.

64. The work of revision under the rules approved for Bundelkhand is being extended as rapidly as possible. In the trans-Jumna tahsíls of the Allahabad district operations are complete. The districts of Jalaun and Jhánsi have now been brought under settlement, and the sub-division of Lalitpur has been added to the area with which the Settlement Officer of Jhánsi will have to deal. The preliminary correction of maps and papers required in Bánda and Hamírpur will be finished this year, and Settlement Officers will be appointed in October next.

The current settlement will not expire in Jhánsi till 1912 and in Lalitpur till 1928. It was desirable, however, that there should be no delay in the introduction of the new system, and no difficulty can arise except in maháls where an enhancement of revenue is proposed. In the Jhánsi tahsíl, the assessments of which have been sanctioned, only 38 cases of this kind were reported: the amount of revenue involved was very small and Government ordered that for the present the existing revenues should be retained, but that nominal revenues should also be fixed, on a comparison with which it will be possible to modify the actual assessments at intermediate revisions under the rules, until the term of the regular settlement expires.

65. Owing to the necessity of completing the settlement of South Allahabad, Mr. Pim did not take over charge as Settlement Officer at Jhánsi till the end of December 1903. During the rest of the cold weather he inspected the Jhánsi tahsíl and submitted the assessments which were sanctioned after the close of the year.

In view of the extension of the fluctuating system of assessment to the Lalitpur sub-division, and of the necessity for a revision in the Gursarai estate involving the difficult work of fixing under-proprietary rents, the programme of settlement sanctioned originally for this district has been altered. The period of the Settlement Officer's appointment has been reduced from $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 3 years; but an assistant has been given him for two years, and since the close of the year Mr. J. C. Nelson has been appointed Assistant Settlement Officer.

66. In Jalaun the entire tahsíls of Orai and Kálpi, comprising an area of about 712 square miles, were inspected by the Settlement Officer during the year. The assessments of pargana Orai have been sanctioned; and in order to afford further relief it is proposed to give them immediate effect, though the current settlement of the tahsíl does not expire till June next. The assessment report for pargana Kálpi is now under the consideration of the Board. As the area remaining for inspection and assessment was not considered enough to engage the time of one officer for two years more, the period of the Settlement Officer's appointment has been reduced from three to two years and an assistant has been sanctioned for nine months.

67. There is little so far to notice about the working of this new system of assessment. The rules about nautor have been modified in the red soil tracts of Jhánsi, where special conditions prevail, and the ordinary definition of nautor cannot be applied. The question of distribution of the revenue, which is of the utmost importance, has been considered. Directions have been given to the Settlement Officers now at work which will govern the methods of the initial distribution, and advantage will be taken of the experience gained to devise rules for the guidance of Collectors in intermediate revisions.

§ 68.—Work of settlement courts.

68. The number of cases instituted in settlement courts was 43,704. Including 17,547 cases outstanding at the close of last year, the total for disposal was 61,251, of which 42,470 cases were decided. The balance of 18,781 is composed chiefly of record-of-rights cases, which in Azamgarh alone number 8,763. There were 2,617 appeals to Settlement Officers, of which 1,406 have been disposed of. Commissioners decided 533 out of 552 appeals filed before them.

§ 69.—Cost of settlement operations.

69. The total cost of settlement operations during the year amounted to Rs. 4,18,397. In Aligarh, where the accounts have been closed, the cost of settlement has been Rs. 137·35 per square mile.

70. The following statement shows the old and new revenue of tracts the assessments of which were declared during the year :—

District.	Old revenue.	New final revenue.	Increase.
			Amount.	Percentage.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Mainpuri (parganas Kishni, Bewar, Alipur Patti and Bhongaon) ...	2,96,561	3,19,110	22,549	7·60
Etah (parganas Etah Sakit, Marehra, Azamnagar, Barna, Nidhpur, Patiali, Aulai, Pachlana and Faizpur Badaria) ...	6,33,258	6,84,652	51,394	8·12
Azamgarh (parganas Bela Daulatabad, Atraulia and Kauria) ...	2,56,899	2,83,562	26,663	10·38

Chapter V.—GENERAL.

§ 71.—Mutations in the revenue registers.

71. Statement XXVIII shows that the number of mutations has continued to rise, but with less rapidity than in recent years. In 1901-1902 the increase was 13,603, in 1902-1903, no less than 33,395. In the year under report it was 8,149. The remarks that have to be made are very much the same as in previous years. The great bulk of the increase is again under the head of successions, which are 6,319 more numerous than in the previous year. In Fyzabad there is a decrease of 6,112 cases, chiefly in the districts of Bara Banki and Sultánpur, where the figures of 1902-1903 were abnormally high owing to the disposal of an accumulation of unreported cases. Every other division shows an increase, for which a heavier mortality is no doubt in part responsible. The principal cause, however, is certainly the continuance of the efforts, which have been noticed before, and are again described in several districts, to secure reports in cases of succession which had been overlooked by the patwáris. Aided by the new provisions of the law and of the circulars, these efforts have been successful, and it is satisfactory to note that a distinct improvement is reported in the condition of the proprietary registers.

As to the statistics in the other columns of the statement, there is an increase in the number of sales both private and under orders of court; but in the case of the latter, the rise is inconsiderable, and is accompanied by a large decline in the value of the property transferred as judged by the revenue. The number both of mortgages and of redemptions of mortgages was less. In Allahabad, transfers were generally less numerous, and mortgages declined 28 per cent.—a result attributable to the new legislation; but there is only a slight increase in the number of redemptions, and it is apparent that the Encumbered Estates Act has not been in operation long enough to affect materially the figures under this head. The returns for Rohilkhand are very much the same as in the previous year. In the Agra division and in Oudh, the number of transfers was reduced considerably; but the notable decrease in Fyzabad is no more than a return to normal figures, as it was noted last year that in Sultánpur and Bara Banki there had been a sudden and unexplained rise in the number of mortgages and redemptions. For some reason the returns are least favourable in Meerut and Gorakhpur, in both of which divisions there was a substantial increase in sales and mortgages. In Gorakhpur the increase is almost confined to the district of Basti, and is not explained. In Aligarh it is attributed to the recency of settlement and one or two local circumstances which have not been reported. In Bulandshahr it is accounted for by the sale of villages belonging to a large and impoverished estate. In both divisions there is an increase in the number of redemptions, and the figures do not appear to have any special significance.

§§ 72—74.—Partitions.

72. The number of applications for perfect partition continued to decrease in the divisions of Rohilkhand, Benares, Lucknow, and Allahabad; elsewhere there was some increase; but for the provinces as a whole there was a falling off of 8 per cent. Applications for imperfect partition had increased from 1,161 in 1901-1902 to 1,947 in 1902-1903, and in the year under report there was a further increase of 30 per cent. to 2,530; the increase in this particular instance was most strongly marked in Agra, Kumaun and Fyzabad. The total under both classes is 14 per cent. higher than in the previous year, and no less than 65 per cent. above the average of the years 1896-97 to 1898-99, which, as remarked in last year's report, may be taken as the normal before the passing of the Revenue Act. The influence of that Act, it was observed, especially in stimulating imperfect partitions had been much more strongly marked in some divisions than in others, and these results have not been materially affected during the past year: the number of institutions was from twice to nearly four times the normal in Meerut, Rohilkhand and Gorakhpur; generally the increase was from 20 to 33 per cent., and in Agra there was still a decrease of 18 per cent.

73. The volume of partition work continues to grow. The pending file on 1st October was in 1901, 2,255 cases, in 1902, 2,608 and in 1903, 3,370. The total number of institutions was 3,805 or 476 more than in the previous year, and these, added to the pending file at the beginning of the year, brought up the number of cases for disposal to 7,175, which was 21 per cent. more than in the previous year and 82 per cent. above the normal. As Government is aware, special efforts were made to cope with the work by the appointment in several districts of extra Deputy Collectors, and the staff of amíns has when necessary been largely increased. The result is seen in the number of partitions effected which was 2,464, 44 per cent. above the previous year's figure and 76 per cent. above the normal. Even this outturn, however, did not quite keep pace with the increase of work, and the pending file was 9 per cent. higher at the end of the year than at the beginning. The districts in which work is heaviest are not to blame: the file in Meerut and in Gorakhpur is about 30 cases higher than at the beginning of the year; but there are larger increases in Aligarh, Farrukhabad, Gonda and Sultánpur. In three of the latter districts, as partition work is after settlement being resumed, the increase was inevitable, and in Sultánpur also the number of institutions doubled. Some officers complain that their staff of amíns is inadequate; but for this they have only themselves to blame. An application for an increase to the staff must, it is true, be justified, as the Board have to see that financial equilibrium is maintained. But they are quite conscious of the necessity of keeping the staff up to the maximum required by the work and capable of being dealt with by the Assistant Collectors: they have in fact taken the initiative in asking Collectors, where the file was observed to be heavy, whether the number of amíns could not usefully be increased, and it is only in one or two cases that they have had to refuse an application for additional staff.

74. The whole question of partition work has been the subject of a good deal of consideration. The proposal to abolish the separate partition funds, and to incorporate the transactions relating to partitions in the general accounts was given effect to from the 1st April last, while the extension of the fixed salary system to all districts except Mirzapur, Dehra Dún and the Kumaun districts had already been in force for six months previously. This system, which, it was expected, would lead to the recruitment of a better class of amíns, is reported by some district officers to be working satisfactorily, and to have produced a large outturn of work at a cheaper rate. As observed last year, however, something more than a system of fixed salaries is required if a general improvement in partition work is to be attained. Despatch and a better quality of work might, as already noted, be secured by the more frequent employment of patwáris; the Board are endeavouring to encourage their use by charging lower fees on partitions carried out by them, and orders to give the experiment a fair trial have been issued. But whatever agency be employed, no very satisfactory results can be obtained without a close supervision of the work. The Board have accordingly instituted inquiries into the possible methods of analyzing and ascertaining a standard for partition work; while the suitability of the scale of fees at present prescribed, and the expediency of making over the whole partition work of a district to a single officer, instead of as at present requiring every sub-divisional officer to dispose of partitions within his territorial charge, have also been considered. On certain points, which stand in need of local investigation and report, it is hoped that complete information will be available in the course of the next six months, and the Board will then be in a position to formulate further proposals for the general improvement of partition work, and for improving the pay and position of the partition staff.

§ 75.—Cases under section 184 of the Land Revenue Act.

75. The number of applications under this section for the recovery of arrears paid by lambardárs on behalf of co-sharers shows a further advance, the number being 935, for claims aggregating Rs. 51,775, as compared with 847 for Rs. 62,274 in 1902-1903, and 204 for Rs. 21,329 in 1901-1902, the year in which the provisions of the section first came into force. As in the two preceding years, the Meerut division heads the list with 446 cases for the recovery of Rs. 27,299, but owing to a marked decrease in the Meerut district, the number is 63 less than in the previous year. In Rohilkhand also there was a decline. In Bánda the number of cases increased from 26 to 170—a direct result apparently of the Collector's action, which will be referred to in the following paragraph. The Commissioner of Allahabad observes that the advantages of the section are considerably curtailed by the fact that it can only be employed in cases where the arrear has been paid in by the lambardár himself, as in cases where the arrear is paid direct by the co-sharer, recourse must be had for recovery of his dues to suit under the Tenancy Act. Including the cases brought forward from the preceding year, there were 1,146 applications for the recovery of Rs. 70,395, of which 268 for the recovery of Rs. 17,722 were left pending when the year closed.

§ 76.—Lambardars.

76. There is little to say this year about the effect of the provisions of the new Act regarding lambardárs. The number of attachments made under section 45 in consequence of failure to nominate a lambardár appears to have fallen off. In Sháhjahánpur, where the post of lambardár is much sought after, the Collector notes that the tenancy for co-sharers to make direct payments has been considerably checked. In Bánda the Collector circulated an abstract describing the privileges and duties of lambardárs, and the extraordinary increase in the number of applications under section 184, appears to be the result. He instructed his tahsíldárs further that in no case without giving full and sufficient reason were they to propose the issue of process against a co-sharer until they had exhausted all means of recovery from the lambardár. It is satisfactory to note that in this district 86 to 88 per cent. of the revenue was paid through the lambardár, and that the percentage has slightly increased. No hope, however, can be held out of any substantial improvement in the effectiveness of the lambardári system in the eastern districts.

§ 77.—Form of revenue accounts.

77. The form of accounts depends in the first place on the method of payment, and the existing registers are adapted to payment through a lambardár. There is a divergence, where there is no real lambardár, between the official accounts and the actual system of payment which the Board were directed last year by Government to examine. Owing to the complexity of the subject, the reports from local officers which had to be called for, were greatly delayed; but they have now been received and Government will shortly be addressed. The general system of accounts has also been examined. The Board have recently recommended to Government the abolition of separate entries of payments for revenue and for cesses, and they have further proposals to make which will, it is hoped, diminish work and at the same time make the check of the accounts more effective.

§ 78.—The use of money-orders in payment of Government dues.

78. The increase in the value of land revenue money-orders was Rs. 1,76,000, which is less than the average of recent years. According to the returns there was an increase in Agra of Rs. 2,20,000 and a decrease of Rs. 45,000 in Oudh; but in most of the Oudh districts there is an increase, and the fall in Unao from Rs. 1,05,615 to Rs. 4,777 is so remarkable that the figures, which have not been explained, may be incorrect. In Agra nearly the whole of the increase has occurred in the Meerut, and strangely enough in the Allahabad divisions, while Agra shows a general decrease. The largest increases were in the districts of Saháranpur, Muzaffarnagar, Meerut, Hamírpur, Jhánsi and Azamgarh. The average value of the money-orders was Rs. 21. The Commissioner of Allahabad observes that they are used chiefly by petty co-sharers, and that the continued expansion of the system must be fatal to the position of lambardárs. It is not clear, however, that co-sharers could be induced to pay through the lambardár merely by forbidding payment through the post-office, and the withdrawal of what is undoubtedly a great convenience would not be justified unless it were certain to have that effect.

§ 79.—Rental money-orders.

79. The amount of rent remitted through the post-office decreased in the Agra province from Rs. 13,71,184 to Rs. 13,61,096, or by 0·74 per cent. and increased from Rs. 1,02,539 to Rs. 1,15,000, or by 12·15 per cent. in Oudh. As usual this mode of payment is most largely resorted to in the three divisions of Meerut, Agra and Rohilkhand, tenants in Aligarh remitting over Rs. 1,12,000 and in Bijnor over Rs. 1,50,000 in the year of report. In Muzaffarnagar, however, the value of the remittances has declined over Rs. 38,000, and in Meerut and Bulandshahr Rs. 30,000. The decrease in Bulandshahr may be due to the establishment of better relations between landlord and tenant, consequent on the satisfactory settlement of the assessment question. In Aligarh, on the contrary, the value of money-orders nearly doubled—a result of an agitation that is going on in some estates; but for the division as a whole there is a decrease of Rs. 55,000. In Agra and Rohilkhand there were increases of Rs. 26,189 and Rs 17,514, chiefly in Mainpuri (Rs. 13,350) and Bijnor (Rs. 24,744), while in Bareilly there was a decrease of Rs. 23,110. In Oudh, the increase of Rs. 14,000 is in the Fyzabad division, the largest increases being in Gonda (Rs. 5,000) and Bahraich (Rs. 6,000).

80. The number of appeals to Collectors under the old and new Revenue Acts rose from 4,626 to 5,478, the total number for disposal being 5,965 against 5,053 in the previous year, of which 5,324 were disposed of. The largest number of appeals for decision was in Gorakhpur (485), Meerut (390), Basti (325) and Bulandshahr (322). Out of 69 cases that had been pending over three months, 20 were in the Meerut district.

81. The appeals in Commissioners' courts were also more numerous, the number being highest in Meerut (479), Gorakhpur (392) and Rohilkhand (378). Of the total number of 3,175 for disposal, 464 were pending when the year closed, the heaviest file (113) being in the court of the Commissioner of Gorakhpur. The number of cases pending over three months fell from 125 to 62.

82. Appeals to the Board under the Land Revenue Act numbered 507, of which 368 were disposed of, the orders of the lower courts being disturbed in 20 cases. The average duration was three months and nine days. In revision, the Board had 500 cases to deal with, 452 of which were disposed of, the average duration being 21 days. The orders of the lower courts were disturbed in 303 cases, 292 being applications for enhancement in a settlement court, which were governed by a single order. Appeals under the Regulations of the Family Domains of the Mahárája of Benares numbered 51, of which 38 were disposed of. The orders of the lower courts were disturbed in 12 cases.

§§ 83—85.—Action taken to avert sale of land in execution of civil and rent court decrees.

83. The statistics on this subject (appendices XXXA and XXXB) have been included in this report in accordance with G. O. No. 2529/I—497-1904, dated 10th September 1904.

84. In Agra, including those pending from the previous year, there were 6,395 cases for sale of ancestral land under civil court decrees, of which 4,299 were filed during the year and 4,152 were decided. The bulk of the decided cases are shown as "otherwise disposed of:" these were cases struck off on payment of the decree, withdrawn by the civil court, &c., in which no action by the Collector was required. In 223 cases sale was either wholly or partially averted through the Collector's intervention, and in 1,625 sale was carried out.

85. In Oudh, including arrears, there were 693 applications for sale of ancestral land under civil court decrees, and 350 under rent court decrees. In the former, sale took place in 263 cases out of 566 sanctioned, and in the latter in 179 cases out of 315 sanctioned. In the case of self-acquired property, out of 87 cases reported for sale under civil court decrees, sale took place in 37 out of 77 cases in which sanction was accorded; and out of 24 applications under rent court decrees, sale was sanctioned in 22 cases and was carried out in 11.

§ 86.—Acquisition of land.

86. During the year 8,239 acres of land were acquired for public purposes, for which Rs. 11,29,747 were paid as compensation. The area restored by Government during the same period amounted to 1,031 acres, and the price realized to Rs. 26,402. In 22 cases land was acquired without recourse being had to the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act.

§ 87.—Jhansi Encumbered Estates Act.

87. Nothing now remains to be collected, and the account of advances under the Act has been finally closed.

§ 88.—Maps.

88. During the year of report the maps of the Roorkee, Sikandrabad, Thákurdwára and Sambhal tahsíls and the Lucknow, Muzaffarnagar and Budaun districts were published, and, when the year closed, the Roorkee College Press had on hand for reproduction 21 tahsíl maps, including eight sent by this office during the year 1903-1904, and seven district maps.

§ 89.—Total work in District offices.

89. After showing a falling off for two consecutive years, the registered receipts and issues in the Revenue department of English district offices show an increase this year of 10,126, the figures being 346,716 against 336,590 in the previous year. The Allahabad division accounts for 8,000 of these cases, half of them being in Cawnpore: in the Bundelkhand districts the increase is attributed to operations under the Bundelkhand Acts. The total receipts and issues of the Board's office also increased from 43,523 in the previous year to 51,038 in the year under report. The total number of revenue cases for disposal was 17,40,654, and shows an increase of 53,428 as compared with the figures of 1902-1903; but this increase is more than accounted for by the rent and revenue cases in previous appendices, which show an increase of 54,103, and the number of execution cases, which are not shown separately, increased from 128,520 to 139,776. The number of cases disposed of amounted to 1,556,294, the number pending at the close of the year being 184,360, or 11,136 more than at the beginning of the year. The pending file was reduced in the Allahabad and Fyzabad divisions and to a slight extent also in the Lucknow division. In the other divisions there was some increase

§ 90.—Economic.

90. The Bundelkhand Acts are separately reported on; but some mention of their economic effect appears to me called for. There appears to have been some contraction of credit; but this is generally attributed rather to the Encumbered Estates Act than to the Alienation of Land Act, as bankers usually refuse to make advances to clients who have applied under the former Act while proceedings in liquidation are pending. It is also reported that, except where advances are made practically against the crop, the money-lenders insist on the deposit of silver ornaments, or secure repayment by an agreement that they should collect rents. The Commissioner states that there is little or no difficulty in getting loans for agricultural purposes, and his opinion is supported by examination of the taqávi returns. Since the revenue administration reports were written further inquiries have been made, the result of which is to show that fairly substantial persons are not prevented from obtaining loans for moderate amounts or personal security by the restrictions or alienation, and that there has been no general rise in the rate of interest.

In the provinces generally there is little to vary in the remarks that were made last year. Plague continued to spread, and often, at least on its first arrival, it dislocated trade. The cotton mills had a poor year, owing to the partial failure of the cotton crop. With these exceptions everything made for progress and prosperity. The extension of the railway system is noticeable; between Shadára and Saháranpur, Meerut and Khurja, Bareilly and Soron, Agra and Delhi, from Allahabad, and in Gorakhpur new lines have been opened or are under construction. Extensions of the canal have done much to improve conditions in parts of Aligarh and Muttra, as well as in Fatehpur, a district where the recovery after the famine was exceptionally slow, and new projects have been initiated in Bundelkhand, where their introduction is favoured by the increasing popularity of canal water. Except a small area in the Tarai, there is not a deteriorated tract in the provinces. Exports of grain were heavy, but prices continued low, so low, indeed, that in the Allahabad division the Commissioner says the tenants refused to sell, and for a time the landholders were at a loss for ready money. The demand for labour was great, and it was often with difficulty that it was supplied. Labourers, as the Director remarks, were either taking more holidays or they were cultivating more land on their own account, and a distinct amelioration of their circumstances is undoubted. The quinquennial enumeration of stock showed a substantial increase in the wealth of the people. The continued expansion of excise receipts was almost startling. The public dues were easily discharged. No sign of prosperity was wanting, and it is pleasant to read the evidence for this conclusion in the reports of one district after another, and in all divisions. It is greatly to be regretted, however, that a frost of unprecedented severity has recently caused great damage to the rabi crops. The extent of that damage and its possible effects on the revenue have still to be ascertained; but there can be no question that the outlook has changed very much for the worse since this report was drafted.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

R. W. GILLAN,

Secretary.

ORDERS OF GOVERNMENT.

No. $\frac{1234}{\text{I—245-1905}}$ OF 1905.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Naini Tal, the 28th April 1905.

READ—

Letter from the Secretary, Board of Revenue, United Provinces, no. $\frac{726}{\text{XII—163A-2}}$, dated 28th February 1905, being the Board's report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces for the year ending 30th September 1904.

OBSERVATIONS.—The report was submitted with commendable punctuality, reaching the Government on the date it was due, the 15th March. As required by the rules on the subject, references should be made in the margin of the different paragraphs to the appendices with which the paragraphs deal.

2. During the year 1903-4, though the kharif, owing to the untimeliness of the rainfall, was somewhat disappointing both in the area sown and in the outturn, the excellence of the rabi, especially in the western districts, more than made up for the deficiency, and the total area under cultivation was for the third year in succession the largest on record, the increase under the valuable crops of wheat and poppy being most marked. For the decline in the area under gram and rice the character of the season sufficiently accounts, but not for that under sugarcane, which is due in great part to the ousting of sugarcane by other and more profitable crops under the influence of the continued low prices for sugar. The effect of this substitution on the economic conditions of the sugar districts should be carefully watched. Notwithstanding the continuance of the low prices of staples, the undoubted prosperity of the provinces and of agriculturists as a whole is clearly indicated in the report. As usual, damage by floods and hail storms occurred in parts of the large area concerned, but fortunately it was not extensive, and involved remissions and suspensions of revenue to the extent of some Rs. 47,000 only.

3. The statements showing the classification of holdings and rentals are chiefly remarkable for the continued expansion of the total area included in holdings and for the continued inaccuracy of the record of rent collections in Agra, especially in the Benares division, where the matter is receiving special attention. The Government agrees with the Board that appendix XX-D may be abolished, the figures in column 8 of statement XXXIV-A being sufficient.

4. From the explanations given in paragraphs 14 to 17 of the difference between the real demand of land revenue and the gross demand, it appears that the actual balances at the close of the year were trifling in amount, Rs. 9,045 in all, current and arrear, the percentage of collections, 99·91, being most satisfactory. The practical reduction of the current demand by over 8 lakhs of rupees is almost entirely due to the substantial relief accorded to landholders in Bundelkhand, by which that part of the provinces has so materially benefited. The collection of canal rates, which, owing to extension of irrigation, largely exceeded those of the previous year, and of cesses was equally satisfactory. Not only was the revenue demand collected with punctuality, but with far less resort to coercive processes than in the previous year. The extent to which the severer processes were employed was inconsiderable, and the Government is glad to see from paragraph 28 of the report that close supervision over the issue of processes and the use of irregular methods of collection is being exercised. Advances to the amount of Rs. 1,24,557 were made, chiefly in Bundelkhand, under the Land Improvement Loans Act, and a similar amount, Rs. 1,24,421, under the Agriculturists' Loans Act. Collections were good; the balances, chiefly on account of interest, occurred mostly in the Allahabad division.

5. The administration of ordinary state properties, of which the chief are situated in the Allahabad, Bánda, and Kheri districts, is referred to briefly in paragraph 25. Here also rental collections were good. A sum of Rs. 17,085 in all was spent in improvements. The Lieutenant Governor is doubtful whether this is sufficient; though in many cases, from the nature of the property, improvements are out of the question, the adoption of a liberal policy in this respect, wherever such expenditure can be of benefit, is most advisable. The increase in income from the Mirzapur stone quarries has followed upon the increased expenditure sanctioned in recent years for the development of the property.

6. In paragraphs 30 to 55 the Board deal with the important subject of rent law litigation and discuss at length the effect of the new Tenancy Act upon its extent and character. The statistics show a considerable increase in litigation as compared with the four-years' average of five years ago—24 per cent. in suits for arrears of rent, 23 per cent. in ejectment for arrears of rent, about 38 per cent. in ejectment of year-to-year tenants, and 33 per cent. in enhancement cases, while there is a substantial increase under each head as compared with the figures of the previous year. The increase in enhancement suits is not considered to be an incident in a general campaign against tenant right, but to be due to the desire of landlords to take advantage of prosperous times. The increase in suits for arrears of rent is not found to be directly due to the Tenancy Act; it has now been ascertained that ejectment for arrears has not been employed to any considerable extent in the case of year-to-year tenants, and the increase in applications for ejectment of tenants against whom decrees for arrears remain unsatisfied is attributed to the quickening by the new Act of the existing antagonism between landholder and tenant: the increase in the number of ejectments of year-to-year tenants is considered to be partly the sequelæ of the agitation which preceded and accompanied the new legislation and partly the result of the desire to secure enhancements after a series of good seasons. The conclusion appears to be that the permanent and inevitable opposition of interests between landlord and tenant, which in the case of small proprietors amounts almost to a struggle for existence, has been aggravated by the landlords' hope, born of prosperity, of securing a larger profit from the land, and by mutual fear that any change in the law will benefit one party to the injury of the other. Even in Oudh suits for arrears, notwithstanding the excellence of the season, were practically the same as in the previous year, there being a difference of 26 only, while in the Kumaun division there was an increase of 32 per cent.

7. When the year under report closed, the Agra Tenancy Act had been in force for $2\frac{3}{4}$ years. Landlords and tenants have had time therefore to become acquainted, though it can hardly be said perfectly, with the altered provisions of the law, and to adjust themselves to some extent to the new conditions of life. Though it is difficult as yet to form definite conclusions as to the effect of the working of the new Act upon the all-important question of the relations between the different agricultural classes, the Board have fully criticized the statistics available and have indicated the direction in which, in their opinion, they point. The senior member, the Hon'ble Mr. R. G. Hardy, C.S.I., as member of the select committee on the Tenancy Bill, was one of the officers responsible for the shape which the legislation took, and his views therefore are of special value to the Government. The Board report that they are forced to the conclusion that the landholders are still masters of the situation. "The difficulties placed in their way are by no means insurmountable, and it is clear that the policy of the Act can be defeated by resort to effective ejectments, not only for the dispossession of undesirable tenants, but for the purposes of enhancement." This opinion is based chiefly on the figures set forth in statement XX-C, a new appendix, the compilation of which was ordered in June last. The Tenancy Act of 1901 was intended to secure, among other objects, the discontinuance of three devices, which, contrary to the spirit of Act XII of 1881, had been adopted by landholders of the provinces with a view to the prevention in an irregular manner of the acquisition of occupancy rights, viz. the shifting of fields from one holding to another, nominal ejectments followed by immediate reinstatements, and the grant of short-term leases. With the enactment of the Tenancy Act, these devices have disappeared, as nothing is to be gained by continuing them. Apart from the changes which were thus directly effected by the legislation, it was thought possible that certain indirect consequences would ensue. The framers of the Act intentionally left to the landholders the control of the growth of occupancy rights, a control which under the new law was to be exercised in two ways, firstly by the grant of leases for seven years, during which no rights accrue, and secondly by effective ejectment of a year-to-year tenant. If the landlord exercised the power of ejectment given him by the law, the ejectment was to be an absolute and not a temporary one. Ejectment from the estate was (apart from leases) to be the recognized means of frustrating the growth of occupancy rights, but it was thought that the adoption of a general system of ejectment from estates would frustrate the growth of rent; that all landlords would not, in their own interests, systematically eject tenants from their estates, either with the object of preventing the accrual of occupancy rights or with the object of exacting enhancement of rent; and that the first method of controlling the growth of occupancy rights, the grant of seven-year leases, would be preferred and become the more popular expedient of the two.

8. The Board fear that the reverse is the case; that long leases which restrict the power of enhancement for seven years will not come into favour; that the landholder will accept nothing but a year-to-year tenant whose rent is subject to enhancement at will, and to attain this end will exercise freely his powers of absolute ejectment of a tenant from the estate before the completion of the statutory term of twelve years. It must be admitted that there are indications which point to this conclusion, and it may be that the expectations of the effect of the legislation will not be realized: it is too soon, however, to speak with certainty.

There are some hopeful signs also on the other side. There was a considerable increase during the year in the area covered by long-term leases, and this in districts which are supposed to be particularly well posted in the intricacies of the Tenancy Act and well able to look after their own interests. Again, as the Board point out, the accuracy of the statistics (appendix XX-C) showing the treatment of tenants after ejectment, on which the argument as to the inefficacy of the new Act is chiefly based, is open to serious doubt; but little reliance can be placed on the work of patwaris in recording such particulars, and the Lieutenant Governor would be more inclined to accept conclusions based on test enquiries made by gazetted officers in selected villages, such as those which were carried out by Mr. Gracey in Basti in the year 1902-3. As it is, it appears that the area from which year-to-year tenants were actually ejected was about 1·8 per cent. only of the area held by them. A certain number of landlords will always be found ready to eject their tenants and to employ fully any provisions of a Tenancy Act in their power. Of the three classes into which landholders, apart from those who eject merely to secure enhancements, may be broadly divided, (1) those who allow tenants (unless there is good reason for adopting a contrary course) to continue from year to year to acquire occupancy rights undisturbed, (2) those who grant tenants seven-year leases in order to prevent the accrual of occupancy rights, and (3) those who eject their tenants systematically and absolutely from their estates in order to prevent the accrual of occupancy rights, it is hoped that the last will not prove the most numerous. The Board are to be congratulated on the satisfactory settlement of a long-standing dispute in the Bulandshahr district affecting a large area on the basis of the grant of leases for seven years.

9. The Government equally with the Board views with grave concern the serious increase of work which overburdens the courts and impairs the general efficiency of officers. According to appendix XIX-D, institutions rose from 280,158 to 310,419, making some 30,000 more cases for disposal than in the previous year. Although the disposals exceeded those of 1902-3 by 27,017, the pending file at the close of the year (86,763) exceeded by 13,829 that of the preceding year. In eight districts the arrears exceeded 3,000, and, though but few had been pending more than three months (except in Budaun, where no less than 2,274 were thus in arrears), the heavy tale of work at the close of the year is most alarming. Temporary help was given in many districts by supplying additional officers, but unless the institutions decline, either the staff will have to be permanently increased or a means for relief must be sought by amendment of the law, proposals for which are under the consideration of the Board. In this unsatisfactory stage the question must be left at present.

10. The appellate work of Commissioners, which is discussed by the Board in paragraph 54, is in some ways remarkable. As the Board point out, it is curious that no appeals were found worthy of rejection in the Agra division, to which may be added the Gorakhpur division and practically the Allahabad division as well. The Government is glad to see that a determined effort has been made to reduce the pending file in Fyzabad, and the result is creditable to Mr. Hamblin, who held office throughout the year. The disposals in the Rohilkhand and Benares divisions include a large percentage of remands: it is unlikely that in these two divisions the work of deputy collectors was worse on the whole than in others; a large number of cases remanded for re-trial, especially if they are sent to courts other than those which tried them in the first instance, as the Government believes is sometimes irregularly done, adds seriously to the existing difficulties. The attention of Commissioners should be invited to the provisions of sections 562 and 578 of the Civil Procedure Code, which impose strict limitations on the power of remand. The Government agree with the Board that the disposals in the Agra and Lucknow divisions were inadequate, and trusts that the pending file in these divisions has been reduced since the submission of the report to proper proportions. For the arrears in Gorakhpur there are said to be special reasons.

Disposals of appeals by the Board of Revenue amounted to 659 as compared with 802 in the previous year, the pending file rising from 175 to 335.

11. During the year settlement operations were in full progress in six districts—Mainpuri, Etah, Azamgarh under ordinary rules, and Cawnpore, Jhánsi, and Jalaun under special rules. In the trans-Jumna tahsils of the Allahabad district the important work of re-settlement on the new fluctuating system was successfully brought to a close by Mr. Pim in December 1903. The Board's account of the operations in the different districts has been read by His Honour with much interest. Notwithstanding the difficulties caused in some cases by the prevalence of plague, the settlement officers have carried on their work with marked success.

12. It is satisfactory to find from the remarks made in paragraphs 71 to 74 that distinct improvement is reported in the condition of the proprietary registers; and that applications for perfect partition have declined by 8 per cent.: on the other hand, there has been a considerable rise in imperfect partitions, and, notwithstanding the assistance given by the appointment of extra deputy collectors, disposals could not keep pace with the institutions. The Board have recently issued instructions with a view to securing better supervision and an increased outturn of work, and the Government has confidence in their arrangements.

13. The affairs of Bundelkhand received much attention during the year, and the liberal policy with which it has been treated for some time past was continued. It suffered during the year both from excessive rainfall and from the premature cessation of the monsoon, necessitating the remission of Rs. 26,246 of revenue in Bánda and Rs. 2,792 in Jhánsi: in Jhánsi Rs. 2,802 had also to be remitted for hail and Rs. 9,626 in Jalaun. Progressive revenues (Rs. 1,655) falling due in Jhánsi were not imposed in cases where reduction had been granted. The popularity of canal irrigation is growing, and the Betwa canal did very much better than in any previous year except the famine year of 1896-7. In Jalaun the demand increased by Rs. 28,805. Large sums, Rs. 74,800, were advanced under the Land Improvement Loans Act, of which Rs. 33,500 were special grants made without interest: Rs. 25,680 were given for field embankments in Bánda, Rs. 10,000 for the construction and repair of enbankments in tahsil Meja of the Allahabad district, and Rs. 23,500 for masonry wells in pargana Arail, the balance of Rs. 50,000 allotted for the purpose. A special officer was appointed for distributing these loans and securing that they were most effectively employed. Some Rs. 63,000 were advanced at the same time under the Agriculturists Loans Act.

The Alienation of Land Act promises to fulfil the purpose with which it was enacted and has been worked without difficulty throughout the year. Under the Encumbered Estates Act substantial relief has been given in many cases, and loans to the amount of 2½ lakhs have been sanctioned in the liquidation of debts.

14. The Government desires to acknowledge, in conclusion, the efficiency of the administration of the Board of Revenue during the year and the excellence of the report submitted.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces, for the information of the Board.
